Happy Birthday.
Back to Cave Days.
A Fighting Dog Mother.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL, one of W. R. Hearst's many newspapers, celebrated its thirty-fifth birthday yesterday, announcing a daily average circulation for 35 years of more than 600,000, and a total circulation of more than 7,000,000,000 copies.

The newspaper which Mr. Hearst started from scratch 35 years ago, with S. S. Carvalho as publisher, interests newspaper publishers because of the Evening Journal's persistent domination in its field, more than double the circulation of any other evening newspaper in New York for more than 30 years.

NEWSPAPER WORKERS are interested because the Evening Journal pays the highest salaries in the newspaper profession, in one case more than three times the salary that the people pay the President, who gets only $75,000 a year.

THE BIRTHDAY of a successful newspaper raises the question: "WHAT IS THE NEWS?" The answer depends on the individual who asks the question. To a native in the Congo the big news tells about killing a hippopotamus, plenty of meat.

In Wall street the important news is the fight between gold and silver, several nations following the example of England and saying:

"Good-bye gold; we can get along without you."

For farmers and housewives the news is that potato growers in Maine get only 50 cents a barrel for potatoes that cost $1.25 to grow.

FOR EVERYBODY it is interesting news that the Lindberghs are mapping out 8,000 square miles of flooded territory in China, miserable, starving men and women rushing their plane, hoping to find food, and finding only medicines.

CIRCULATION MANAGERS, as important to newspapers as a mainspring to a watch, will be interested in this incident in the Evening Journal's career.

One of the young editors whom W. R. Hearst had engaged decided on a certain day that the Evening Journal, which had then 40,000 circulation, must pass the Evening World's 325,000 circulation and calculated that to pass the World would take about seven years of hard work.

Four months later the Evening Journal guaranteed four times the circulation of the Evening World, which shows that a thing can be done, when you are young.

ONE NEW YORK police story carries you back to ancient days.

Mario Barrone, young, good looking, entered this country from Italy illegally. Then he entered the home of Mrs. Margaret Merola, aged 27, and stole her from her husband.

The police found Barrone, tied to a bed in an apartment where he lived with the stolen Mrs. Merola.

Barrone had been tortured with fire, and left to think it over. Mrs. Merola had vanished, and police believe she has been murdered.

Italians take such things seriously, so much so that the new criminal code recently adopted in Italy expressly exempts from any punishment a murder committed by an injured husband.

CHINA'S FOREIGN minister, C. T. Wang, who has done his best to keep his distressed country out of another war, knows to his sorrow that men are fools and fools like war.

Attacked by a mob of students, he was beaten over the head with clubs and inkpots and may die.

YOU MAY READ in an old book on English sports of the horribly brutal test to which female fighting dogs were put, to make sure that their pups would be good fighters.

The female was put opposite another fighting dog, and after she had dashed at him, one of her front paws was cut off.

If she still continued fighting, that was a good sign. Then the other front paw was cut off. And if she again insisted on fighting, dashing at the enemy on her bleeding stumps, she was called good enough for breeding purposes and became the mother of fighting dogs, hobbling, mutilated, the rest of her life.

You can't blame her, but you can blame men that insist on fighting, after a great war has cut off the world's prosperity and happiness.

LOUIS SEIBOLD, ablest political writer in the country, says truly that this is the time, if ever, for the federal government to control and regulate practices of the New York Stock Exchange, particularly in connection with "short selling," which is in fact a conspiracy against values.

The gentle art of short selling establishing low and discouraging prices by "floor traders" gambling among themselves, is harmful to the general public and the stock exchange.

IF THAT POWERFUL, useful and necessary institution wishes to preserve reasonable liberty of action, and not invite government control similar to that of national banks, it should regulate short selling drastically, and stick to it.

A seat on the exchange sold yesterday for $160,000, nearly $500,000 below the price of the "happy days." That is sad for the exchange, but regulation by the federal government, which

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Mrs. Benjamin P. Collings today partially identified the murderers of her husband.

The identification was made from photographs shown to her by the New York Evening Journal of a drug-crazed Vermont veterinarian and his 23-year-old son.

Mrs. Collings, at her home in Stamford, gazed for some minutes at the photograph of the veterinarian which showed him standing in front of an automobile next to his wife. At length she said:

"He seems to be a trifle shorter than the man in the boat. But his nose, his head, his general features, his whole type, are most familiar. I am almost certain it is the man."

LIKENESS OF SUSPECT

Her identification of the son's picture was made more rapidly. She just glanced at the swarthy countenance revealed in the photograph, and said:

"This picture certainly runs true to the form, the features and the coloring of the boy on the boat."

The identification precipitated a man-hunt that extended from New England through the southern states where father and son at present are touring with other relatives in two motor cars.

At the request of the authorities, the Evening Journal is withholding the names of the mad doctor and his son for the present.

PAIR INSEPARABLE

According to relatives of the veterinarian's family interviewed by the Evening Journal, father and son are inseparable. The boy is completely under the influence of the older man. It is quite conceivable that he would even kill at his father's instigation.

The doctor, a morphine addict, has been leading a nomadic existence along the Connecticut shore, digging clams and trapping eels, it is said. His supposed addiction to morphine would explain the drinking of quantities of water by the elder of the two men who killed Collings.

The Evening Journal has established definitely that father and son left the Connecticut shore in a small boat about 9:30 on the night of the murder and did not return until shortly before daylight.

The discovery of another body on the Long Island shore of the Sound today, tossed up by the tide in the same way that Collings' body was tossed up a week after his murder, led Suffolk County to investigate and determine if there was any connecting link between the two killings.

HOOVER GETS COOLIDGE SUPPORT

Ex-President Takes Self Out of Race in Magazine Article; Capital Stirred

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Calvin Coolidge's announcement in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post that he does not propose to be a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1932, and that he considers it the duty of all good Republicans to support Herbert Hoover for a second term, caused a political sensation in Washington today.

Not since his casual assertion, "I do not choose to run for president in 1928," has any statement of Mr. Coolidge's created such a profound stir in political quarters.

STATEMENT PLAIN

His 1928 statement was enigmatic of many interpretations, but in his current pronouncement Mr. Coolidge leaves no doubt as to his stand. He is going to support Mr. Hoover.

Republican leaders were quick to predict that Mr. Coolidge's appeal to the party to rally behind Mr. Hoover would have the desired effect, and that it will dispel the last faint glimmering possibility of denying Mr. Hoover renomination next June.

Mr. Coolidge represented the only real threat to Mr. Hoover's renomination, in the opinion of party leaders.

HOOVER PLEASED

Among President Hoover's friends, and among administration officials generally, the Coolidge announcement was greeted with undisguised pleasure. They have always been haunted by the specter of a Coolidge revival, and its disappearance in such an effectual and convincing manner brought broad smiles and real relief.

Some of the more cynically-minded, who always refused to accept the 1928 statement as final, were inclined today to interpret Mr. Coolidge's current announcement in terms of 1936. In that year, if he is re-elected, Mr. Hoover will be ineligible, under the unwritten law of presidential politics. And Mr. Coolidge in 1936 will still be eligible from an age standpoint. He will be 64.

HOMESTEAD, CITY MEN NAMED

Action Follows Inquiry Into Charges of Fraud Following Primary Fight

BULLETIN.

Eighteen persons were recommended for indictment today as a result of the grand jury's investigation into charge of election frauds which supporters of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern said were designed to cheat him of renomination.

The 18 were scattered through the Ninth District of the Twentieth Ward of Pittsburgh; Forward Township, Homestead and West Homestead.

One indicted board is from the Ninth District of the Twentieth Ward, the second is from the First District of Forward Township and the men alleged to have been indicted for repeating are from Homestead.

Recommended for indictment:

Albert Pryle, Homestead.
Jack Abbott, Homestead.
Nick Whalen, Homestead.
Harry J. Walsh, judge of election, Ninth District, Twentieth Ward.
Earl C. Kline, inspector, Ninth District, Twentieth Ward.
Alice J. Jennings, inspector, Ninth District, Twentieth Ward.
Ida Eisenberg, clerk, Ninth District, Twentieth Ward.
Gertrude Shannon, clerk, Ninth District, Twentieth Ward.
Michael Dugan, Twentieth Ward.
Earl Anderson, Twentieth Ward.
Ray Engelhart, Twentieth Ward.
John Doe.
Richard Roe,
Roy Porter.
Robert Rue.
Frank Pauley.
John Sandy.
Andrew Revetta.

The grand jury investigating election frauds and thieveries in the primary election September 15 was preparing its first indictment recommendations for presentation to Judge James H. Gray when court reopened this morning.

Judge Gray's order for District Attorney Andrew T. Park to prepare the indictments for submission to the jurors was expected to follow immediately with at least some of them being placed before them by nightfall.

Important developments late yesterday, Park said, delayed the presentment originally scheduled at that time.

It was understood that today recommendations will name persons in Homestead, Forward Township and possibly other boroughs and the first three districts of Pittsburgh.

A more detailed presentment, containing many more names, was expected by Friday.

Judge Gray late yesterday named William I. Glasser, 90 Estella street, as foreman of the grand jury to succeed James Jones, 608 Sebring avenue, who was excused on a plea that urgent business required his attention.

PERRY STATE BANK CLOSES

The Perry State Bank, at 3908 Perrysville avenue, held up in December, 1930, and robbed of $5,000, was taken over by the State Banking Department this morning, it was announced by Chief Examiner J. D. Swigart.

The bank had resources of $774,000 and deposits of $535,000, according to a recent report.

Heavy withdrawals of deposits and deflation of the bond market was assigned as the cause for the closing by members of the board, who asked that the state assume control. It will pay its depositors in full, the officers said.

A few days following the holdup of the Perry State Bank, $1,560 of the loot was recovered in a rooming house at 532 Tripoli street, North Side. One of the alleged bandits, Benny Lane, said to have been a ring leader in the holdup, was shot to death in a gun battle with a New York detective. Three suspects were later arrested, tried and convicted.

FIRST BIG FROST HITS DISTRICT

A heavy frost, the first of the season, coated vegetation throughout the countryside early today as the mercury fell to 42 degrees at the Weather Bureau and to 34 and 36 in outlying districts. Rising temperatures, with the thermometer near 70 late today, were predicted by Forecaster W. S. Brotzman.

The chilly spell was indirectly responsible for radio broadcasting station KQV being put out of commission, probably for a day or two. When steam was turned on in the Plaza Building early today, one of the lines was open and flooded the radio transmitters on the top floor, John Buchheit, manager, stated. Emergency measures were being used to dry them out.

Official Count Boosts McGovern Total; More Probe Funds Granted

Armstrong's Hopes Suffer Setback in Tabulation.

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern today had cut down Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong's lead in the official ballot count of the Returning Board to less than 1,500 votes, a tabulation of the figures in the first 451 districts of the county revealed. Armstrong, during tabulation of the first ballot boxes, had amassed a lead of almost 5,000.

Other important developments in the fight the pair are waging for the second majority commissionership nomination included:

1—Indication from the Judges in charge of the Returning Board that all votes in the First District of the First Ward, Braddock, where Armstrong had a 660-vote lead, may be thrown out as invalid.

2—Appropriation by the

Burke Sees Hoover Strength Gaining

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—A report, tinged with optimism, upon economic and political conditions in 18 western states, was delivered to President Hoover today by James Francis Burke, of Pittsburgh, general counsel of the Republican National Committee.

Burke said he had found everywhere it was considered a foregone conclusion that President Hoover would be renominated and that there was "a growing impression" that the President would be re-elected.

ESCAPE FRATERNITY FIRE

JOHN CHESTERMAN WILLIAM LANG

Young Mr. Chesterman, son of Bell Telephone's Vice President F. J. Chesterman, Pittsburgh, and his brother Lang, grand-nephew of the public works director, both of whom today escaped the blazing Sigma Chi house at Dartmouth College down firemen's ladders.

Two Pittsburghers Escape Dartmouth Fire

Flames swept through the Sigma Chi fraternity house of Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., early today, endangering the lives of two Pittsburgh students.

Asleep on the third floor of the house, John Chesterman, son of F. J. Chesterman, vice president and general manager of the Bell Telephone Company, and William Lang, whose father is a nephew of Public Director Edward G. Lang, escaped from the building by ladders, as the flames lapped under the doorway. Lang's hands were cut when struck by broken glass.

In a telephone message to his father, young Chesterman said:

"We were apparently the last to get out of the building. Flames had broken through at several points in our room and we got some water and tried to put them out. Then we collected our clothes and books and escaped by ladders."

Lang and Chesterman were roommates.

One of the students, sleeping in another part of the building, which was badly damaged, was slightly injured.

Lang, a son of Edward C. Lang, of 3329 Delaware avenue, and a grandson of the late William Lang, North Side alderman, is a junior at Dartmouth. Chesterman is a senior.

'Blind Dates' for 'Y' Girls Bring Woman Fine

Because Central Y. W. C. A. officials objected to her making "blind dates" for other girls on a wholesale scale, Mrs. Beulah Talbot, 23, of Johnstown, was fined $25 or 30 days in jail on a suspicious person charge by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court today.

Mrs. Talbot was arrested today following investigation by police and Y. W. C. A. officials by methods which admittedly included tapping of telephone wires. She lived, until two weeks ago, at the association's home, in Chatham street.

Testimony was introduced to show that Mrs. Talbot had taken numerous girls on "blind dates," which usually, association officials said, included a tour of the roadhouses, speakeasies and play spots of the city, winding up in hotels. Since Mrs. Talbot came to the Y. W. C. A., officials testified, hundreds of telephone calls from men came for her, day and night, while the automobiles of many others were to be seen in Chatham street at all hours, they said.

Miss Anna Kury, a Y. W. C. A. official, testified that she tapped a wire and listened to a conversation between a man and Mrs. Talbot. She said the man asked:

"Get me two girls. One of the men has $50 he wants to spend."

Mrs. Talbot admitted the man gave her money on different occasions.

KING URGES MACDONALD TO 'CARRY ON' IN NEW CRISIS

RULER, PREMIER CONFER ON PROCEDURE

Growing Turmoil Over Tariff And Election Stirs Britain; Program Due Tomorrow

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald called at Buckingham Palace this afternoon to seek the views of the King as to whether Parliament should be dissolved and a general election called.

It was believed that the King, who returned to London only this morning, told him to carry on the national government at any cost during the financial crisis.

This is MacDonald's own desire, but in the face of divided opinion in the cabinet on the election issue, Britain's situation is as delicate as any he has met in the recent troubled weeks.

SPLIT ON ELECTION

The Conservatives are pressing for an immediate election; the Labor party does not want one, and the Liberals also are uncompromisingly opposed to an election at this time.

If MacDonald considers an immediate election necessary, political observers agree, he must be prepared for the withdrawal of the group of official Liberals, headed by Sir Herbert Samuel, with David Lloyd George directing in the background. His full political strategy at the moment is designed to keep the Liberal group from swinging into opposition against him.

It is not thought likely that he will yield to the Conservative demand for an election on an out-and-out tariff platform, but will instead lead a campaign based on an appeal for national unity with no mention of tariffs.

To hold the Liberal support he must avoid any campaign based on the tariff issue.

Immediately after the audience with the King, MacDonald prepared to meet his cabinet at the House of Commons.

WILL ANNOUNCE PLAN

Despite the Conservative agitation for an election, it generally is believed that MacDonald can force the Conservatives to yield. The Prime Minister has said he will tell the House of Commons tomorrow what he is going to do.

If there is to be an immediate election, Parliament will be dissolved and the polling will be announced for late next month. If there is not to be an election, Parliament probably will be adjourned until early spring.

In the meanwhile, the country would have time to settle down and MacDonald no doubt would try to strengthen his government by shifting some of the cabinet portfolios.

His third course would be to step aside as he has threatened to do, to resign as Prime Minister and to retire temporarily at least from politics, leaving the factional fight on the tariff issue to proceed unchecked.

In that case, some persons believe, he might become viceroy of India or move into some other high governmental post.

SCORE PINCHOT APPOINTMENTS

Gov. Gifford Pinchot's appointment of Howard Neely and Alexander Cooper as special attorneys in the Department of Justice brought criticism from the Roosevelt Civic Legion in a letter mailed to the Governor last night. The letter declared the appointments had "shaken the people's faith in decency" in the state.

The letter was signed by Donald D. Mangone, president of the Legion. Although it did not mention Neely and Cooper by name, Mangone declared they were the men referred to. The letter said:

"The members of the Roosevelt Civic League had great faith in you but the appointment of two of Senator James J. Coyne's political henchmen as assistants in the Department of Justice has surely shaken the rock-ribbed foundation of the people's faith in decency throughout this Commonwealth.

"Nay, it would make even Boss Tweed or Boies Penrose blush with shame.

"Mr. Governor, what do you have to say about it?"

"Believing in Rooseveltism, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
"DONALD D. MANGONE,
"President,
"Roosevelt Civic Legion."

Counts Commissioners of $10,000 for the grand jury's use in additional probing of vote frauds and of $6,100 for the Registration Commission in its inquiry into alleged registration irregularities preceding the September 15 primary.

3—Order for the arrest of 69 minority inspectors, nine in the city, 60 in the county, who have not brought in their tally sheets, used at the primary polls, to the District Attorney's office in compliance with written request or, in some cases, subpenaes.

4—Attorneys representing various candidates met with Judge Macfarlane to discuss the possibilities of speeding the work of the Recount Board, as requested by the Citizens' Committee last Saturday. Macfarlane made no announcement following the meeting.

BALLOTS MISSING

When the Returning Board clerks found 41 unused ballots from the Braddock district were missing, Judges George V. Moore and Elder W. Marshall, in charge of the board, called in the election board. These officials explained that the 41 ballots had been placed in the ballot box.

The box was opened by the Returning Board today and the ballots were not there.

Both judges indicated today that unless a second explanation—and a satisfactory one—is forthcoming from the election board there is a strong probability the entire vote of the district will be declared invalid.

The minority inspector's tally sheets submitted to the Returning Board shows 678 votes for Armstrong and 18 for McGovern.

With the unofficial returns showing McGovern nominated for the second majority commissionership by 2,400 votes, Armstrong's campaign manager, Congressman Harry A. Estep, claimed the official figures would show Armstrong a winner, as the running mate of State Senator W. D. Mansfield, by 4,000 votes.

This, along with charge of the McGovern faction that "organization" workers were trying to "count Armstrong in" by ballot box stuffing and phantom markings, brought about the present grand jury investigation of election thievery charges.

True to Estep's prediction, the first 200 districts tabulated gave Armstrong a lead of almost 5,000 over McGovern, with Mansfield running true to unofficial estimates.

Then McGovern started a steady forward march and, when the board had completed 451 districts, the official count stood:

Armstrong	66,425
McGovern	64,960

GAIN FOR McGOVERN

This was a slight gain for McGovern over the unofficial returns and a heavy one, more than 4,000, for Armstrong. The unofficial figures for the 451 districts were:

McGovern	64,657
Armstrong	62,583

McGovern followers, cheered by their candidate's recent gains, said they believed the grand jury investigation, starting the Friday after election, had frightened many ballot box stuffers, who they said, were aiding Armstrong into deserting their task. They still were confident McGovern would be nominated on the official count.

Senator Mansfield's vote in the unofficial count was 85,580 against 85,822 in the official. Coyne's vote was unofficial 60,627 against 63,632 official.

Judges George V. Moore and Elder W. Marshall, supervising returning board tabulations, today were expected to order a recanvass of two ballot boxes from the Seventeenth Ward, the stronghold of Commissioner Armstrong, owing to conflicting totals submitted by election boards of two districts.

Armstrong was credited with 668 votes on the general return sheet from the Fourth District. The tally sheet count was reported to account for only 450 votes.

Twenty-one additional informations accusing as many persons of election day disorders and conspiracy to violate the election laws were made today before Alderman Albert J. Henning, 2062 Brownsville road, Carrick. The additional informations brings the total to 81, nine of whom have been arrested. Complaints were made by members of the Registration Board and individuals.

Board Ready to Certify First Recount of Votes

Certification of the first recount of votes in the fight between Charles C. McGovern and Joseph G. Armstrong for the second Republican County Commissioner nomination was expected today when returns from four districts were to be made to Presiding Judge James R. Macfarlane.

The recount board was occupied in recounting ballots from 19 other districts of the city and county, and has yet to tabulate returns from 29 districts, boxes of which were impounded on oaths of various political leaders.

30 IMPOUNDED

Of the 52 ballot boxes ordered in for the recount, 30 were impounded on petitions of McGovern leaders, it was said. The other 22 were brought in on oaths sworn to by Armstrong workers and by various aldermanic and constable candidates.

The board today finished the recount of ballots in the Fifth District, Twelfth Ward, little change being shown from the unofficial returns. The work of certifying the vote in three other districts was being rapidly completed and was expected to be finished late today.

Five districts have been recounted to date of 52 turned over to the recount body.

LAVAL, BRIAND END BERLIN SESSIONS

Progress Toward Amity of Former Foes Made as Statesmen Start for Home

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service.

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—Believing that sound progress had been made in the long struggle for understanding between France and Germany, Premier Pierre Laval and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, of France, left Berlin today to return to Paris.

In a series of private conferences here with Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and Foreign Minister Julius Curtius, of Germany, they succeeded in laying the groundwork for a joint Franco-German Commission to examine all economic questions touching the two countries in the interests of international co-operation.

In a joint statement announcing plans for Franco-German economic co-operation, the German and French ministers said that the commission, which will be organized shortly, will be composed of governmental representatives of the two governments, in addition to qualified representatives of various economic enterprises. Labor organizations in both countries will be invited to join in the work.

To unify the activities of the commission, a general secretariat will be established, and the commission itself will hold sessions either in France or Germany, according to the needs which arise.

It was stated the proceedings of the German and French representatives were not directed against any other country, and that they had refused "to seek a solution of the questions assigned to the commission in a common move for higher tariffs."

Inquiries will be made, however, to discover fresh marketing possibilities, and consideration will be given to reinforcing and extending existing economic agreements between the two countries.

VOTERS BARRED IN WILMERDING

Despite a pre-election order from Common Pleas Court that an extra three-day assessment and registration period be held in Wilmerding, hundreds of anti-Volpe voters, supporting County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, were denied the right to vote on September 15. Independent Republican leaders of the borough told the court today.

The Independents claimed that hundreds of names, placed on the register-assessor's lists during the extra three days, never were transcribed to the County Treasurer's lists, thus preventing them from obtaining tax receipts and disfranchising them election day.

The Independents were told not to file a formal petition until the grand jury, now investigating election thievery, completes its inspection of charges of fraud already made against Wilmerding politicians.

NAVAL BUDGET HIT BY HOOVER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Aroused by the efforts of certain navy officials to gain an increased appropriation, President Hoover is seeking to subtract a total of $61,000,000 from the $401,000,000 requested by the department for the year 1933.

The President is endeavoring to effect the cut in the estimates, which, without affecting the construction program in the end, may be increased to a total of $65,000,000 for 1933, as compared with the $50,000,000 for 1932.

The President has asked every department to reconsider its requests for appropriations so as to cut down costs. Should the departments themselves actively and publicly advocate requests for increased appropriations, the Chief Executive plans to carry the fight for economies to the American people.

EPISCOPALIANS DROP DEBATE ON DRY LAW

Church Leaders 'Agree to Differ;' Compromise On Marriage Sought

DENVER, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—The House of Bishops and the House of Deputies of the Portestant Episcopal Church were agreed today that there is a widespread difference of opinion as to the wisdom of retaining the Eighteenth Amendment in its present form.

They also were agreed that there is a widespread difference of opinion as to the wisdom and desirability of retaining the church's marriage and divorce canon in its present form.

On the prohibition question, they decided to do nothing because of the highly controversial issues involved. On the matrimonial question they hoped to effect a compromise.

The section on the prohibition question in a report by the committee of 21 on industrial dislocation, world peace and prohibition and lawlessness was adopted by the House of Bishops last Friday. The deputies concurred yesterday. There was no debate.

The report set forth that enforcement of the prohibition law "has been steadily resisted and has been accompanied by graft, corruption, lawlessness, murder and political cowardice and hypocricy."

The matrimonial issue was considered last night by a conference committee of the House of Bishops and House of Deputies. The results were expected to be announced today.

Differences of opinion were largely technical. The deputies favor mandatory ecclesiastical courts to consider matrimonial cases. The bishops would leave establishment of such courts to the discretion of the diocese and provide for operation of the courts through the bishops.

Both bishops and deputies would restore divorced persons who have been remarried by a civil authority to all communicant rights under a favorable decision from an ecclesiastical court.

KANE SPEEDING WORK ON BOOK

HAMPTON, Va., Sept. 29.—(INS.)—Whatever fate has in store for Prof. Elisha Kane, charged with drowning his pretty young wife, he is intent upon leaving behind him a work of literature to which he has devoted the last five years.

His cousin and lawyer, E. Kent Kane, today described the professor's manuscript to International News Service as "a literary masterpiece." This is a translation of one of the three great writers of Spain, a great deal of which is done in poetry, a form of expression to which the professor is no stranger.

Cousin Kane further asserted that whether "Betty" Dahl, mentioned as "the other woman" was called by the defense depended upon whether the state attempted to introduce letters said to have been sent the professor by Mrs. Dahl.

Parents Reveal Stetson Elopement

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—(INS.)—Elopement of Miss Jane Stetson, 22, daughter of the former Ambassador to Poland and Mrs. John B. Stetson, Jr., and her marriage to Thomas Cartledge, 27-year-old Philadelphia business man and amateur aviator, last Saturday, was revealed by the bride's parents today.

Russian Oil Cargo Due In Glutted Detroit Area

DETROIT, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—A 499,000-gallon cargo of gasoline, part of a 2,700,000-gallon consignment from Soviet Russia to Detroit, was reported nearing port today to compete with domestic fuel on a market which dealers assert already is glutted.

Col. Walter C. Cole, executive vice president of the Union League Club of Michigan, gave information concerning the shipment in a statement based on researches begun in June of reports that Detroit was to be made the dumping grounds of the Russian gasoline output.

The initial shipment is due today, he said, and will become the first ever received in the Detroit area by way of the St. Lawrence waterway.

The remainder of the consignment, he said, has reached Montreal and is in storage there. Col. Cole said he was informed from Montreal that the shipment is consigned to the Sunny Service Oil Company of Detroit.

Charles E. Austin, president of that company, declined either to affirm or deny Col. Cole's statement. His company recently established marine storage facilities with 1,000,000-gallon capacity here.

Ex-Chinese Emperor Pays Favorite to End Suit

PEIPING, Sept. 29.—(Universal)—Western civilization's encroachment upon the Orient was blamed today for the separation of Henry Pu Yi, who as Husan Tung was China's last emperor, and his beautiful favorite, Hsu Fie.

Hsu Fie several weeks ago threatened to kill herself, according to a vernacular newspaper here, because, she charged, the ex-emperor sent servants to her garret to abuse her and brand her as "the most ill-mannered woman in 300 years of the Manchu dynasty."

Her suit for separation brought the reply from the former emperor, who was stripped of his titles in 1912, that he had no funds, but nevertheless he instructed his attorney to arrange a settlement.

Consequently, in consideration of a payment of $6,000 annually, full possession of gifts from the former emperor and the privilege of living either in his establishment in Tientsin or with his first wife—a mandarin's daughter here—Hsu Fie withdrew her suit.

The ex-emperor's friends claim Hsu Fie became imbued with ideas of "unnatural freedom" recorded women in the western world, and that she refused to observe customs befitting the favorite of his imperial majesty's household.

WILKINS BIDS ADIEU TO SUB AS ARCTIC ADVENTURE ENDS

SUCCESS SEEN WITH ANOTHER VESSEL

Leader Quits Nautilus for London, Declaring Cruise Advanced Science Cause

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS
Commander of the Wilkins-Ellsworth Trans-Arctic Submarine Expedition
By Radio via American Radio News Corporation and Radiomarine Corporation

ABOARD THE POLAR SUBMARINE NAUTILUS, Bergen, Norway, Sept. 28. — This is the last story from aboard the only submarine that has ever passed under the Arctic ice in the interests of civilization and science.

Jules Verne's "Nautilus" was a product of the imagination of a forward-looking man. This present-day Nautilus—farewell to her—represents Jules Verne's idea come true. Although we did not reach the North Pole—all things being equal, we would have.

The Nautilus' main battery switches were drawn yesterday, leaving in eerie darkness the craft in which, under flooding electric lights, for every minute during the last 12 months, men have worked and sweated or shivered with cold, hoping their efforts would be productive of useful scientific knowledge.

With her ventilators open and her hatches sealed except for weekly inspection, the Nautilus is turned over to the Bergen Steamship Company for care until the United States Shipping Board decides whether we will, by some means, have to return her to some Atlantic port or otherwise dispose of her.

EQUIPMENT REMOVED

For the last week, with the help of Norwegian Navy Yard officers and men, we have gone through the vessel from stem to stern, removing all special equipment supplied by the Wilkins-Ellsworth expedition, and which will suitably serve future Polar expeditions, whether by submarine or other modes.

The Geo-Phisike Institute of Bergen, kindly and with the customs authorities' permission, is storing free the food, clothing and equipment remaining from the Nautilus' voyage across the Atlantic, through the North Sea, and under the Arctic ice.

We gained considerable useful, hard-earned experience, and it was only through the generous and kind tolerance of my friend, Lincoln Ellsworth, and others associated with the expedition, that we had courage steadfastly to goad our vessel on, and in spite of all difficulties and dangers, pursue our course until the end of the season.

RESEARCH GATE OPENED

We have opened the gate leading to a field of extensive and important research; we have reached beneath the rugged, icy pavements to the polar cellars, collecting a handful of results.

I am well satisfied that the experience gained will make possible the construction of a submarine vessel reliably suited for Arctic service. The wealth of knowledge to be gained from the area about the Pole can hardly be collected unless the submarine is used. Some day, someone will collect it.

I am leaving the business of the expedition in the hands of Prof. Sverdrup, who has served us admirably in every way. I am leaving for London, and I hope to leave for New York toward the end of the week.

BOMB IMPERILS 50 CHILDREN AT SCHOOL

Denver Pupils and Theater Crowd Across Street Flee; Explosion Is One of Six

DENVER, Col., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Explosion of a group of bombs, one of which endangered the lives of 50 children in a church school, occupied the attention of police here today.

Six bombs in all were fired within a few hours of each other last night, resulting in the destruction of one home and a general panic in north Denver and two suburbs. The first three did no damage.

Police originally ascribed the first reported explosion in Valverde to small boys, but abandoned this theory after a terrific blast rocked the Holy Family Church, in North Denver.

CLUB MEMBERS FLEE

Fifty members of a church school club dashed, terrified, from the building. The blast stopped the motion picture machine in the Oriental Theater, across the street, and hundreds of theater patrons rushed for exits.

Mrs. Mary Jackson, who lives near the church, too, police she saw a "stout man" leave a car, walk up an alley behind the church school and run out later, a second before the explosion.

A few minutes later a bomb rocked a neighborhood a few blocks distant, shattering windows and knocking goods from store shelves for several blocks around.

FOURTH EXPLOSION

Police were investigating these explosions when a fuorth blast wrecked and set fire to a house owned by Custer Rand in Barnum, another suburb. Rand, who lived next door, could not be found after the explosion.

After the bombing of Rand's house, police and firemen learned of two other explosions in the sparsely settled suburb earlier in the evening which made a great noise but did no damage.

Thousands of persons stayed in the streets until daylight today, afraid to return to their homes. Police reserves were held in all stations and firemen on leave were recalled to duty as the city hunted for the bomb throwers.

CITY SEARCHED FOR ESCAPED CONVICT

Eludes Police After Leap From Window of Prison Train on North Side

State, county and city police today resumed their search for Arthur "Hunk" Ambrose, federal prisoner, who leaped to freedom through a train window last night in the Fort Wayne Station.

Ambrose, sentenced to a three-year term in Atlanta, following his conviction for a violation of the Mann act, forced a handcuff from the small wrist of a fellow prisoner and leaped through a train window as the locomotive slowed in the North Side station.

GENERAL ALARM

A. E. Holden, a deputy marshal conducting 21 prisoners from Erie to Pittsburgh, spread a general alarm as his search for the fugitive in the Pennsylvania railroad yards failed. Three city police patrols were scheduled to meet the prison train at the Pennsylvania station.

The missing handcuff of John Merriman, the prisoner to whom Ambrose was fastened, told the story of the prisoner's escape. Holden said he was forced to remain with other prisoners on the special train from Erie.

Ambrose, alias Robert Carnell, was arrested in the downtown recently by Walter Monagahan, city detective, in connection with the transportation of women from Ohio cities to Pittsburgh.

VISITS HOME

Of the 21 prisoners aboard the train, 11 were listed for terms in the county jail here. The others were to be taken to the federal prison at Atlanta, Ga.

The escape was quiet and did not affect the conduct of other prisoners. Ambrose, well known in North Side police circles, is believed to have sought refuge there.

Detectives dashed to the home of his father, Fred Ambrose, 1937 Perrysville avenue, and it was learned there that the fugitive had visited and departed from there after he had demanded and received $3 from his parent.

Irene Denies Beach Garb on Pigsty Visit

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin did not wear a yellow lace beach costume and yellow knit slippers when she visited the pigsty of William Schroeder, a Wheeling (Ill.) farmer whom she accused of being cruel to his pigs.

This was brought out during yesterday's hearing of Schroeder's appeal from a $10 fine assessed in a lower court of Mrs. McLaughlin's complaint that Schroeder didn't do right by his pigs.

The North Shore society woman and champion of friendless animals said in response to a question from Schroeder's attorney as to the kind of clothes she wore when she made her investigation of Schroeder's pigs:

"I wouldn't wear a costume like that to a dog fight, not that I approve of dog fights."

In fact, she wore overalls.

Schroeder denied his pigs got anything but the best of treatment. He described the food he gave them and said it would tempt the "most jaded pig appelite you ever saw."

Judge John Prystalski indicated there are cases he rather would hear than the McLaughlin-Schroeder feud. A jury is to decide Schroeder's fate. The worst punishment he can receive is a $200 fine.

JAPANESE GIRL IN CHORUS HERE

The only Japanese chorus girl on the American stage is making her bow to Pittsburgh audiences this week in "Crazy Quilt," New York production at the Alvin Theater.

Ruth Sato, 22, daughter of a wealthy Japanese importer, says:

"I went to Barnard College, studied to be a school teacher. So I became the only Japanese chorus girl in captivity."

Miss Sato married Gus X. Bac-So, who troups with her, 16 weeks ago. Bac-So spends his time watching rehearsals and performances. His father, Hungarian-born, who made a fortune in New York, forbade his two sons to work.

Miss Sato has been in the show business for nine years. Still little more than a girl, she says:

"I'll soon be indorsing advertisements, like Edna Wallace Hopper."

AKRON GROOMED FOR NEXT TEST

AKRON, O., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—The log of the U. S. S. Akron bore the record of its longest flight so far today as the giant Zeppelin was being groomed for the fifth of a series of test flights.

The Akron was up nine hours yesterday and last night for measurement of its turning radius.

Although it will be some time before results of the data are calculated, Read Admiral George C. Day, of the Naval Board of Inspection and Survey, said the flight was "very successful."

Officer Shoots Self During Strike Clash

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(INS.)—A policeman shot and wounded himself today during a clash between police and the 2,500 striking employes of the Loft Candy Company.

As four policemen on duty stood with their backs to the wall of the factory and with drawn guns ordered the strikers to disperse, Patrolman Edmund Church's gun went off, the bullet going through his index finger.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—(INS.)—Explosion of a dynamite bomb early today rocked the fashionable South Michigan avenue residential district, spreading panic among hundreds. Guests of hotels and occupants of apartment houses fled to the street.

The bomb damaged the front of a two-story building, housing an advertising carriers' agency. No injuries were reported.

Gay Hollywood So 'Pathetic' To Vicki Baum

By DOROTHY CROWLEY
International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 29.—Hollywood is—pathetic!

The handsomest men in the cinema capital are not actors, but waiters and chauffeurs.

Film stars are interesting on the screen, but in real life "they are all alike."

And as for the far-famed, well-dressed women of Hollywood — they are "terribly unsmart."

These startling observations on the film colony were made today by Vicki Baum, famed authoress, playwright and editor of the most popular women's magazine in Germany, who plans to leave Hollywood soon to return to her home in Germany.

In an exclusive interview with International News Service, Miss Baum revealed some of the ideas which she has formed about Hollywood during her three months' sojourn here, ideas by the way, which will soon be incorporated in a novel on the film industry.

Miss Baum said:

"Hollywood appears gay and sophisticated, yes, but that gaiety is worn to hide fear as a woman will toy with a fan to hide the trembling of her hands. Underneath, Hollywood is timid, uncertain, afraid—poignantly afraid of the world's laughter, of criticism, of being thought stupid."

'Depression Proof' Car Line Wins Prize

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 29.—(INS.)—The Milwaukee electric street railway, which is "depression proof," was declared winner today of the Charles A. Coffin award at the fiftieth annual convention of the American Electric Railway Association here.

Last year the railway increased its earnings $400,000, S. B. Way, president of the line, said that the work of making it "depression proof" began 10 years ago when it was faced with severe jitney and bus competition. Particular effort was made to make waiting and transferring easier and to reduce rates to regular patrons, he said.

GROTTO TEMPLE STONE LAID

Walter F. Weberg, monarch of Islam Grotto, presided at ceremonies accompanying the placing of the cornerstone of the new Grotto temple at 107 East Montgomery avenue last night. The new temple is to cost $300,000.

Councilman John Herron and Congressman Edmund F. Erk were the principal speakers. Dr. George Metzger was chairman. Following the ceremonies, members of the Grotto paraded to the Moose Temple, downtown, where an initiation service was held.

Grand Duchess Marie To Reach U. S. Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(INS.)—Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, business woman since the fall of the Czarist government brought her to live in the United States, was due in New York today following a trip to Europe.

Among other notables scheduled to arrive today from abroad were Ernest Hemingway, the author; Rosa Ponselle and Grace Moore, opera stars; Samuel Insull, public utilities magnate, and Burton Holmes, travel lecturer.

DOGS TOO COLD, CERMAK TOLD

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Chicago's new $70,000 home for homeless dogs and cats, which is equipped with private compartments and baths, hasn't been quite warm enough for the stray canines, in the opinion of President Charlotte M. Hunt, of the Humane Eductaion Society.

Mayor Anton J. Cermak gave her complaint some official recognition yesterday with the following statement:

"There is more heat and sanitation in the pound than in many Chicago homes. If women would get alarmed about children going without food and fuel this winter, they would be doing a better service. If the dogs are unhappy, they will complain, and you don't hear them yipping."

Policeman Killed Frustrating Holdup

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Patrolman Adolph Kreidler, 56, was killed last night as he frustrated a holdup on the upper deck of a motorbus here. Kreidler, a passenger, stood up and reached for his pistol.

The robber fired three shots, and escaped. Kreidler was not in uniform.

Dempsey Divorce Faces Supreme Court Test

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 29.—Estelle Taylor, the film actress, and Jack Dempsey, ex-heavyweight champion of the world, will be principals of a battle over the legality of Nevada divorces for six-week residents of that state, Joseph Scott, counsel for Miss Taylor, declared today.

Miss Taylor is currently in Reno obtaining a divorce from Miss Taylor and has filed suit in California to annul the divorce.

Scott announced he would go to the United States Supreme court, if necessary to set aside the Nevada divorce decision as worthless and invalid. He said:

"My contention is that Dempsey went to Nevada simply and solely for the purpose of going through the motions of obtaining a so-called residence of six weeks.

"I am not criticizing the Nevada Legislature. I presume if they want to make it six days' or six hours' residence, they could do so, so long as nobody objected to or contested the constitutionality of such a law.

"In my humble opinion, speaking from the ground of public policy, something will have to be done in the form of public opinion or otherwise to put a check to this system."

HUTTON RATED IDEAL MAN BY AIMEE

Evangelist Tells of Love Serenade, Engagement And Start of Elopement

Following is the second chapter in Aimee Semple McPherson's story of her romantic youth and marriage to David Hutton, the singer. Aimee has never found her ideal man and Hutton fills them all, she says.

By AIMEE SEMPLE McPHERSON
High Priestess of Angelus Temple, Los Angeles, Cal.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 29.—Long ago I formulated seven rules for an ideal husband. They were:

1.—He must have ideals and principles founded upon the word of God.

2—He must have a pleasant and even disposition.

3—He must have a good sense of humor.

4—He must have a record of accomplishment.

5—He must be everlastingly loyal and courageous.

6—He must have the same interests as mine, music and evangelism, a burning desire to carry the Word to the ends of the earth.

7—He must love me.

Dave seemed to be possessed of all these requisites of mine. And so I decided to accept him.

It was in the middle of August that I gave him my answer. He told me again that he loved me and I believed him.

He promised:

"Aimee, I will do everything in my power to make you happy."

He placed an engagement ring on my finger—a square-cut diamond mounted with baguettes and engraved, D to A.

DAVE IN SERENADE

Then he sang a song to me, a new song he had composed and dedicated to me. "My Faith in You." He sang it beautifully in that rich baritone voice of his. It began:

"Ever since the world began love has ruled supreme."

And as he finished, he looked into my eyes and sang:

"Just as matchless as your eyes, dear, that's my faith in you."

I was happy. Dave said he was happy. He wanted the marriage to be just as soon as possible. I cautioned, however, against too much haste.

For a month we talked over plans. Both of us prayed and beseeched the Lord for advice.

Finally we decided to be married secretly in Arizona, to avoid the three-day wait which is necessary in California between the time of applying for a marriage license and being granted one.

We wanted to escape the horde of newspaper reporters and photographers who hound my footsteps and make life very miserable for me at times although all in all I know they have been among my best friends, disconcerting and maddening but always generous and kind in the end.

AIMEE EXCITED

Dave and I thought it best to lose no more time. We would be married immediately. Our arrangements for the elopement were made Saturday afternoon, September 12. We planned to marry at dawn the next day, Sunday.

Of course I told my son Rolf and his wife of my intentions. I asked them if they wanted to come along. Did they? My boy said:

"I wouldn't miss it for the world."

I was so excited Saturday night that I hardly knew what I was doing.

When we—Dave and I—reached the airport to take the plane to Yuma, Ariz., about 400 miles from Los Angeles, I was shaking all over.

I was undecided for a moment whether to go on or not. But I glanced at Dave. He was so big and strong. I decided to go on.

I am still living the delightful romantic moments of that night airplane flight. We took off at 2:30 a. m.—my first plane ride in the dark. I was a little frightened.

In the plane also were my son, Rolf and his bride, Lorna—I married them last July. Miss Harriet Jordan, minister and director of our Angelus Temple, my secretary, Miss Emma Schaffer, and a newspaper reporter and cameraman "in" on our secret.

Rolf and Lorna read the Sunday funny papers. Dave and I were too excited to do anything much but look at each other.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Sun-Telegraph and Metropolitan Newspaper Service.)

Tomorrow: Aimee tells of her airplane marriage in Yuma.

M'BRIDE DENIES DRINK SLUR ON LEGION

Anti-Saloon League Leader Refutes Drunkenness Charge Made by Wilson

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29. (AP.)—The Rev. Dr. F. Scott McBride, general secretary of the Anti-Saloon League, here for a conference with dry leaders, denied charges made against the conduct of delegates to the American Legion convention in Detroit last week.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson of the Methodist Board of Prohibition, Temperance and Public Morals had said:

"Numbers of drunks disgraced the uniform and yelled for beer."

Dr. McBride said:

"There was noticeably little drinking and drunkenness during the convention."

Stevens Holds Disabled Relief Chief Problem

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Aside from possible activity over prohibition, the American Legion this year will devote its influence to rehabilitating disabled veterans, caring for soldiers' widows, educating their orphans, Americanizing aliens and assisting in the restoration of prosperity.

This program was announced today by National Commander Henry L. Stevens, chosen by the Detroit convention to head the organization of 1,100,000 World War veterans. Stevens declared he thought the rehabilitation of disabled veterans was the most important problem facing the Legion, particularly in the current period of economic depression.

Under Stevens, the Legion also will stress the equalization of war orphans' status, initiated by the Legion years ago. The problem now facing the Legion in this connection is to provide higher education for the orphans, since many of them are of college age.

WAR IN EAST FLARES ANEW

TOKIO, Sept. 29.—(INS.)—Ten Chinese soldiers were killed and one Japanese was wounded today in a clash between Chinese and Japanese troops at Kirin, 250 miles north of Mukden, according to advices received from military authorities in Manchuria.

The Kirin skirmish, indicating a possible renewal of hostilities in Manchuria as a result of the Japanese occupation, occurred when a detachment of Japanese encountered 500 Chinese soldiers who had strayed into the Japanese railway zone.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—The assurance of Japan that it would avoid further hostilities in Manchuria and China's demand for "full redress" from its island neighbor for the Manchurian invasion today laid before the American government.

160,000 Needy Found In New York City

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Of an estimated 750,000 unemployed persons in Greater New York at least 160,000 have reached the limit of their resources and need help, the Emergency Unemployment Relief Committee announced today.

The committee, which will shortly open a campaign to raise a $12,000,000 fund for emergency relief work, said that of the 160,000 in distress about 80,000 are heads of families.

Mystery Woman Gives Fur Coat To Poor Girl

CHARLEROI, Pa., Sept. 29.—A Charleroi woman, seeing a group of young girls entering the Associated Charities office for aid, brushed past the girls, entered the office and removed her expensive raccoon coat, She said:

"Give this to one of those girls. I couldn't eat my dinner tonight knowing they were in need."

Director of Closed Bank Dies in Garage

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—A few hours after he voted with other directors to close the Northern Central Trust Company, William E. Caveny, attorney, was found dead in his garage yesterday with the motor of his automobile running.

Authorities said Caveny had ended his life with gas fumes, but Walter Gabell, president of the bank, said there was no reason to connect his act with the affairs of the bank.

New Torch Murder Hinted in Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Hints of another torch murder in Washtenaw County today came to the attention of a one man grand jury investigating the activities of Catherine Keller, sweetheart of Fred Smith, one of three slayers now serving life sentences for the killing and burning of two young couples near here last August.

The information came to the prosecutor's office 10 days ago in a letter from David T. Blackstone, Negro, one of the torch slayers.

GIMBEL MONTH

...Begins Thursday

Silk is the lowest of all time!
Crude rubber lowest of all time!
Silver is the lowest of all time!
Tin is the lowest of all time!
Cotton is the lowest since 1899!
Wool is the lowest since 1914!
Iron and Steel lowest since 1915!
Leather is the lowest since 1916!
*Lumber is the lowest since 1917!

Thousands of thrilling values rushed from every corner of the globe . . . by rail, liner and plane . . . to make Gimbel Month, beginning Thursday, the most gigantic selling in the history of all retailing . . . the chance of a lifetime for you! Four great stores joined hands . . . searched the world . . . took the whole output of factories . . . worked night and day for three full months . . . and bought the things we knew you wanted . . . on the lowest commodity price level in 18 years!

In October, especially . . . Gimbels will not knowingly be undersold. For obvious reasons, some stores may try to undersell certain advertised articles. Gimbels will meet every price on merchandise of identical quality . . . prices shopped to be as low as the lowest in Pittsburgh.

And Gimbel Month prices will hold the whole month through . . . or as long as we can duplicate merchandise, with the exception of Spotlight super-values, priced for three days' selling. Thursday's your red letter day...your chance of a lifetime to buy.

TEXAN RENEWS DRIVE TO OUST MELLON

Patman Charges Business Ties Break Office Oath; Plans Impeachment Move

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—After accumulating data on Secretary Mellon all summer, Representative Patman (Dem.) of Texas has reiterated his intention of bringing impeachment proceedings against the Treasury head when congress convenes.

Citing a law that prohibits a Secretary of the Treasury from being directly or indirectly interested in trade or commerce, the Texan said Mr. Mellon had violated his oath of office. He said the Treasury head was a stockholder in the Aluminum Company of America and that he and his family controlled the Gulf Oil Corporation and the Koppers Company. Secretary Mellon declined to comment on the charges.

DECISIONS CITED

He pointed to a decision of the Treasury that a Supreme Court decision had held ownership of stock in a corporation to amount to being a secretary of the Treasury in conflict with the law which prohibits him from engaging in commerce.

President Coolidge, when Mellon had said he had severed all business connections when he became Secretary of the Treasury and had no part in management or the business of any corporation in which he owned stock, [illegible] Patman, who charged the company which owned ships under foreign registry, said the law provides that a Secretary of the Treasury shall not be the owner in whole or in part of any vessel.

CITES GULF OIL SHIPS

Patman [illegible] that the Koppers Company, controlled by Mellon, and associates was constructing a $5,000,000 steel mill and coke plant in the Ruhr district of Germany. He also said he had a seat on the Gulf Oil Corporation board and ships under foreign registry [illegible] benefits for seamen outlined in the American Merchant Marine act. Patman said:

"Mr. Mellon relinquished his position on the board of directors of the Aluminum Company, but as a stockholder he directs the board. His brother represents him."

Mellon Keeps Silence On Aluminum Pay Cut

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(INS)—The action of the Aluminum Company of America in reducing salaries and wages reached Secretary Mellon, a stockholder in that company, yesterday, but the Secretary declined to discuss it.

Friends of Secretary Mellon said that on entering the cabinet of President Harding in 1921 he retired from direct or indirect management in all of the large corporations with which he was associated. They declared Mellon was not responsible for what the officers or directors of the Aluminum Company did and that he had no advance knowledge of the wage cut.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, HAPPY PREMIERE!

FRANK R. PHILLIPS JAMES A. SIMPSON JOHN M. FROELICH

Birthday greetings for Mr. Simpson, director, and flowers and telephone calls for co-incidence had it that his birthday and the premiere at Duquesne Garden of his 1931 Radio-Electrical Show, now well underway, should fall on the same day and date.

P. R. R. ORDERS ENGINE PARTS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—(AP)—A $2,500,000 order for the construction of the chassis and mechanical parts of 60 electric freight locomotives has been announced by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The locomotives will constitute part of the equipment to be used when the Pennsylvania completes electrification project between Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore and Washington.

Thirty of the freight engines will be constructed by the Lima Locomotive Works at Lima, O., and by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company at East Pittsburgh, Pa., and 10 in the Pennsylvania Railroad shops at Altoona, Pa.

Electrical equipment for these locomotives and for 90 electric passenger engines was ordered in the spring from Westinghouse and General Electric at an approximate cost of $16,000,000. Chassis and mechanical parts for the 90 passenger engines cost $4,500,000. These were ordered several months ago.

World's Fair Seen As Inauguration Of Boom Era

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The 1933 World's Fair in Chicago will inaugurate 100 years of the greatest prosperity America ever has known, John R. Rogie, publisher of the Hartford Times, predicted.

Rogie said the depression is less serious than the public believes and that a period of unprecedented prosperity will have begun before January 1, 1933, when the World's Fair opens. Connecticut will be represented at the exposition with exhibits showing the state's contributions to the nation.

Disgruntled Mexican Farmers in Uprising

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 29.—(INS)—Groups of disgruntled Agrarians demonstrated against the government today at Chihuahua City, according to information received here.

WENDEL WILL SUIT STARTED

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP)—A battle for one of America's largest fortunes built up by the eccentric Wendel family and kept intact by them for generations, has been begun by an aged spinster of Vicksburg, Miss., who had always earned her own living and now says she has no means of support.

The fight for the estimated $75,000,000 estate, left principally to charity by the last of the Wendels, was started when Arthur Garfield Hays and Samuel Untermyer, two of New York's leading lawyers, entered suit in United States District Court on behalf of Rosa Dew Stansbury, 74, to break the will of the late Miss Ella Wendel.

The aged southerner charges undue influence and restraint were brought to bear upon Miss Wendel, who the complaint says, was not capable of drawing up a will.

BEAVER FRAUD JURY OUT

BEAVER, Pa., Sept. 29.—The case of H. Clay Sexton, public accountant, charged with fraudulent conversion of $100,000 belonging to the Beaver County society women, was given to the jury today.

The complainants are Mrs. Vivian B. Thompson, widow of Col. Joe Thompson, World War hero, and Mrs. Jean F. Dawson, of Patterson Heights.

Judge William A. McConnell overruled a motion of defense counsel to quash the charges against Sexton on the ground that they were outlawed by the statute of limitations two years in Mississippi.

The point also was made that the case should have been tried in Beaver County, this state, where Sexton's alleged offense was committed in 1928, at the time of misappropriations charged, and not February, when an indictment was demanded.

Harris Foresees Roosevelt Victory

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Prediction was made yesterday by Senator Harris, Democrat, Ga., that Gov. Roosevelt of New York would be nominated for President by the Democrats on the first ballot at the next convention and would be elected. The Georgian returned last week with the New York Governor as he returned through Albany to Washington from a vacation trip.

CLASH ON JURY IN POISON CASE

LEBANON, Ind., Sept. 29.—(AP)—The tedious process of selecting a jury to hear the first degree murder trial of Mrs. Carrie Simmons, charged with poisoning her two daughters, was continued in Boone Circuit Court today.

Defense attorneys objected to the state's asking prospective jurors whether they were opposed to capital punishment, contending the jury's only charge would be to determine the defendant's guilt or innocence.

Dismissal of 14 talesmen who expressed aversion to capital punishment, however, was taken by some observers as indication the extreme penalty would be asked.

Mrs. Simmons is being tried for the murder of her younger daughter, Alice Jean, 16, who died, the state charges, from poison inserted in sandwiches by her mother and eaten by Alice Jean at a family reunion picnic here last June 21. Virginia, a 14-year-old daughter, also died from poisoning.

One Dead, One Hurt In Road Dispute

WESTMINSTER, Md., Sept. 29.—(AP)—One man was shot and killed and another wounded in a dispute over a roadway at Silver Run, near the Pennsylvania line, late last night. Herman Copenhaver, 29, was killed and Roger Leppo, 22, is in the hospital at Hanover, Pa.

Irvin Miller, charged with the shooting, Edward Flickinger and 16-year-old Wilmer Eib are in the Carroll County Jail here.

is very important just now about attacks on value and prosperity generally would be a good deal sauder.

MAHATMA GANDHI, who according to Mr. Bug, Barr is showing the ex-dressed man what he can knock off as idealistic and practical. If England will do what he wants Gandhi will allow mail-fatigued cotton goods to enter India from Lancashire mill.

He would trade a business monopoly for freedom, which is in keeping with modern methods, Russia trading gasoline for rattle in South America, Uncle Sam trading wheat for coffee in Brazil.

THOSE INTERESTED in the cement industry should know that ingenious manipulation of New York City's new building code has planned would prevent the use of cement bricks and blocks, a shout adding anything to safety.

The clay brick makers are also interested for if they can exclude cement bricks and blocks from competition it will be easy for them to increase the price of bricks and add to the cost of building.

These Two Stores Made History For McCann's This Year » » »

September 23rd was the first birthday anniversary of our East End Store.

October 23rd will mark the opening (a year ago) of our new Downtown Store

Looking backward through the year's achievements, we find many things to make this a happy anniversary season.

McCann's continues to do the unusual!

Here are some unusual records to prove it!

Last Christmas 138,014 pounds of McCann turkeys graced Christmas dinner tables.

And 7 carloads of McCann Christmas Trees brought cheer to Pittsburgh homes.

We set a new butter record the week of January 19th. 1283 tubs or 83,395 pounds of butter were sold.

1,137,915 pounds of coffee were roasted on our premises and sold in our two stores the past year.

42,720 dozens of fresh eggs were sold last Easter week . . . each egg tested for quality.

On July 23rd, 5200 pounds of fresh mackerel were sold in our fish department.

7000 McCann watermelons helped Pittsburghers celebrate the Fourth of July.

185,250 pounds of ham . . . 6½ carloads set a new record for ham sales last Easter.

Join with us in celebrating the birthdays of the two new stores and fifty-eight years of continuous service in supplying Pittsburgh with quality foods.

Read our anniversary advertisement tomorrow and every day in October. Values will be worthwhile. McCann quality never changes.

More than 750 delegates are expected to attend the silver jubilee convention of the Illuminating Engineering Society to be held in William Penn Hotel October 13 to 16. Aviation lighting will be one of the principal topics of the convention.

Speakers will include James Francis Burke, William F. Little of New York, president of the organization; Frank R. Phillips, president of the Philadelphia Company; A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company; H. B. Meller, Mary E. Warga and C. W. Thomas.

The annual banquet will be broadcast by station KDKA.

Announce Routes To World's Series

The Pittsburgh Motor Club today recommended that baseball fans who drive to St. Louis for the opening World Series games use U. S. Route 22 to Cambridge, O., and U. S. Route 40 from that point to St. Louis. The route leads through Columbus, Indianapolis and Terre Haute and is 602 miles.

Mah Entering Home Held Up By Youth

As he was about to enter the front door of his home last night, Harry Hertel, of 1250 Park street, McKeesport, was held up by a young man armed with a revolver and robbed of $8, he reported to police.

Lenore Ulric Very Clever As a Chorus Girl But Oh, So Dumb

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Since there is nothing new under the sun, the time has come to turn the old things inside out and upside down to make them look different. That seems to be the recipe for "The Social Register," the new comedy John Emerson and Anita Loos have built around Lenore Ulric. She has gone in for selfish sisters—so now she is made a sort of little mother to three dogs a canary, some goldfish and a saxophone player. She has gone sweltered in tropical passions, so now she sprinkles the stage with heresy quips from the "New Yorker." The turning inside out does not stop with Miss Ulric's role. Miss Loos turns her own clever self inside out to mass her into a bright ornament of the chorus, a mixture of Florence Nightingale and Zoe Akins.

George Seibel

The result was that the large and keen audience at the Nixon Theater last night was entertained—but it is doubtful if they were convinced. It is hard to believe that the same girl can be as dumb as Patsy Shaw and as clever as Patsy Shaw. It is hard to believe that even the ultra aristocratic snobs of Manhattan could be as deadly dull as Charlie Breese's family and as despicably smart as that same family when it comes to outwitting Patsy.

"Facts and Figures," burlesque at the Academy, presents the facts in the form of comedy scenes, while the figures are those of the leading women and choruines. Charles Red Marshall heads the first section. Features with him are Edna Dee, redheaded dancer, and Nita Ford, blues singer. Others in the cast are Murray Lincoln, best straight man; Alec Myers, soubret; John Cross, "fall guy"; Charlie's Buzz dancer, and Rae Le Anse, soubret.

Plays, Players and By-Play — By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The five-day week of which we have heard much recently will be in force in the Nixon beginning next Chewsday and continuing for, of all things, five days. East Wind will blow in for its world's premiere Stage-setting and dress-rehearsing will wear out Monduh. East Wind is Schwab & Mandel's new musical that they hope will be a successor to New Moon and their other hits. Sig Romberg did the notes and Frank Mandel and Oscar Hammerstein II are the bookers.

Small Timer says he always wears golf sox—nine holes each.

Giving Ha-Hallywood the ha-ha, "Once In a Lifetime" will come to the Alvin next week to exude satirical sap about the making of movies. Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman are the writers of what the press agent terms the "foibles and extravagances" of the motion picture capital. Sam H. Harris, the producer is sending the big company that played more than 400 puffawmances in N'Yawk, including Jean Dixon, Hugh O'Connell, Grant Mills and nearly two-score others.

Small Timer opines that Europe is going to cash in on the silver lining of the cloud of depression.

May Robson will open next Monday in Los Angeles in a revival of "Her Night Out," which she helped to author. Jane Cowl in Camille revised to remove archaic asides is emoting Los this week. The first of the subscription series of plays that of the Professional Players will be Mrs. Moonlight in the Alvin, Monday week.

Small Timer says this face-painting business was begun by the Indian, and not the squaw, but see what's happened to it!

'Crazy Quilt,' in Alvin, Has Audience Laughing Its Head Off

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Billy Rose's "Crazy Quilt" came to the Alvin last night, headed, as the extremely modest press agent would (even did) have it, by "the transcendent stellar triumvirate of the amusement firmament," Fannie Brice, Phil Baker and Ted Healy. It was the beginning of the season for the stellar triumvirate and their cohorts, and was presented with the claim of being a mixture of Mr. Rose's two New York hits, "Sweet and Low," and "Crazy Quilt," with the addition of new material. As to the latter we cannot say, but, certainly, the adjective cannot refer to the profanity and dirt that make up much of the comedy, for such things are not new, even though humorous.

Be that as it may, ribaldry can be presented so coated with novelty and surprise and boldness and ridiculousness that it can be the basis of a great deal of merriment and such was the case last night when the audience laughed its head off, as the saying is, at the very rawness of the japeries of Baker and Healy and the suggestive postures of Miss Brice when she appeared in a travesty on "Strictly Dishonorable," titled "Strictly Unbearable," Baker caricaturing the opera singer.

Now that you have the low-down accent on the love, it is time to report that it as as lively a show as one could wish for dirty but clever, with most of the things we expect of revues, such as fun, dancing, novelty. It is pleasing in the matter of songs intriguing in the matter of stepping and revealing in the unexpected, the fact that Mr. Rose is just as good a picker of good-looking girls as either the celebrated Mr. Ziegfeld or the notorious Mr. Carroll. The ensemble is extremely well endowed with beauty and knows well how to handle its multitude of feet.

There is a bit of news to be given out. Mr. Healy has an entirely new set of men, but they are made to look as much like his old gang as possible. Mr. Baker, however, has his veteran tormentor in the balcony box, and he continues to know all the answers. One of the hits, as always. Another bit of news is that Mr. Healy sang "Straight, not burlesque, I Found a Million Dollar Baby." Not bad, not bad.

Miss Brice found a happy reception for her songs "Rest Room Rosie," "I Want to Do a Number With the Boys," comic, and "When Your Boy Becomes a Man," ballad. She also did her old swan dance burlesque (more to the delight of the audience). She revived "My Man," too.

Lew Brice and Vale and Stewart appeared in some stepping numbers that called for applause, but the dancing honors of the evening went easily to Gomez and Winona, who appeared in several beautifully graceful specialities, the high-light of which was "El Bolero," a combination of dance, music and lighting that was most effective. Mr. Baker played the accordion for this number, one of the best of the evening.

All in all, it is a good show for anybody not too thin-skinned.

'The Viking' Is Davis Movie

"The Viking," a drama of Newfoundland, opened yesterday on the Davis screen. It is said to have been photographed on the actual locale of its story and, in fairness, we say that it has all the ice marks that this is so.

The picture may be associated with the disaster that befell the sealing steamship Viking which was spread all over the front pages not so long ago and which cost the lives of Varick Frissell and 25 other men. This party was aboard the Viking, making "retakes" for the current film, when the accident occurred.

The dramatic story of the picture is of the standard of "barnstorming" days. But in its scenic elements and in its depiction of a seal hunt it builds up interest. You see a steamer, imprisoned by ice, and you see hundreds of men leaping from ice cake to ice cake. And you see a herd of seals, hundreds of seals.

The film is weak on technique, and though the seal hunt and all are the real thing, the element of reality is confused by its weak and romantic story.

Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, author and explorer, appears in a prologue to the film.

The idea that the picture is a monument or something to the men who died in the Viking disaster is quite beautiful. But it seems they're entitled to a finer monument. The thought persists that the backers of this picture are capitalizing on a sad disaster to put over a picture that otherwise wouldn't go over.

Sing of Love On Rhine In Film

By MILDRED FILLMORE.

There is a river called the Rhine flowing past some of the loveliest scenery in the world, and associated with romance, song and wine. This week it flows through the new Avenue Cinema on Liberty street near Seventh, where a picture called "Rheinland-Maedel" is the feature. It is another one of those German films with entrancing melodies and foaming steins and a tender love story.

Of course they sing "Die Lorelei," but the theme song is a ballad announcing that no girl will prove an acceptable bride unless she was born on the banks of the Rhine. It is a catchy and singable ditty, and the four girls in the picture make it sound very reasonable.

STUDENTS AT BONN

Bonn, the city of Beethoven, and Cologne, where the perfume comes from, are the scenes of the romance. The four girls are students at the University and go to the carnival. There Lore meets Hans, and they fall in love, but part when the carnival is over.

When the girls return to Bonn and find their funds running low, they organize a quartet which furnishes music in a beer-garden. In the scenes that follow, it is easy to trace the depraving influence of the foamy lager. Those Germans sing their entire repertoire, and would be singing yet if it had not been necessary to bring the romance to a happy ending.

RHINE JOURNEY

There is a Rhine journey, past frowning castles and the mighty Loreley. Then the father of Hans, one of those wealthy and important persons known as a "Geheimrat," tries to buy off Lore. Everybody knows what a real heroine will do, especially one born beside the Rhine! Lore does it.

Here is a lovely picture full of sweet sentiment and rich melody. Gretl Berndt as Lore and Warner Futterer as Hans fit perfectly into the story. Lucie Englisch makes a delightful Viennese maiden, while Trude Berliner and Ilse Nast are the other members of the charming quartet.

This is the best picture yet in this new cinema, and the other features are also fine, especially the story of Bizet and his Carmen.

A Consistent Fellow Is Mr. Fu

By CLARENCE E. GEUNDISH

Fu Manchu will get you if you don't watch out. Or, if he doesn't, his daughter will. And this will be worse. Fu Manchu might put poison in your favorite pipe tobacco. But Fu's little girl—she'll burn your face with acid and stick a knife into you.

The Fu family, with the spirit of revenge ever alive, is active again, this time in the Warner. The picture is titled "The Daughter of the Dragon," and it is based on Sax Rohmer's "The Daughter of Fu Manchu."

If you like fantastic melodrama, here's one that may keep you popped on the edge of your seat.

HOLLYWOOD GHOSTS

By the time the finale is reached the Fu family is wiped off the face of the screen and everything becomes safe and sane again. At least, it seems so. But once before we thought Mr. Fu was a dead one. However, Hollywood has a way of bringing back the ghosts. We're making no bets that Fu and daughter really are dead.

Warner Oland once more portrays Fu. And you couldn't find a better one for the job in all Hollywood. Anna May Wong, talented Chinese actress, is seen as the daughter. Here is a woman who has the emotional depth of her Chinese background, but who moves with the studied grace of a Sewickley debutante.

A CONSISTENT FELLOW

Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese actor, who hasn't been on the American screen in years, has a prominent spot. He's a detective and it is his lot to kill, for duty's sake, the girl he loves.

The scene of this one is London, and the plot continues Fu's efforts to exterminate the Petrie family. You recall the Petrie family, of course. It was the old gentleman of the family, a general, whom Fu held responsible for the death of several of his illustrious ancestors. So he swore to kill off all the Petries. And he's been consistently at it ever since.

A 'put a Man Named Adam

MEET ADAM. You'll find him a nice enough man. He never talked back to his mother and he never robbed a bank. He was just the average person, I suppose, with the possible exception of the fact that he didn't think he could write a good play. For that reason alone I am compelled to bow low in his direction.

Adam did, however, have one very definite objective in life. His mind fastened itself on that objective almost as early as the first day he tossed his bottle out of the crib. As he grew and struggled on through life he never lost sight of that objective. His aim was a very simple one. He wanted to go around the world. Nothing more, nothing less.

Keep that little fact tucked in your mind as we go back and take over Adam went to work. His folks look at Adam when he had father had died a short time before reached the tender age of 12. He'dore leaving little behind except told his father that he was tired some good memories and some bad of school and would like very dearly. His widow was alone in much to go to sea as a cabin boy, the world and as a dutiful son or something equally distasteful. I was up to Adam to support her. His father's immediate reply was to the best of his ability. This to throw all magazines out of the of course, he did house and send his son to bed. That 'round-the-world craving

Adam cried that night as he though had not left him by any had never cried before. The spirit matter of means. As a matter of of adventure was high within him fact, the urge was now stronger. And when sleep finally came, he than ever within him. And after dreamed contentedly of being the he had been working and prosperleader of a million painted savages, first his mother for a couple animals who warred on just such of years, he had a secret desire (grants as his father.

When [illegible] see more [illegible] her [illegible]

I've got a different ambition from most fellows. Other chaps speak about getting married and things like that. I'm not built that way. I want to travel.

Look, mom. I guess I won't be able to go around the world for a few years yet, but you can take your son's word for it that he's going some day. I've been looking over all the pamphlets and booklets from the steamship companies and I figure that I can do it easily on $2,000. You know how I mean. Not living too high and things like that.

I'd like you to save a little money for me each week, mom. If it's only a couple of dollars or so that'll be something. Those dollars mount up. And before I know it I'll be able to make the trip that I'm absolutely going to take before I die.

Gee, mom. Around the world! Doesn't that sound swell to you?

His mother nodded.

"I sure does, Adam," she replied. "I'll do my best to save for you.

* * *

Adam hit 40 without getting any closer to a round-the-world trip than four vacations in Atlantic City and a honeymoon at Niagara Falls. His mother had died five years before and left him some savings and insurance money that might have been sufficient for the trip. But there was a new hitch now. Adam had fallen in love.

The woman was a widow with two children. He had been seeing her frequently for several years and he had grown very fond of her. After his mother had gone on the longest of all trips her son felt terribly lonesome.

He examined the bank book. Yes, he would take that journey around the world and achieve his ambition. But what would happen upon his return? His job would be gone and the bank book would be nothing but a memory.

On the other hand there was the widow. He didn't like those two children, and the dislike he suspected was quite mutual. But he was lonesome and the woman would provide him with companionship and a comfortable home. Wouldn't it be better to marry her and take his trip at some future date? After all, he was still a young man.

And that's how it happened that Mr. and Mrs. Adam had that honeymoon at Niagara Falls.

At the age of 55 Adam was a day watchman in one of those huge office buildings on the East Side of New York. His job was simple—and very boring. He had a desk at the end of a long corridor and it was his duty to see that nobody walked past his desk without being announced. The job and the desk had both been instituted when the boss' wife walked down that corridor and into his office without being announced.

Adam was lonely now. More so, I'm sure, than he had ever been in his life. That marriage of his had turned out to be an unfortunate affair. His wife had done nothing but nag him. Her children had found a strange delight in torturing him. Because he lacked the initiative to do anything about it, he had lived on with the woman until the day that her two sons came to the house and took her away. He hadn't seen her since.

He brooded now. Day after day, he sat back in his chair and surveyed his life. What had he accomplished? What had he done? The one thing he craved was now an utter impossibility. That trip around the world was not for him. He could go now, because he was free. But he was free without money. And when you're 55 being free without money doesn't offer quite the same romance as it might 30 years before.

The mail clerk stopped at his desk one afternoon and handed him a letter. Adam regarded it curiously. The envelope held a foreign stamp. He tore it open. He read. He rubbed his eyes. He read again. He shook his head. He read once more.

It was all true. Some six months before Adam had bought a ticket in a lottery. His number had won a prize. One of the big prizes. The letter told him he was entitled to $10,000.

Ten thousand dollars! To Adam, a fantastic sum! He stood up. He tried to cry out with joy. His mouth opened wide. A strange expression came over his face. He clutched at his heart. He fell.

Two patrolmen were summoned from the street. One patrolman was middle-aged, the other very young. One called an ambulance. While they waited, they looked down at the body of Adam.

"Poor old guy," mused the middle-aged cop. "Winning that $10,000 was too much of a shock for him. Wish I had that dough. What I wouldn't be able to do for the wife and kids!"

The young patrolman shook his head.

"If I won it," he cried enthusiastically, "I wouldn't bother about any wife and kids. My ambition is different. I'd run right over to a steamship agency and get me a trip around the world!" . . .

COUNCIL TO ACT ON $11,300 JOBS

Public works projects totaling $11,300, in line with the city's autumn improvement program, were to be acted upon today by Council's committee on finance. Chairman W. N. English said.

Included is an appropriation of $5,800 for regrading, repairing and resurface of the north shoulder of Seventh avenue from William Penn way to Grant street. This improvement is in connection with the changes made necessary in paving by erection of the new Gulf Refining Company Building at Seventh avenue and Grant street.

Other projects are: Construction of catch basins in the Superior avenue drainage basin area, $4,000, and erection of a sewer on the north side of Fifth avenue near Wilkins avenue.

Ask Modern Lights On Olivant Street

Possibility of holdups and accidents due to inadequate gas lighting on Olivant street, Twelfth Ward, was stressed by residents in a petition to Council asking electric street lamps.

Council's committee on public safety was to discuss the request today.

PLAN WAGE CUT IN MINE WAR

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Sept. 29.—(INS)—Keenest competition between union and non-union mines in District No. 31, United Mine Workers of America, was foreseen today in the wake of a special convention of miners from the district who voted to meet competition from non-union collieries by accepting a wage cut. Four hundred delegates, representing 80 locals, attended the convention and overwhelmingly approved the plan.

No definite scale of wage cuts was announced, but leaders of the union today prepared to confer with operators of union mines on the matter and it was expected the scale of reductions will be decided upon in a short time.

After three hours of discussion, the convention adopted a report empowering officers of the union and a wage scale committee "to negotiate such wage scales as will allow the union mines to operate and place their coal on the market in competition with the non-union operators who are responsible for this vicious cut-throat competition."

'LONE ROBBER' AGAIN ACTIVE

Swissvale's "lone robber" was again heard from last night when he was scared away from the cellar of an apartment house at 7341 Denniston avenue, in which he had gained entrance by forcing the rear door of the building. Police received the report this morning that he had stolen 30 chickens from the coop owned by Mrs. Larry L. Denniston, 7390 Denniston avenue.

More than 30 robberies, which occurred in the last two months are blamed on the lone robber.

The "lone robber" had been seen several times and chased on various occasions.

Educator Terms Whistling Sure Sign of Moron

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Whistling is termed by Prof. Charles Gray Shaw, of New York University, "the unmistakable sign of the moron," he said.

"We might call it a part of a person's 'defense mechanism.' After he has set up his psychological barricade of sullenness, he sounds a note of war in his foolish whistling. He resolves not to care. He's right, and the world's wrong.

"There may be all sorts of tests for low mentality but most of us shun them. A sure sign of the thing psychologists are after is found in the act of whistling."

Some of the trend toward whistling, he said, can be traced to the business depression.

Steamship Speeds To Crippled Liner

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The Munson Steamship Company announced today its liner Munrio has been dispatched from Kingston, Jamaica to take the disabled Gulf Mail liner Contoy in tow. The Contoy has a broken crankshaft and is about 480 miles from the Bahamas and 900 miles from New York.

The Contoy, en route from the Windward Islands to New York, is carrying eight passengers and a crew of 33.

Many Hurt in Gang Riot at Dance Hall

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—(INS)—One youth lay wounded and scores of others were nursing bruises and cuts today as a result of a near riot at a dance here. The disturbance ensued, police declared, when a rival "gang" attempted to "crash" the dance.

MORE ANDREE RELICS FOUND

OSLO, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Additional discoveries at the last camp of the Arctic balloon expedition of Prof. Salomon Andree on White Island were reported today.

Gustav Doebler, a restaurant manager, said a ship on which he was acting as chef this summer stopped at the island for two hours and that he and other passengers visited Andree's camp. They found a small camera, a knitted cap, a windproof cap and a small human bone.

Doebler said they saw the skin of a polar bear, which they believed the explorers had killed and partly eaten and expressed the opinion other articles could be found.

Awards in Safety Contest Thursday

Representatives of more than 200 industries will meet Thursday night in the City Council chamber when awards will be made to winners in the first inter-plant safety contest staged by the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council. E. F. Blang, chairman of the contest committee, will preside. Speakers will be George H. McClain, H. F. Webb and C. E. Ralston.

Einstein Will Sail For U. S. Via Panama

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Prof. Albert Einstein has booked passage to the United States for himself and Frau Einstein. They will sail on a small steamer, the name of which was not disclosed, and proceed directly to California, via the Panama Canal. He said he might sail from New York on the return voyage.

2nd Parachute Saves Greensburg Airman

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Sept. 29.—(AP)—When his parachute failed to open, Chilly Thomas, Greensburg, Pa., aerial stunt performer, dropped 1,800 feet before several thousand persons watching the closing program of a tri-state air meet here late yesterday. Thomas' emergency chute opened 200 feet from the ground and he landed smiling.

Queen Marie Buys Radio Set at Show

BUCHAREST, Sept. 29.—(Universal)—Dowager Queen Marie, greatly improved in health, attended the gigantic radio show here and purchased an American receiving set. The set will be installed in Balcic Castle, for which place Queen Marie is en route for a prescribed period of complete rest and recuperation.

U. S. FLIERS SET TO HOP PACIFIC

SAMUSHIRO, Japan, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr., American aviators, flew here from Tachikawa Airdrome, near Tokio, today and set about preparing their big monoplane for a nonstop flight to the United States.

They will be ineligible for the $25,000 prize offer of Seattle business men for a nonstop flight from Tokio to the Puget Sound city because of their decision to start from Samushiro 375 miles from the capital.

8 HURT IN FALL OF BUILDING

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The roof and rear wall of a tenement being renovated at Second avenue and Thirteenth street collapsed today, and eight workmen were injured, two seriously.

While ambulance surgeons cared for the injured efforts of police and fire department rescue squads were centered upon the rescue of a man buried in the debris except for his head and shoulders. He was taken out of the debris after nearly an hour.

The collapse occurred shortly after 9 o'clock, just as the men, gathered on the ground floor, were about to begin their day's work. About 12 workmen were in the building, but several escaped, warned by the noise as the bricks and timbers crashed through the upper floors.

TALBOT DIVORCE RECORD FALLS

DAYTON, O., Sept. 29.—(INS)—The boast of Mrs. Harry Ellsner Talbott, internationally famed "godmother" of musical proteges, that none of her children had ever been involved in divorce entanglements, was broken today.

A suit in the county clerk's office here reveals that Lillian Talbott Hilton, daughter of the famous dowager, has come to the parting of the ways with her husband, Albert B. Hilton, Jr., of New York, wealthy manufacturer, financier, clubman and polo player.

The sole charge of neglect of duty is made in the divorce petition, and besides a decree, Mrs. Hilton asks the custody of her two children, Katherine Talbott Hilton, 13, and Albert B. Hilton IV, 9, both of whom are now living in New York.

JOBS SURVEY CHIEF HOPEFUL

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Harry A. Wheeler, chairman of a committee appointed by President Herbert Hoover to consider plans for unemployment relief, reviewed the situation optimistically today following the first meeting of the committee yesterday.

The initial meeting was a hopeful one, he said, adding:

"I see the picture, industry from a matter of enlightened selfishness, if nothing else, is straining every energy to keep organizations together and keep on functioning. Labor does not blame industry, admitting that industry is doing all it can. Their interests are identical. Public officials are anxious to have things straightened out."

McAdoo Syndicate Receiver Appointed

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(INS)—The Guaranty Trust Company today was acting as a Federal Court-appointed equity receiver for a real estate syndicate headed by William Gibbs McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury; Harry H. Cotton, of Los Angeles, and Joseph P. Day, New York realtor.

The application for a receiver was made by McAdoo and Cotton in a friendly action against Day. The syndicate had contracted to pay $5,000,000 for 78 acres in Queens borough, and according to the petition, is now a victim of the business depression.

Ohio College Student, Hurt in Brawl, Dies

UHRICHSVILLE, O., Sept. 29.—John Gooding, 18, of Uhrichsville, an Ohio University freshman, died in a rooming house in Athens from a fractured skull received Saturday night in a fight with an Athens garage employe. The garageman, named Robinson, was called to remove the ditched automobile in which Gooding and six friends had been riding. They fought over a $6 charge. Robinson is being held in Athens County Jail at Athens on a manslaughter charge.

Former Steel Man Dies at Wheeling

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 29.—W. H. Wiethe, 64, for many years superintendent of the Belmont plant of the Wheeling Steel Corporation, died at his home here last night following a brief illness.

Frank & Seder Twenty-Third Anniversary Comes When Pittsburgh Desires Every Dollar To Do It's Utmost!

It is true that market conditions have made it possible to secure the most extraordinary values for our customers for this sale. . .But we have had something more than market conditions . . . There is something magic about an Anniversary, to which manufacturers respond by making genuine sacrifices, in order to show their goodwill and appreciation of the patronage they enjoy from us. In many, many cases they have gone far beyond what we had any right to expect in cutting down costs to us—and we in turn have gone the limit in cutting down our prices to you.

That is why we can confidently say that never in all the 23 years of business existence have such values been offered to Pittsburgh.

You will find not alone a sensational price appeal but a quality appeal as well in this greatest Anniversary Sale in all our history... All new, fresh, fashionable Fall and Winter merchandise, assembled from the most representative makers in the United States. . .and priced lower than you ever dreamed possible, even in this era of low prices!

Pittsburgh Has Never Known Such a Sale!

Begins Thursday!

KQV Off AIR Temporarily

An attempt to operate the KQV transmitter after the unfortunate accident last night when a steam pipe burst in the control room would result in a short circuit of the apparatus, Jack Buchbert, manager of the station said today. KQV therefore will remain off the air this afternoon and tonight. If the transmitter is in working condition tomorrow morning KQV will resume operation. The accident was indeed a blow for KQV, the new transmitter having been installed recently at a cost of $25,000.

UNIONTOWN goes network at 4 o'clock this afternoon with the broadcasting of ground breaking exercises for a monument to dedicate old Fort Necessity, where Gen. Washington defeated the French and Indians years ago. KDKA is to feed the blue network of NBC. Walter Winchell introduces Irene Bordoni as his guest on WJAS at 8:45. Irene received quite a welcome from Europe, is to sing "Dance." Ben Bernie, the old maestro, WJAS shifts to 9 o'clock tonight. KDKA has a monopoly on splendid features in the Don Voorhees-Lois Bennett setup at 8 o'clock. Alice Mock and Robert Ringling doing the beautiful Meditation from Thais at 9 o'clock and Eva G. Cunningham with Frederick G. Rogers from the Radio-Electrical Show at 8:30.

Question a Day:

Are local stations permitted to charge on network features that are not paid for by a sponsor? I believe it is a very poor practice, particularly with Bing Crosby's period. E. F. R. City.

Answer—You mean sustaining programs? Yes and no. The practice of "cutting" network programs to make short local announcements does not please networks, but there is hardly anything that can be done about it to stop local stations because they pay for the feature. If you dislike the practice, write the station a letter.

Tex Guinan wants paid for any broadcasting she may do while in the city on Wednesday, October 7.

Big Bill Farren needs a secretary with a flood of public appearances every week in addition to his sport broadcasts. . . . Wednesday he talks to the Schenley High School student body . . . and Saturday Bill has to cancel two dinner engagements to announce Graham McNamee at the Radio-Electric Show in Duquesne Garden.

Irene Franklin, who made a tremendous hit in "Sweet Adeline" some years ago, has been signed for CBS-WJAS on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 7:15, starting October 5. . . .

W. F. Moon Run: Members of the local Revelers Quartet are Gene Baldridge, Dick Fulton, Reed Kennedy, Russell Mitchell and Aneurin Bodycombe. . . . Zoel Parenteau is responsible for those clever dance and symphonic arrangements at KDKA.

Changing of time and its subsequent muddling of programs, robs Pittsburgh of the National Virtuosos, directed by Alfred Wallenstein . . . but you may hear them on WEAF, WTIC, WGY or WTAM at 8:30 tonight.

From the amount of comment we heard yesterday, the Classic Series must have clicked beautifully Sunday with Rudolf Friml, Richard Bonelli and Nanette Guilford . . . perhaps presenting this feature but once a month will elevate its appreciation.

Coincident — "Jim" Simpson celebrated his 42d birthday yesterday at the opening of his sixth annual radio-electric show in Duquesne Garden.

Charles H. Joseph, famous humorist is to talk on KDKA at 6:15 tomorrow night; his subject, "Get Your Face Lifted," dealing with the present economic situation in a humorous way.

Slumber Man

MILTON J. CROSS

NBC's famous diction medal winner, Milton J. Cross, will sing his "Slumber On" song at the Radio-Electrical Show in Duquesne Garden this afternoon and tonight. "Slumber On" is the official signature for Ludwig Laurier's Slumber Music Period on NBC.

THE LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—We're right back at it, Jenkins, right back in the New Yorker. Can't get away from there. Can't get away from the filet mignon. Filet mignon served up hot with radio stars and jazz bands. Only this time they're from another broadcasting camp.

Columbia stages its parade. Nice rivalry in radio, Jenkins. The kind of rivalry that makes for the betterment of broadcasting. Prevents self-satisfaction, y'know, keeps money in circulation, finds more work for those who can sing a love song, tell an adventure story.

Still the rivalry exacts its toll. Keeps radio scribblers on edge—the ragged edge, if you ask me. So considerate of you, Jenkins, to think of the bromide and the bicarbonate. So much banquet food, so much wear and tear on the nerves. Here we are receiving the bows of stars. The stars may curse under their breath at the business of bowing, but they manage to bow, and always from the waist and with such apparent sincerity.

It's hard to keep from making comparisons of the broadcasting competitors. Scarcely has the ceremonial hall been cleared of Johnstone's army of NBC entertainers than Butcher moves in with his Columbia parade.

No one seems missing. Butcher must have used his most commanding voice to corral them all. Do our eyes and ears deceive us? Can it really be Aunt Jemima shouting the ballads of Broadway to the tum-tee-tum accompaniment of the Abe Lyman? Evidently this vaudevillian with the knack of putting over a hot tune is flirting with the broadcasters, for here she is warbling in her familiar manner. . . . What a horde of warblers. Columbia is well supplied with them. Moreover, it has been unusually successful with them, beginning with Downey, ending, so far, with Crosby.

U. S. Again Tries To Sell Mayflower

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29—(Universal)—The former presidential yacht Mayflower was put up for sale again by the Navy Department. Sealed bids for the old craft will be opened October 15. The purchaser must agree to scrap her.

Torrance Hospital Guard Slain in Auto

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 29—Harry B. Switzer, 26, of Cokeville, guard at the Torrance State Hospital, was found shot to death in his auto on a lonely road early today.

Driver Gives Bond After Killing Man

A man identified as John Steiner, 55, of 55 South Fifteenth street, was killed early today when struck by an automobile on the Boulevard of the Allies near Craft avenue. Samuel H. Thompson, collector of customs for the United States Treasury, driver of the car, according to the report to the Coroner, was released on $1,000 bail.

NO DISTRESS after eating

GET RID of that old dread of indigestion, and eat without fear of distress.

When food ferments, disagrees, lies like lead in the stomach, it is a sign of too much acid. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. The quick corrective is an alkali. Don't resort to burning doses of soda—take instead, an antacid that will correct the condition. Phillips' Milk of Magnesia!

A spoonful of this soothing alkali restores the proper alkaline balance to an acid-soaked system. Then the stomach, liver and bowels function as they should.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is what you need when bad breath or coated tongue indicates too much acid. Take a spoonful today, and for several days, and see how soon it sweetens the entire system. Your digestion will be vastly improved. Things will taste better and you will feel better in so many ways.

Also, you will find when your system is properly alkaline you are not so susceptible to sickness and colds. That you are no longer troubled with constipation or with headaches, gas on the stomach. An alkaline balance builds resistance.

Ask for Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, which is the preparation of magnesia prescribed and recommended by your own doctor for correcting excess acid. 25c and 50c bottles are sold at drug stores everywhere.

To avoid the condition of acid mouth, you should use a milk of magnesia toothpaste. Your teeth are worthy of the best dentifrice. Try Phillips' Dental Magnesia, which contains 75% concentrated Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

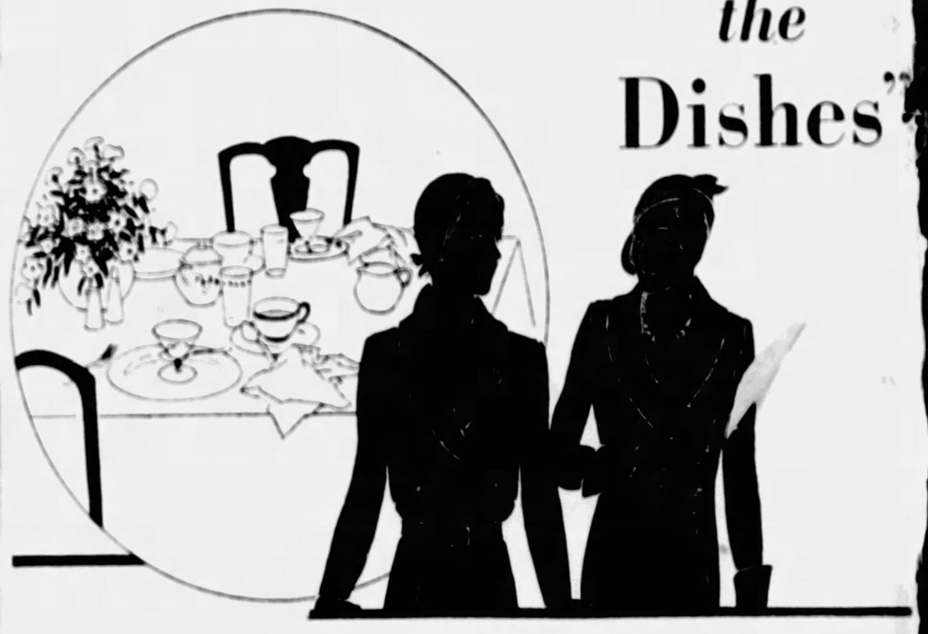
THINGS WORTH SAVING FOR . . .

"LOVELY . . . except for the Dishes"



THAT'S what Mrs. Jones said about Mrs. Smith's dinner party. It was true. The food was excellent, the conversation amusing—but the dishes—a mixture of different colors, different patterns, different sizes—struck a jarring note.

What a difference a complete, matched dinner service of beautiful china would have made! Mrs. Smith longed for one—but she thought she couldn't afford it.

Are you wishing, like Mrs. Smith, for a lovely dinner service and hesitating to buy it only because of the money? Let us help you. Open a savings account—now—with the Farmers Deposit National Bank. Deposit a little money regularly, every week or every month. Before you realize it, you'll be serving the "perfect dinner" that you've dreamed about.

WHAT DO YOU WANT very much? You'll get it sooner—whatever it is—if you start your savings account today. And the sooner you start, the more interest you'll get. Just step inside—deposit a dollar or more—say "I want to save." TODAY.

New Store Hours

UNTIL CHRISTMAS

Beginning Thursday, October 1st

DAILY STORE HOURS
9:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

SATURDAY 9:30 a. m. to 9:30 p. m.

We take this step in the interest of better business and better service to the general public.

Months of study has been given to the shopping habits of our trade, with the result that we feel the half hour later opening hour will occasion no serious inconvenience. The Saturday evening hours, on the other hand, will be a decided service to the general public.

The idea of Saturday evening shopping hours has been urged to us on numerous occasions and we have found that many people, who would like to shop in this store are unable to do so in the store hours we have maintained heretofore.

EMPLOYEE WORKING HOURS

The weekly schedule of working hours under the new arrangement requires approximately the same number of hours from our employees; no increase in the number of working hours.

Federal Survey of Food Distribution Here Considered

BAKER HAILS RADIO AS WORLD TIE AT SHOW OPENING

COST CUTTING PROPOSED IN PLAN

Research Director Tells Of Advantages at Meeting In Chamber of Commerce

The objects of a federal survey of retail food distribution in the Pittsburgh district were outlined by J. W. Millard, director of research for the Irwin Wasey Company of New York, at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium last night by the Pittsburgh Association of Manufacturers' Representatives.

Millard, who participated in the making of a similar survey in Louisville, Ky., in 1928, declared that retail grocery failures were practically eliminated by applying the findings of the study to actual practice.

COSTS SAVED

In addition manufacturers and wholesalers were able to make vast savings in operating costs by eliminating unnecessary duplication of sales and distribution effort.

The survey will be directed by G. E. Bittner, business specialist of the Department of Commerce. He will be assisted by Ralph Watkins, director of the University of Pittsburgh Research Bureau. Pitt students will participate in gathering facts.

To further stimulate interest in the improvement of retail distribution methods in Pittsburgh, Editor Dittman, of the Progressive Grocer, plans to assist in the establishment of model stores which will demonstrate the most modern methods of displaying merchandise.

PITTSBURGH SELECTED

Through the efforts of a committee headed by C. A. Kolb, president of the Pittsburgh Association of Manufacturers' Representatives, Pittsburgh was selected from a list of 14 cities for the making of this intensive study which will supplement the results of the previous Louisville survey.

Kolb, who is Pittsburgh manager of the General Foods Sales Corporation, was elected chairman of a special council to co-operate on the survey. Other members of the council are Donald Brigham, Colonial Salt Company; James Loughran, secretary of the Retail Grocers' Association of Allegheny County, and F. M. Lillie, secretary of the American Fruit Growers' Exchange.

Transportation Need Stressed at Meet

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—The importance of adequate local transportation in effecting a national business recovery was stressed before the American Railway Association convention.

Merle Thorpe, editor of the Nation's Business, of Washington; Joseph P. Day, New York real estate man, and John W. Hanna, head of the association, also of Washington, concurred in the belief that efficient local transportation throughout the country will aid in bettering business conditions.

Michigan Demands Roads Advance Time

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Michigan wants the trains to keep up with the clocks in the state.

The State Legislature had the clocks run up an hour to eastern standard time in a law fixing that as the legal time for the state. But the railroads have continued to operate on central time. Attorney General Voorhies asked the Interstate Commerce Commission today to declare the state in the eastern time zone.

Boy Killed by Auto Of Franklin Scion

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Harry Watson, Jr., 13, was struck and killed near his home early today by an automobile driven by George Willing Pepper, member of a prominent Philadelphia family.

Pepper, who is 22, was released on his own recognizance for a hearing later. He is the son of the late Benjamin Franklin Pepper, a direct descendant of Benjamin Franklin.

'Aged Hitch-Hiker Tours Three States

JEFFERS, Minn., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—A hitch-hiking grandma was back home today, smoking her corncob pipe and telling her grandchildren about a tour of three states which lasted several weeks.

"Grandma" Hannah Hawkins, 64, "just wanted to see some of the country," when she started her trip, she said.

It's a Pliable Metal Until You Try to Borrow It

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Hearing lots about gold these days.

We have a nice amateur collection down in Washington.

Result is that we have the world by the tail with a downhill pull.

Gold is the most valuable of all metals because it is so pliable. Until you try to borrow it.

It's as dangerous as an army mule that kicks when it is mad and bites when it is happy.

But we have plenty of it. Ain't been so well off since Ben Franklin went to Philadelphia with a loaf of bread under his arm.

Sweden just tossed its gold standard overboard after discovering that you can borrow a matchen but you can't borrow from a match company.

Only U. S. and France are in good yellow metallic shape. And this is one time we ain't going to holler.

"Lafayette, here it is."

3 THUGS BEAT POLICEMAN

While returning to his home early today, Patrolman Patrick McClure, 43, of 263 Dunseith street said he was attacked and beaten by three highwaymen who left him unconscious at the foot of the Alequippa street steps in the Schenley Farms district. He was removed to the Mercy Hospital.

McClure is attached to the Hazelwood police station and works on the afternoon turn. He was off duty when attacked. At the Mercy Hospital it was stated his condition was not serious.

Center avenue police received a call shortly after 6:30 this morning informing a policeman had been found in the street. En route to the hospital McClure told brother officers that he was ascending the steps when beaten by three men. He was unable to give a description of the trio.

2,000 Reds Battle Police in Job Riot

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—After a hand-to-hand battle between police and 2,000 Communists who stormed the City Hall in a protest against unemployment, seven men were jailed for rioting today and three policemen lay on hospital cots suffering from injuries.

The disturbance started after the City Council had refused to hear a delegation of the Unemployed Workers' Association last night and elected the delegation's leader from the chamber.

Missouri Jobless Plan Hunger March

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—A "hunger march" from various points in Missouri to Jefferson City was announced by the State Committee of Unemployed Councils of Missouri.

W. C. McCuistion, secretary of the committee, said Gov. Henry S. Caulfield would be asked to receive a delegation at the Capitol October 26, when a request will be made for immediate unemployment relief and unemployment insurance.

BANQUET OPENS MARKET WEEK TONIGHT

850 Tri-State Merchants To Hear Kaufmann in Trade Group Campaign

Nearly 850 retail merchants from communities within a 75-mile radius of Pittsburgh will meet at a banquet tonight in the Chamber of Commerce to launch a "Fall Market Week"—a program to establish Pittsburgh as the buying center of the tri-state area.

Tonight's speaker will be Edgar J. Kaufmann, president of Kaufmann's Department Store. He will address the meeting on "The Future in Merchandising." W. P. Benson, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce wholesalers' council which is sponsoring the program, will preside.

Throughout the week lectures and demonstrations on the training of sales people, controlling stock turnover, sales promotion, advertising and modern business practices will be held. A feature of the week will be a "merchandising clinic" conducted by A. J. Luther and F. L. Anderson, nationally known advertising experts.

Pittsburgh's market week observance will be extended into the tri-state area with lectures and merchandising clinics demonstrating the advantage of trading in Pittsburgh. The tri-state program will last six months.

Committee chairmen for the week include R. G. Culp, Dave Levenson, F. T. Jamison and Robert M. Repp. The program will end Friday night.

STORE HELD UP ON NORTH SIDE

Forcing Manager Albert Westy, of an A. & P. store at 2821 Perrysville avenue, to lay face downward on the floor of a rear room, two bandits looted the cash register of approximately $30 and fled, according to police.

Westy, who lives at 1320 Orchlee street, was alone in the store when the bandits, both armed with automatic revolvers, entered and marched him into the rear of the store. They escaped in a waiting automobile.

FIFTH AVENUE BAR RAIDED BY DRYS

Rum Seized, Three Men Held In Second Uptown Resort Invaded Within Week

For the second time within a week, prohibition agents visited an uptown drinking establishment, arrested three men and seized a quantity of assorted Canadian liquors and beer. Shortly before midnight the raiders visited the second floor of 913 Fifth avenue, where they made the arrests and seizures.

The prisoners said they were Joseph Tumis, 47, of 1929 Sidney street; Frank Miller, 57, of 1608 Forbes street and James Nomach, 40, of 2125 Wrights way. They were lodged in Central Police Station pending hearings before the United States Commissioner on charge of sale and possession of intoxicating liquors.

Four barrels of beer were seized along with large quantities of whisky, moonshine, gin and wine.

Early this morning prohibition agents arrested Albert P. Lavatt, 31, of Leckey way, North Side. The agents reported that they found a five-gallon can of moonshine in his automobile.

AUDIT COSTS CITY $20,188

The audit of the City Department of Supplies, sponsored by Controller James P. Kerr, following the exposure of discrepancies allegedly attributed to Former Director Bertram L. Succop, cost the taxpayers $20,188.77.

The bill of Price, Waterhouse & Company, hired by Controller Kerr, was in Council's hands today for approval and payment.

Auditors who delved into the records, contracts and agreements of the Supplies Department with contractors and others throughout the city, worked several weeks compiling their data. Kerr's audit was independent of one sponsored by a Citizens' Committee. The independent audit was paid for by private funds.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 29.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

To show you what our smart men know, they led us to believe that the world was coming to an end when England lost her gold standard; now we come to find out that things are picking up on what they thought was a calamity. Other nations are going to silver voluntarily. Sure, use silver for money; use as many things as you can for money and the more trading and business will be done. Astor made a fortune trading chewing tobacco for skunk skins. Poor Bryan, he ran for President just 38 years too soon.

Yours, WILL.

Will Rogers

3 CAR VICTIMS IN HOSPITALS

Two of the four persons injured when a Carrick street car crashed against the rear of a Bloomfield car in South Eighteenth street extension yesterday were still in the St. Joseph's Hospital today. Morris Snyder, 53, of 319 Dinwiddie street, is confined to the hospital suffering a fractured right shoulder and a fractured left leg. Mrs. J. Kelly, 53, of 304 Main street, is in the same hospital suffering bruises and lacerations.

Miss Cecelia Toole, 18, of 3414 Ward street, and Mrs. Joseph DeMarco, 64, of 7232 Tioga street, are confined to their homes suffering from shock and bruises. Both trolleys were traveling in South Eighteenth street when the Bloomfield car halted suddenly and the Carrick car struck it.

Mrs. Reginia Loevner, 27, of 5626 Northumberland street, who suffered a fractured skull yesterday afternoon when hit by a Homestead-McKeesport street car in Forbes street near Wightman street, was reported to be in a critical condition in the Magee Hospital today.

Child, Grandmother Fall Out Car Door

Mrs. J. S. Krohe, 56, and her granddaughter, Grace Reed, 3, of Vulcan way, Crafton, are in the Rochester Hospital, Rochester, Pa., suffering severe cuts and bruises suffered in an accident yesterday. They were riding in an automobile, and when the machine rounded a curve in Freedom, Pa., the door of the car suddenly opened and they fell into the roadway.

Manchester Center Holds Registration

Registration was held today for the fifth season of the Manchester Educational Center, 1522 Chateau street, which provides instruction in non-vocational fields, particularly music and drama. Will Rhodes is director of the Choral Society and Daleton Phillips accompanist. Monthly institutes will be held and varied entertainments given.

GREAT SCHOOLS OF AIR SEEN FOR FUTURE

Exhibit Draws Throng While Broadcasting Stars Give Entertainment Program

Radio, already an element in the weakening of provincialism, is fast becoming a factor in the decline of nationalism, declared Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, at the opening of the Radio Electric Show in Duquesne Garden last night.

Dr. Baker emphasized the value of broadcasting in education and predicted the day not far distant when all peoples will discover through radio subjects of mutual comprehension and agreement. He said:

"We may look for great universities of the air that will in part meet the desires of grown-up people to be educated beyond the period of their school and university life. Since the great war, there has been an almost miraculous growth in the number of adults who are studying in the night classes of the colleges and universities and in correspondence schools. Some of the work of giving this instruction will be transfered to the broadcasting station."

TRIBUTE TO DAVIS

Dr. Baker paid elegant eulogy to the late Dr. H. P. Davis, affectionately known in the radio industry as the "Father of Radio Broadcasting."

The crowd for opening night was beyond expectation. Thousands of visitors inspected the exhibits, listended to the dedicatory speeches of James A. Simpson and Frank R. Phillips, then an excellent entertainment bill featuring Paul Gannon, Riggs and Moke, 20 Fingers of Sweetness and other stars of the local radio world.

STAR SINGS TONIGHT

Milton J. Cross, who is the only artist on the air to have a song restricted to his use only, will sing the composition, "Slumber On," a feature of the Radio Show tonight. Cross was awarded a medal for clear diction by the Academy of Science and Arts two years ago.

Other entertainers will be the Gypsies Dance Band, Revelers, 20 Fingers of Sweetness and Paul Gannon, tenor.

Slayer Asks Re-Trial Of Supreme Court

Arguments for a new trial for William Robinson, Negro, of 4612 Broad street, convicted of first degree murder and sentenced to life imprisonment, were presented before the State Supreme Court yesterday by Attorney William H. Coleman.

It was alleged at the trial that Robinson fired the shot which killed his wife during a quarrel in their home June 7, 1930. A new trial was asked chiefly on the ground that the lower court failed to charge the jury that the presumption of murder under the evidence rose no higher than second degree.

Engineer Finds Body Of Train Victim

The body of a man, apparently hit by a train, was found on the westbound track of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad at Aliquippa last night by John Doyle, an engineer on the Aliquippa and Southern Railroad. Aliquippa police tentatively identified the victim as Andrew Herebenar, 39, of Monessen through papers found in his clothes.

M. E. MINISTERS GATHER AT INDIANA FOR CONFERENCE

EXAMINATIONS HELD BEFORE SESSION

Board Anniversary Will Displace Annual Reception; W. C. T. U. Head to Speak

By THE REV. C. T. MURDOCK MURDOCK
Special Correspondent

INDIANA, Pa., Sept. 29.—Methodist Episcopal preachers today began converging on this little city of Indiana to hold the one hundred and eighth annual meeting of the Pittsburgh conference in a brand new church.

It is an anxious hour for men and families. The struggles of the year are over and all collections taken. But new perils beset the path of ministers. The question is whether to go or stay, whether to bear the ills we have than to fly to others that we know not of.

Some look like jabbed Atlas carrying the world on his drooping shoulders, or like the melancholy Dane protesting that "the world is out of joint; oh, wretched spite that ever I was born to set it right!"

Faith and courage though are the predominant notes and the hope that springs eternal.

EXAMINATIONS HELD

Confidential information which is largely colored by the speakers own personal preferences and prejudices is being poured into attentive ears. English question number 33,333 is being asked on every hand.

"What do you think the conference is going to do?"

The conference examinations for the young theologians to test their fitness as heralds of the good news are being held. Here's a hope that they will all top the first hurdle in good form. Many ministers are already registered.

BOARD ANNIVERSARY

Tonight, instead of the customary reception and piffle of the keys of the city, the Board of Prohibition and Public Morals will hold its anniversary. The Rev. G. L. C. Richardson of Carnegie will preside.

An organ recital by John Bell of Pittsburgh will display the charms of the new pipe organ. Addresses by these tested campaigners Mrs. Ella B. Black president of the state W. C. T. U., and Dr. D. Stuart Patterson of the Temperance Board, Washington, D. C., will be delivered.

STORK HOVERS, FAMILY EVICTED

Mrs. Margaret Ziski, 27, and her three children were arranging their meager household belongings in a new home at 2616 Barry street today after having been evicted from their former dwelling at 2719 Shelly street yesterday.

The father and husband, Michael Ziski, 42, an apple seller on the streets, had been unable to pay several months' back rent and a deputy sheriff dispossessed the family.

According to Miss Loretta Lyons of the Catholic Charities, she had requested the landlord to wait until after the expected arrival of the stork at the Ziski home before putting them out. This he had promised to do, she said.

Ziski, a glassworker by trade, has been out of employment for two years. The Ziski children are Billy, 8; Dorothy, 5, and Charles, 3.

OBITUARY

Hangartner Funeral

Funeral services for Marie Wachsmuth Hangartner, 69, of 4906 Liberty avenue, who died yesterday, will be held Thursday afternoon. She was a resident of Pittsburgh for more than 50 years. She leaves her husband, the Rev. Ursinus Hangartner, pastor of the Baum German Evangelical Protestant Church; a son, Ulhard, 1222 Termon avenue, three brothers and three sisters.

JURY HOLDS 3 IN AUTO DEATHS

Howard Miller, of Cecil; Joseph Lapaglia, of Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, and Harry I. Sleasman, of Lynn avenue, Turtle Creek, were recommended held for the grand jury's action on manslaughter today. The recommendations were made at inquests into two automobile fatalities. Miller was accused of being the driver of the car which struck William H. Cheeks, 9, of Kerwin Heights, who died in the Allegheny County Hospital, Woodville, from injuries received near his home, August 29.

The other two were held responsible for the death of Neil MacNicol, 12, of Taylor avenue, Wilkinsburg, who died in Columbia Hospital, August 7.

SABBATH MEET CLOSES TODAY

With the election of officers and addresses by H. C. Cridland and the Rev. J. Gordon Howard, the closing session of the forty-second annual convention of the Allegheny County Sabbath School Association, being held in Trinity Cathedral, Sixth avenue, was to take place today. George T. Marshall was to preside at the afternoon session, and John W. Vickerman in the evening. Dr. Galus J. Slosser will close the convention.

Vacationists Return From Southern Trip

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Reinolds, of Pittsburgh, and Dr. and Mrs. E. B. Bennett and Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Buterbaugh, of Indiana, Pa., returned last night in the SS. Transylvania from a seven-day cruise in the Gulf stream. The vacationists passed two days in Bermuda, where they made a tour of the islands.

FALK MEDICAL UNIT TO BEGIN WORK SOON

Doctors Meet as Co-Donor Presents Dr. Bowman Keys Of Clinic at Dedication

The Falk clinic, dedicated yesterday to relieve the suffering of those unable to pay for medical attention, and to prevent serious ailments, will be opened to the public within a few weeks, it was announced today.

The dedicatory services, in which Maurice Falk, co-donor with his late brother, Leon, gave the keys to Chancellor John G. Bowman, of the University of Pittsburgh, were held in the clinic at noon.

A dinner was given by the Pitt School of Medicine to the county Medical Board last night in the University Club, with Dr. Willard J. Stone, of Pasadena, and Dr. Alfred Stengel, of Philadelphia, as honor guests.

A meeting of the Allegheny County Medical Society and other medical organizations followed in Carnegie Music Hall. The speakers were Dr. Joseph H. Barach, medical director of the clinic; Dr. Stengel, Dr. Stone and Dr. R. R. Huggins, dean of Pitt's medical school.

The new clinic, which will also be used as a school for physicians, became part of the medical center of Pitt. It contains departments for the study and treatment of all types of diseases, and will take over the children's research department of the Children's Hospital, and the Pittsburgh Dispensary, now at Fernando street. The dispensary will be moved within the next week to the new clinic.

Three Get 5 Days For Pocket Picking

Three alleged Negro pickpockets, arrested yesterday downtown by detectives, testified were jailed for five days by Magistrate Leo Rothenberger in Central Police Court today.

They gave their names as Wallace Mitchell, 38, Memphis, Tenn.; Cabel Hill, 37, Richmond, Va., and Robert Carr, 32, of Philadelphia.

390,000 Bottles Seized at Plant Being Destroyed

Workmen under the supervision of government prohibition agents are engaged in destroying approximately 390,000 bottles at the plant of the Glenshaw Glass Company at Glenshaw. The bottles were condemned by Federal Judge Nelson McVicar and forfeited to the government.

The containers, with whisky brand names blown in the glass, were confiscated September 15 by special investigators of the prohibition department, as property designed for violation of the prohibition law. In answer to a forfeiture libel filed against the bottles by the prohibition authorities, officers of the company consented to the forfeiture and condemnation.

It was said at prohibition headquarters that bids will be asked for the broken glass.

POLICE HELD IN VOTE ROW

Police Chief Thomas Flynn, of Duquesne, five Duquesne policemen and two civilians were held for court late yesterday by Alderman John F. Kenna, charged with intimidation, pointing firearms, interference and assault and battery at polling places during the primary election.

Those held with Chief Flynn, were Patrolmen Murtford Shaughnessy, Timothy Long, George Wallington and William Malloy and Nick Spanovich and Charles Teemer, civilians. A bond for $1,000 each is to be posted by their attorney.

The men had been held in $10,000 bond, posted by Mayor Crawford, when decision was reserved by Kenna following a hearing in the latter's office Thursday night.

Chief Flynn was charged with loitering about the polling places during voting, in violation of the election laws. Shaughnessy was alleged to have attempted to plant a blackjack in a watcher's pocket; Long and Teemer were accused of attacking a citizen and Long was alleged to have arrested two victims of a mysterious attack, and Wallington, Spanovich and Malloy were charged with loitering near the polls.

The charges were filed by Albert Dupcus and Albert Saltzer, election overseers, Andy Gilch, Louis Mahorry, James Griggs and Benjamin Bowen.

How Do Chorus Girls Manage?

The theatre knows no "sick list." Chorus girls just can't be "absent." Regardless of their monthly sickness, they must be in line, on time, on their toes, and smiling. How do they do it? Nature doesn't spare them. They stop the pain for hours at a stretch by the use of a perfectly harmless medicine called Midol.

It acts in seven minutes. Relief is complete. The pain is gone. Midol is not a narcotic and offers no interference with nature. All druggists; ask simply for Midol.

Large, Red Pimples Covered Entire Face. Cuticura Healed.

"I began to suffer with pimples and blackheads. The pimples covered my entire face and were large and red. They itched a lot and when I scratched it caused them to spread. Some of the pimples festered and made my face look badly. The irritation was so severe that I used to get up in the night and scratch.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample of each. I purchased more and after using three cakes of Soap and two boxes of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Mollie Kolesovsky, 3644 N. Hollywood St., Philadelphia, Pa., March 9, 1931.

VOLSTEAD ACT REPEAL URGED AS AID TO PROSPERITY

EX-MARYLAND SENATOR ASKS ACTION

South Hills Kiwanians Hear Joseph I. France on Leading Issues of Day

Repeal of the Volstead act and later the Eighteenth Amendment was urged as one of the means of restoring prosperity by former United States Senator Joseph I. France, of Maryland, before the South Hills Kiwanis Club in the Mt. Lebanon United Lutheran Church, today.

Other emergency steps advocated by the speaker were selling on easy credits or giving away by the government its accumulated wheat to those countries facing starvation; immediate reduction to at least one half of naval and military expenses and an emergency loan for public works to relieve unemployment.

He also urged that an international conference be called to discuss and solve problems of currency, reparations and disarmament and that Russia be restored to the society of nations. He added:

"We need a true concert of the powers, in obedience to moral law in the formulation of a plan to conserve the rights, advance the interests, develop the resources and open the markets of those countries where dwell the backward peoples who are the wards and should be under the uplifting tutelage of the advanced peoples."

More than 50 members were present. President Clarence Glass presided.

'Do or Die' Spirit Cost Boy Grid Player's Life

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—A youngster's code of "do or die" on the football field cost him his life.

He was 16-year-old McCoy Oakley, star end of the Livingston (Tenn.) Academy eleven who played on for two days without telling anyone he had received a chest injury. He collapsed at practice.

Brought to a Nashville hospital over his protests that he was "all right," doctors found pneumonia had developed. He died yesterday.

ASK 12TH WARD VOTES BARRED

Voters of the Eighth, Tenth, Twelfth and Fourteenth districts of the Twelfth Ward yesterday presented a petition to Judge James H. Gray, in Criminal Court, requesting that the aldermanic votes of those districts be thrown out.

Michael De Rosa, Jr., who opposed Alderman William A. Means, the incumbent of the ward, is said to have been behind the action. Judge Gray fixed next Thursday as the time for the hearing.

The allegations declare that many votes were illegally cast, that violence was used, that voting was permitted without making necessary affidavits and that voters were intimidated.

QUINBY NAMED WELFARE FUND GROUP CHIEF

Telephone Man Selected Employe Division Head In $5,750,000 Campaign

32,000 More Hold Stock in Pennsy

An increase of 32,000 stockholders in the Pennsylvania Railroad, as registered on the books September 1, over the 240,000 of last year, was shown in figures made public by the company. Compared with last year's figures, the increase for September alone was 800 stockholders.

Approximately one-third of the Pennsylvania's working forces, or a total of more than 50,000 employes, are part owners in the company, according to the figures.

CONSERVING ASSETS

Today as always a basic function of any bank is conserving the deposits of its customers. In business as in banking conservation of assets is fundamental.

AND OTHER "WEAR-EVER" DEALERS IN WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

Another harbinger of autumn, long anticipated by theater loving society folks, is the opening of the Alvin and Nixon theaters for the season. The Alvin opened a week ago and the Nixon last night.

With "Crazy Quilt" at the Alvin and Lenore Ulric in "Social Register" at the Nixon last night, and with autumn offering some of her crispest breezes, both houses attracted a host of patrons.

Among the smartly gowned society folk at the Alvin was Mrs. Jack Whitcomb who wore a striking gown of black velvet with a matching velvet wrap.

Chatting in the foyer during intermission I noticed Helen Leary charming in black chiffon and lace and the Raymond Ford Morelands too with Mrs. Moreland in popular black velvet with a black velvet wrap.

Black Is Favorite

I caught a glimpse of the Simon T. Pattersons entering the theater and Mrs. Patterson had chosen a gown of King's blue crepe with the decolletage criss-crossed with narrow bands of the same material. She wore a knee-length wrap of blue velvet.

The Junior George L. Craigs were there too and Mrs. Craig was wearing a distinctive gown of fern green flowered crepe with an apple green velvet finger-tip jacket.

Alice Gundelfinger was strolling about the foyer wearing an ensemble of brown crepe and Evelyn Evans recently home from the continent appeared in powder blue chiffon having a deep cape collar. Bertha Brooks chose a flowing gown of hydrangea blue lace.

* * *

One of the loveliest gowns I saw at the Nixon was reminiscent of a romantic period. Pierette. It was of white taffeta as supple as crepe and had the high-waisted bodice bound in black. And motifs in black marked the bodice and long sweeping skirt ending in a bonnet of black chiffon. Over this gown Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby wore a black velvet wrap with a white fur shawl collar.

Unusual Costumes

Mrs. William A. Durkman whom I saw chatting in the lobby with Mr. Durkman and a group of friends wore a smart black satin gown with the skirt reminiscent of bustle days having a narrow ruffle of the same material as a border in front and draped in the back, falling in cascades. She chose a white ermine jacket for her wrap.

Between acts I noticed the James F. McKelvys and the Robbedeau Green Annans talking together. Mrs. McKelvy the former Anne Douglas Stewart wore black lace and chiffon and a blue and silver wrap collared with chinchilla, and Mrs. Annan was in black velvet.

* * *

I had a glimpse of Mrs. Theodore F. Smith in black chiffon and a black velvet wrap, and of Mrs. H. H. McClintic Jr. Mrs. James Edward Lewis wearing a wine-red transparent velvet gown with a matching wrap was in the lobby during intermission with her young daughter. Mrs. H. C. May Jr. in black lace and chiffon and her son James Edward Lewis Jr.

Velvet Popular

Mrs. Herbert A. May always one of the most enthusiastic theatergoers of the social set was there wearing a wood-violet crepe gown having a novel back décolletage.

Representing the younger set was Mary Elizabeth Flood from Sewickley in black velvet. Mrs. Gordon King was there in a white crepe printed in American beauty and a black velvet wrap.

Marking many an October day will be alumnae gatherings with their plans for all sorts of events during the ensuing months.

For the National Park Seminary Alumnae Group there'll be a luncheon on Friday at the Twentieth Century Club, followed by bridge. Hostesses will be Mrs. C. B. Gibson, Mrs. William Laird and Mrs. Henry Holmes.

Planning Benefit

Members of the board of managers of the Eye and Ear Hospital already are busy working for their annual benefit card party to be held on November 9 in the Hotel Schenley.

Mrs. William Scott is president. Mrs. Howard H. McClintic, Mrs. H. H. McClintic, Mrs. Edward B. Scull and Miss Anne H. Robinson, vice presidents; John E. Crawford, treasurer; Miss A. W. McEldowney, secretary; Miss Alice Gray, corresponding secretary; J. F. Walter, endowment treasurer.

Other members of the board are Mrs. W. W. Blair, Miss Elizabeth Childs, Miss Eleanor Chalfant, Mrs. Charles W. Dahlinger, Mrs. F. A. Dilworth, Mrs. R. R. Higgins, Mrs. Louis B. Hays, Mrs. James D. Heard, Mrs. J. L. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Clarence E. Lott, Mrs. Robert J. McKay, Mrs. John A. Mustland, Mrs. G. R. Nutty, Mrs. Edwin N. Ohl, Mrs. William B. Rodgers, Mrs. Wallace H. Rowe, Dr. W. W. Blair, Dr. Ewing W. Day and Dr. J. H. McCready.

DELVES IN POMPEII RUINS

Dr. Butler Returns From Seventh Year of Painting Study in Italian Excavations

Probably no one in the club world spent the summer in a more unusual way than did Dr. Nita Butler, a member of the Colloquium Club and secretary treasurer of the Pittsburgh Society, Archaeological Institute of America. Dr. Butler was in Pompeii, where she continued her research in excavated wall paintings from the viewpoint of color, study which she has pursued for seven summers under auspices of the University of Michigan. Some of that time Dr. Butler spent in excavating, but since Italy realized that she was faring badly at the hands of excavating aliens such work has been permitted in only one place, Formiae, where Cicero had one of his famous villas, and where the University of Pennsylvania is now at work.

Whatever one thinks of Mussolini, he certainly organizes things well, and from a sanitary standpoint one notices a marked difference in Italy even from year to year, Dr. Butler remarked. No longer does one see the lines of family washings flapping colorfully along the Naples seafront. Mussolini considers that undignified, she said.

As Dr. Butler exhibits her interesting collection of curios and rare volumes and lovely pictures she talks in a quietly fascinating way of life under the Italian sun; of the Alban Hills, to which the people look as to a barometer of Vesuvius and her continual smoke, another sure barometrical sign of what might have happened had Mussolini been someone like him appeared. He knows his people and knows how to handle them, she observed.

Many Curios

When the new library at Pennsylvania College for Women is finished (she is on the college faculty), its art seminary room will house the books and pictures and some of the other objects in Dr. Butler's collection among which is a reproduction in miniature of a Greek statue which she saw taken from the ashes several years ago.

Four dancing classes will be conducted by the College Club this year under the direction of Miss Helen Bennett. From 3:15 to 4:15 on Mondays the little folks from 3 to 6 years will meet for instruction. Monday afternoons from 4:30 to 5:30, the 6 to 9-year-age will meet and on Wednesday afternoons at the same hour the children from 9 to 12 will be instructed. Older children of members will have their class on Friday evenings from 8 until 9.

Dancing Classes

The Monday classes are offering a combination of social and tap dancing and exercises conducive to proper posture, all of which the Wednesday class will include in addition to pantomime work. The Friday class will be devoted exclusively to ballroom dancing. Classes will begin the third week of October and will continue for 20 consecutive weeks, with a two-week Christmas recess.

Mrs. J. Willard Anderson is chairman of the dancing classes and Mrs. S. K. Cunningham, chairman of the social committee.

Mrs. George Scott Baton, president of the Woman's City Club, is general chairman for the series of six children's matinees which the club will present at the Nixon Theater this season. Mrs. James R. Macfarlane is co-chairman and Mrs. Andrew W. Robertson, chairman of patronesses. Invitations have been sent out announcing the matinees at 10 o'clock Saturday mornings, October 31, November 28, January 2 and 30, February 27 and March 26.

City Club Matinees

The club will honor its president with a musicale tea on Saturday, October 24. Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock is chairman in charge.

PLAIN AND FANCY WOOLENS FAVORED FOR AUTUMN SUITS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—As soon as the autumn leaves, tinted red, brown and gold start swirling to the ground, smart women blossom forth in smart tailleurs, to add their quota of charm to the autumn scene. And this year's models should induce many other women, not usually addicted to the tailored suit, to join the procession. Those of us who are not becoming lyrical over the drapes, bustle effects and bows of the eighties or nineties, turn to the smart suit with relief, knowing full well that no sartorial anachronisms will be found there.

* * *

THE SUITS being shown for autumn are just as simply smart as ever, with great use made of woolens in plain and fancy weaves. Brown is always an emblematic autumn color and this year we find it much allied with green, surely a natural and most attractive color choice. Much use is being made of the gilet and vest both in single and double-breasted effects. And bright dashes of color are being introduced via the medium of the scarf. Invest in such a colorful woolen suit and walk your way to health.

* * *

TODAY WE SHOW Maggy Rouff's newest tailleur. The material is soft dark brown woolen with a fancy, diagonal weave. The double-breasted vest is of pale green broadcloth and the silk scarf, knotted round the throat, is of dark green, orange and brown print. Two flat box-pleats at the front of the jacket widen into a yoke at top, and the same idea is carried out in the pleats of the skirt.

* * *

A SMART HAT for early autumn is the Lanvin model here sketched. It is made entirely of bottle-green velvet with a sectioned crown fitted closely to the head and a rolled brim, entirely corded, with a single white quill thrust into the left side, quite high up.

Three steps to Charm by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

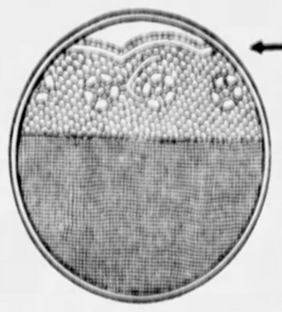
"Girls often ask how to be more attractive. Here are three steps to feminine charm . . . (1) Buy the loveliest lingerie you can and keep it as colorful as new, because this helps you to FEEL charming. And if you feel so, you ARE.

(2) Keep your stockings perfect in color and sheen, for this is a feminine detail which adds to charm. (3) Choose frocks and blouses in your most becoming colors and always keep these colors vibrant with life. Remember, men love color!

'But'—girls often say—'such dainty things fade so soon in washing!' This needn't be so if you use LUX! Lux is made to preserve CHARM of COLOR and to keep delicate things new so long that girls can afford to wear them every day."

BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(At the left) Lace-trimmed lingerie washed 12 times in ordinary soap . . . not only faded but actually worn-out looking. Lace is damaged, fibres pulled, all the lovely charm of the delicate garment has been lost.



Duplicate lingerie, washed 12 times in Lux. There is no fading—lace and silk fibres are perfectly intact—the lingerie is just as colorful and exquisite as new! All its original charm retained so that it gives you the feeling of being exquisite and utterly feminine.

It's so easy to have lovely clothes that give you a sense of conquering charm! Lux keeps even the most fragile colors and fabrics new so long they're not the least bit extravagant!

Try Lux FREE. Try this wonderful care for your clothes at our expense. Just send us your name and address, and by return mail you will receive a full-sized package of Lux free. Write today to Lever Brothers Co., Dept. NL-7, Cambridge, Massachusetts.

IF IT'S SAFE IN WATER . . . IT'S JUST AS SAFE IN LUX

Booking Agency Files as Bankrupt

A voluntary bankruptcy petition was filed today in Federal Court by Maude Williams Ingersoll, of 3408 Fifth avenue. She gave her occupation as a booker of theatrical entertainment. She listed her liabilities as $2,099 and her assets at $301.

RAILROAD PLEA DOOM HINTED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(INS)—Belief is growing in well informed circles that the railroads have failed to impress the Interstate Commerce Commission with their imperative need for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates.

The consensus, as near as it can be gathered, is that the commission will give something to the railroads, but not anything approximating the general increase of 15 per cent they demanded. It has been asserted by many that such an increase would give the railroads an advantage over all other industries which are of necessity undergoing readjustment.

Close observers are predicting the commission may grant an increase of 5 per cent, but will except agricultural products, particularly wheat, cotton, livestock and fruits and vegetables, from its provisions, leaving heavy commodities and class freight to bear the brunt of it.

Wilkinsburg Adds New Police Officer

Wilkinsburg's Police Department was increased last night when the Borough Council added Charles DeOdre. The force now numbers 15 regular officers and eight special policemen, who look after the crossings near schools.

Chicago Schools To Close If Scrip is Banned

CHICAGO, Sep. 29.—(AP)—Chicago was served notice by counsel for the Board of Education that its schools would be closed if the board were restrained from paying employes with scrip instead of cash.

The restraining order was sought before Judge Philip Finnegan by Miss Mary Abbe, president of the Chicago Teachers' Federation, and David Rosenheim, a taxpayer. The teachers haven't been paid with cash for months, due to the depleted condition of the city treasury.

Hollywood Actress Dies in Auto Crash

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 29.—(AP)—Virginia Doyle, 24, film actress, employed by the Warner Brothers-First National studios, was killed today when her automobile collided with a freight train.

HUGE DREDGE GOES DOWN

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 29.—(AP)—The huge $1,000,000 dredge Toledo, of Philadelphia, reported to be the largest in the world, capsized in a heavy sea today in Broad Sound and sank in 40 feet of water.

All of the crew, comprising approximately a score of men, were rescued. All but one was from Philadelphia. Reports of explosions aboard the dredge were circulated ashore after it had sunk.

Alderman Elected London Lord Mayor

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(INS)—Alderman Maurice Jenks, who will be knighted shortly, was elected Lord Mayor of London today for the year beginning November 1. Guildhall was strewn with sweet herbs and the alderman carried the customary nosegays during today's proceedings.

3 PLACES UNDER DRY BAN

Judge Nelson McVicar granted temporary injunctions against three downtown places charged with violation of the prohibition laws today, pending final hearings in Federal Court, December 22.

One place is described as a drinking room on the second floor, 142 Sixth street. Patrick F. Smith is the alleged proprietor.

Another is described as a bar and club on the second floor, 522 Second avenue. Joe Tanney, alleged proprietor.

The third is called a drinking room on the first and second floors of 542 Second avenue. The bartender, for whom a John Doe warrant has been issued, escaped during a raid by placing a plank from the third floor of the building to the Boulevard of the Allies and walking to freedom.

Child, Ex-Diplomat, Marries Governess

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 29.—(AP)—Richard Washburn Child, magazine writer and formerly ambassador to Italy, was on a honeymoon today with his fourth wife, the former Mrs. Dorothy Gallagher Everson, who was his secretary and governess to his children. They were married yesterday at the home of the bride's parents.

Refuse Span Closing To Check Gambling

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The Treasury today refused requests of El Paso business men that the international bridge to Juarez, Mexico, be closed at night.

The petition said that open gambling in the Mexican city was attracting money that should be spent with American business men in El Paso.

Can Habits of Lifetime Be Changed After Marriage?

He is giving [illegible]
Always a handsome and wise talking
The life of the Party
Whereas on the other hand Tessie [illegible] is a quiet girl with very fixed notions of proprieties
And he, Bob Phipps's free and easy manners [illegible] her up
So now Tessie wonders if marriage will change him. Because if it doesn't, how's she going to stand
"Dear Sally Martin:
I suppose [illegible] some help in a problem that's making me unhappy.

GETS EMBARRASSED

I've known Bob a [illegible] years. He's very much [illegible] and I know he [illegible] But there is one [illegible] that is [illegible] me terrib
"When we go [illegible] happen to [illegible] gives them a [illegible] of attention [illegible] talks and knows [illegible] and pats them [illegible] and sometimes [illegible] does anything to [illegible]
He [illegible] that this isn't the [illegible] do. He is 34 [illegible] embarrassed when he acts this way but I don't know what to say anything to him about it or not. I don't know. I am jealous or not but I realize when he acts this way it makes me furious.
"No matter what the girls may be [illegible] at that. I know that he likes me and he always says [illegible] doesn't know how to write and get along without me.

ONE OBJECTION

"If I thought he would still act this way after we are married honestly I would give him up tomorrow because I guess me so. Other than this he couldn't be more to me. I feel sure that he would never take another girl out [illegible] me in any way. This is one thing that makes me feel so bad when I think of it all.
"What shall I do, shall I go on and marry him. Or shall I tell him I can't stand the way he acts. Do you think he will change when we are married?
TESSIE
Don't think he'll change if you marry him.
No, youngster, I don't. And I'll dollars to doughnuts that he'll be pretty sore at you if you try to change him. In fact the chances are that he actually can't change. People can't throw off habits of a lifetime so easily, especially if they like and enjoy those habits. And one of the most foolish and futile things any man or woman ever does is to try to make over the other partner in a marriage.
And after all, why should you be sure that he needs to do a little changing.
It's true that he lacks daintily but that's not much of a fault. What if he does kid you and tease you.
Leonard says that George Washington himself chucked many a pretty chin. And as for Benjamin Franklin, whoops my dear.

MUST ADJUST NATURES

After all, who has more faults. Who spreads more honest cheer. He with his foolishness? Or you with your faultless?
You're very free with your advice to him. But has it ever occurred to you that he may be saying: "She's a dear, sweet girl, but gosh, what a social liar. Why can't she learn to [illegible] and act decidedly." Why can't she develop a sense of humor. A lifetime of her monotone. The prospect doesn't look so hot. Wonderful marriage will change her.
Maybe I'm wrong, Tessie, but I have a hunch that with you present belief in your own perfection you'll never find happiness with any man.
Better sit down and do some straight thinking. Try to change yourself a bit. Then if you find that you can't change, break. Don't attempt the impossible. If you can't adjust your different natures before marriage, you'll never do it after. And your relations will grow into open hate. Either change—or quit while the quitting's good.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Disturbance in Brain a Cause of Stomach Ills

One of the most common diseases of mankind is gastric ulcer. Apparently this disease has increased as a result of our modern methods of living.

Dr. Copeland

In the recent published statement an eminent brain surgeon states that stomach ulcers are caused by a disturbance in a certain portion of the brain. He believes that the diencephalon, the part of the brain that controls our emotions, has much to do with the stomach. He considers it probable that irritation here may be directly responsible for the formation of gastric ulcers.
This announcement is of great interest. This is particularly true because of the fact that many brain theories have been advanced as to the cause of this disease. One by one these have been abandoned.
Ulcer of the stomach, which is the same as gastric ulcer or as the doctors call it, "peptic ulcer," has been recognized for many centuries. For years it was believed the disease was due to a blocking of the blood vessels supplying a portion of the stomach. Under these circumstances it was supposed the gastric juice would destroy any portion of the stomach having lowered vitality.
It has been proposed, too, that sudden changes in the body temperature, from eating extremely cold or hot foods, might be a factor. While such practices are bad, it is doubtful if they would cause ulcer.
Seamstresses, domestic servants, saddlers, carpenters, shoemakers and salesgirls appear to have a particular tendency to this disease. The nature of their occupation has had its effect in placing pressure on the stomach region and perhaps interfering with free circulation.
There is no doubt that these factors, together with mental anxiety, have all effects upon health.
In certain cases alcoholism or specific diseases are definite factors in causing stomach ulcer. But a really definite cause has never been found.
The disease sometimes follows acute infections. It is one of the complications of severe burns involving large surfaces of the body. In such cases it is believed the ulcer follows the absorption of "toxins" or poisons.
At one time it was believed smoking caused this condition. This is very doubtful, although it is noted that the disease appears to be more common in smokers than in non-smokers.
There is such uncertainty about stomach ulcer that it is to be hoped the new theory of cause may prove conclusive. Anyhow it is interesting.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

A charming coiffure has short side locks with ends curled upward, curls remaining flat against the head. At the back the hair is longer, done in two short fat pigtails that criss-cross at the nape of the neck, and hide away their stubby ends under the side curls.
It is unwise to remove dandruff forcibly from the scalp by means of the fine teeth of a comb. Abrasions will form and wounds are likely to invite germs to come in and take possession. Digging the scalp with the finger nails is a deplorable habit and leads to diseases of the scalp.
Sloppy carriage gives an appearance of dejection. On your toes, on your way, spirits soaring. Rounded shoulders result if the spinal column isn't held properly. Breathing capacity is interfered with, fresh air doesn't trickle down into the basements of the lungs as it should for health and well-being. Digestive organs suffer from improper posture of the body, and the nervous system as well.

Hearing Good Speakers on Radio, Screen Improves Our Diction—Fay King

SHE SOUNDS AS NICE AS SHE LOOKS NOW!
YOUR VOICE WOULD BE FINE IN THE TALKIES!
SOME EVEN AFFECT THE LONG "A"
I REALLY CAWN'T SAY!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

There is a marked improvement in voices and diction these days.
I think this is due to the fact that we hear such excellent speakers on the radio and screen now.
One doesn't hear much slang, and very seldom any swearing. And when one does it is usually from an "old-timer."
Young persons are expressing themselves in a way that would be creditable to a radio announcer, or a movie star.
It is splendid, I think. Conversation was becoming a lost art until the radio and talkies revived it again.
A modulated voice and a good vocabulary are within the reach of any person who will trouble to cultivate them.
We learn easily by ear, and hearing good speakers is improving us all.

Madge Discovers Letter to Jack Bickett Is Missing

The conviction that I must not send the letter to Jack Bickett which I had written just before I came down to the hammock on the side veranda brought me to my feet with such vehemence that for a second I was fairly dizzy. As I grasped the frame of the hammock in order to keep my balance I was confronted with a fierce wonder as to what had been the matter with my mentality while I was writing that letter and planning to send it. No matter what happened Ruth Allen's nefarious scheme should succeed and Jack's happiness and Katherine's be forever shattered. I could not interfere, especially in the face of Katherine's demand and my promise—that Jack should not see Mrs. Allen's letter.
But there was no calm in my soul or my movements as I hurried across the veranda, through the hall and up the stairs to my room. I had but one thought, to get hold of the letter and destroy it. But when I reached my room I saw that the letter, back on top of my desk, was empty. The letter was gone.
I surmised what had happened. The wind had blown my imperfectly fastened door ajar, and someone passing, and knowing that I was asleep downstairs had taken the letter to the mail without disturbing me. But I could not act upon that premise until I made sure of it.
One thing was certain. I must not let Katherine suspect my anxiety. I know her keen perceptions. Any worry of mine over a letter might suggest to her that I had written one during the time when I had pretended to be lying down after taking the potion she had given me for my supposed headache. And she would not be long in performing the historic arithmetical problem of adding two and two.
I put out my hand blindly as a terrifying conjecture came to me. Whoever had taken the letter from my room might have shown it to Katherine with a query as to my wish concerning the mailing of it. She would need but one look at that envelope addressed to Martha Halkett—whom she also knew—in care of the New York office of the firm which Jack represented, to understand the scheme by which I hoped to get a letter to him without Ruth Allen's knowledge.
I did not like to think of the look in her eyes when she should realize what I had done, although I knew that her anger would be tempered by her realization of the great love I bore her, and of the close relationship of her husband, my brother-cousin, to me.
There was no use postponing the issue, however. I know her perfect poise, but I also know every line of her face, every expression of her eyes, and I was sure that if she had learned of the letter, I should be able to detect it in her face.
So, with squared shoulders and head held high, but with shaking knees and timorous heart, I went to the upper veranda where I found Katherine with a mass of fluffy wool in her lap and knitting needles plying like mad. She once told me that it was her way of working off nervousness when she was under great stress, and with the remembrance of the venomous letter from Ruth Allen and the ardent one from Hal Meredith which she had received but three hours before, I knew the reason for the flying needles.
She looked up brightly at my step, and with her smile one fear fled. She knew nothing of the letter.
"Did you have a good sleep?" she asked. "I put the house under martial law to make sure that you would not be disturbed."
"I had a wonderful rest, thank you," I said, stressing the pronoun, and laying my hand affectionately upon her shoulder for an instant. "The house is absolutely quiet, and I haven't had a glimpse of anyone. Where is everybody?"
"Sit down, and I'll give you the location of the company," she told me with a smile. "Your daughter and I are here, as you see; your son and Roderick are with your father at the lily pool watching those fish that build nests; the boys are perfectly fascinated by them, you know; your mother-in-law is taking her regular afternoon nap in her room. Katie is in the kitchen, under strict admonition not to rattle pans or sing. Jim is keeping watch over everything, under orders from Harry who has gone with Lillian, Mary and Marion to Southampton."
And my letter. I said to myself, but kept my face immobile.
As for Dicky and the nephews, all went on and I took a quick, panicky glance at my wrist watch.
Thanks I reminding me, I said secretly glad to get away. They ought to be here within the hour. I must see to some last things in their room.
I hope those boys will realize how fortunate they are in having you," she said as I went out, and there was a little glow in my heart at her tribute as I went down the hall to the door of a guest room which, with the supervision and advice of Dicky and Hazel, I had transformed into a combined sitting and bedroom which I hoped Hank and Bill would appreciate.
With my hand on the door knob I started back as Junior's voice sounded from inside the room.
"Gee, Red," he was saying. "Ain't this the swellest hangout? Don't you kids have all the luck."

Correct Manners -:-

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Words of Appreciation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
Is it correct to thank a friend after each entertainment he gives you?
The other day a friend whom I have known for only a short time took me to a show, dinner and later in the evening refreshments. Is it correct to thank him following each one, or should I wait until he bids me good night and thank him for an enjoyable evening?
F. D.
It would be very natural to make some gracious comment of pleasure and enjoyment after each of these entertainments.
"I thoroughly enjoyed that play, Bob, and it was a most happy choice that you made." "I enjoyed dining with you very much; what a charming restaurant that is!" And then as you say goodnight make a general thank you expression.
All of this sounds I realize like a great deal of thanking. But as a matter of fact it wouldn't be so obvious since it would be scattered through the evening. The fundamental point is that a well-bred person says things of appreciation of gratitude for another's thought and plan of hospitality.

A Letter to a Teacher

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
I would appreciate seeing it in your column the correct form for an excuse to be sent by the mother to a teacher in a public school for the child's absence. M. S.
Something like this is correct.
My dear Miss Thurston:
Mary was ill yesterday and thought it best for her not to come to school. Will you excuse her absence, please?
Very sincerely yours,
Mary Smith Browne

NEW BAN ASKED ON ICE PLANT

Declaring it a nuisance and in violation of the Snyder act, Deputy General Ralph H. Smith today filed suit for an injunction in Common Pleas Court against the Labor Products and Ice Company of Breckenridge. The suit was filed by Smith as representative of Attorney General William A. Schnader and District Attorney Andrew T. Park. Named defendants were S. C. Walters, president; C. K. Nichols, vice president, and A. N. Chalfant, secretary and treasurer, and the company.

The filing of the suit is another chapter of a long list of court battles following a raid upon the plant last June, during which Dry Administrator John D. Pennington was scored by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson for ordering the plant dismantled, holding that its seizure was illegal. The government's application for a "padlock" is pending before Federal Judge Nelson McVicar.

Thugs Beat Sleeper Flee With $2,000

MARTINS FERRY, O., Sept. 29.—Beaten as he slept, Dimic Salabino was robbed early today of $2,000 by three young men who were armed with revolvers, a knife and a hammer. The money was taken from under Salabino's pillow.

Tests Mattresses, Sleeper Held By Police

John J. Brogan, 24, of 216 Amity street, Homestead, arrested yesterday on the second floor of the Chamber of Commerce Building after twice going to sleep on mattresses on display by manufacturers, was arraigned in Central Police Court today before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

He testified:

"There are so many inferior mattresses I decided to test them out."

He was held over for observation.

8 WOMEN HELD IN THEFT RING

Eight young women, alleged to have constituted a ring for theft of merchandise in two downtown stores, were held for the grand jury on charges of larceny and conspiracy by Magistrate T. D. Jones, in Morals Court today.

A ringleader is now being sought in Ohio.

Held in $500 bail were Clara Hegley, 23, of 1543 Grandview avenue; Agnes Brose, 27, of 1500 Main street, Sharpsburg; Ethel Sauder, 23, of 755 Boquet street, McKees Rocks; Margaret Graham, 25, of 1207 Resara place, and Lucy Kegel, 33, of 1223 Stranmore street.

Bond of $1,000 was fixed for Ethel McClelland, 26, of Noblestown; Anna McCullough, 22, of 324 Bingham street, and Elizabeth Ray, 26, of Bridgeville.

ONLY 14 FEVER CASES HERE

One definite case and one suspected case of typhoid fever are under quarantine at the Marine Hospital the city Health Department was notified today. One of the patients, a Hill district Negro, informed hospital attendants he had not been out of the city. Health officers are seeking to learn the source of the disease. The other patient is a non-resident.

Only 14 cases of typhoid, and no deaths have occured among residents of Pittsburgh thus far this year, the best record in the city's history, according to Dr. Phillip E. Marks, superintendent of the bureau of infectious diseases.

A nurse is suffering from typhoid in the Suburban General Hospital, Bellevue, according to a report to the county medical director. She is believed to have contracted the disease while out of the state, the report stated.

The City Department of Health today reports these new cases in quarantine: Scarlet fever, 1; diphtheria, 2; measles, 2; whooping cough, 1; erysipelas, 1, and pneumonia, 4.

RACKET MURDER STILL MYSTERY

Another unsolved murder attributed to racketeers was added to the long list in Allegheny County, when a coroner's jury recommended the apprehension of the unknown slayer or slayers of Thomas Sacco, a gardener, found dead in Sewickley Cemetery, August 8. A shotgun nearby and wounds in the head and body of Sacco told the story of his death. Sacco lived in Cook way, Sewickley, and was employed on the J. Stewart Brown estate. Sacco was 39 and the father of seven children.

Hosiery Workers In Auto Cavalcade

READING, Pa., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Arrival today of the New England contingent of nearly 300 textile workers, all in the full fashioned silk hosiery trade, to aid in the campaign here to unionize local mills and to force a walkout at plants here in protest against wage cutting, carried out promises of organizers in the Masachusetts area that they would join in the movement.

More than 40 touring cars, carrying nearly 300 knitters and others in allied hosiery trades, were here.

Phillippe Overlooked. • Pirates Plan to Draft.
Mullin Not Leader. Will Pass Up Shires.
Sisler's First Pennant. Unbeaten Irish Teams.

BUC HURLS 44 INNINGS IN ONE SERIES

WITH THE SCHEDULE for the world series arranged in a way that will enable Connie Mack to use Lefty Grove and George Earnshaw to nearly all of the pitching work on the American League side of the argument, a popular topic of discussion is the possibility that one or the other of those star southpaws may crowd in a sufficient amount of toil to establish a new record for the classic. In this connection, some of the dopesters, supported by several of the record books, are telling fandom that the mark which Grove and Earnshaw will have to beat to hang up new figures is held by George Mullin, of the Detroit Tigers, who pitched a total of 32 innings against the Pirates in the title debate of 1909.

Deacon Phillippe

Evidently, the dopesters and the books have muffed one. They have overlooked the real record holder and the real record for the man to do the greatest amount of pitching in a world series wasn't Mullin at all, but Charles (Deacon) Phillippe, the old Pirate star, who topped Mullin's figures by more than a full game.

HURLING FOR THE B...aneers against the Red Sox in the first modern world series in 1903, Phillippe pitched a total of 44 innings or 12 more than are credited to Mullin. The Deacon started five games and finished them all, without assistance another mark that has not been equaled by Mullin or anybody else. Mullin took part in only four games, and in one of them was just a relief pitcher.

Phillippe pitched nine innings in the first game on October 1 against Cy Young and won 7 to 3, nine innings in the third game on October 3 against Tom Hughes and Young and won 4 to 2, nine innings in the fourth game on October 6 against Bill Dineen and won 5 to 4, nine innings in the seventh game on October 10 against Young and lost 7 to 3, and eight innings in the eighth game on October 13 against Dineen and lost 3 to 0.

MULLIN PITCHED EIGHT innings in the first game of the 1909 series, lasted in the fourth inning in the sixth, and in the seventh after relieving Wild Bill Donovan. He lost in the first start and won in the next two. Detroit's defeat in the final was charged against Donovan.

Phillippe in the same year became the first pitcher to win three games in a series and the only one who ever won three of the first four contests. Though the 1903 affair was not under commission supervision, it was just as much a world series as any of the others played since and from every angle Phillippe is entitled to recognition for the records he established in almost winning the world championship for Pittsburgh single-handed.

THE GREATEST NUMBER of innings pitched by one moundsman in world series competition of more than one year still stands at 101 2/3 frames, credited to Christy Mathewson, of the Giants in the series of 1905-11-12-13. Mathewson also pitched the greatest number of consecutive scoreless innings in one series, 27 in 1905, when he shut out the A's three times. The record for greatest number of consecutive scoreless innings over more than one series is held by Babe Ruth at 29. He hurled 13 blanks in 1916 and 16 in 19... for the Red Sox. The closest approach to Mathewson's 27 runless innings in succession in one series was made last year by George Earnshaw with 22.

George Sisler

Napoleon Lajoie wasn't the only great ball player who starred through a long major league career and passed out of the big show without ever getting a chance to appear in a world series. George Sisler was another.

When Rochester nosed out Newark for the International League pennant this year it enabled Sisler to realize the ambition of a baseball lifetime, the aim to be a member of a championship club. He saw 16 years of service in the two major leagues, but second place was the nearest any of the three clubs on which he played ever came to winning a pennant.

NONE OF THE officials of the Pittsburgh club will attend the world series, so that the Pirates will not be directly represented at the annual draft meeting in St. Louis tomorrow night.

However, the Bucs' management will give Commissioner Landis the names of several minor league players for whom it wishes to put in claims, and a representative of the Commissioner's office will act for the local club in the drawing.

THE RED SOXERS, evidently satisfied with Gus Suhr, will not claim Lu Blue, San Francisco Art Shires, who has become subject to draft because the Newarkers club failed in its efforts to sell him. Whether any other big league club will claim Shires remains to be seen. Only one player can be taken from each club in the Class AA and Class A leagues. The new scale fixes $7,500 as the price for each player drafted from Class AA, $6,000 for Class A, $4,000 for Class B, $2,500 for Class C, and $2,000 for Class D.

THEY THOUGHT THAT Jimmy Johnston promoter of the off-again-on-again Sharkey-Carnera bout was funning when he announced his intention of sending a rabbi to Sharkey, but he insists that he means it. Now that there is another wrong with the former sailor's [illegible] Jimmy Johnston thinks it would do his hand good.

[illegible] of the old-time fighters that they all earned [illegible] explained. "They did not do that to be sure [illegible] was to have something to keep gripping with their [illegible] ground constantly with the handle of the cane at the fighter's hands."

NOTRE DAME, under a new coach in the person of Hunk Anderson, keeps eleven for another season the football slate that was marred by a defeat or a tie in 1929 or 1930 while the late Knute Rockne was working magic.

Hunk Anderson

The efforts of the Irish in that direction will be watched with keen interest by gridiron fans everywhere from the time they open the campaign Saturday with a game against Indiana University at Bloomington.

NOTRE DAME has had 14 undefeated teams in her 42 seasons an average of one every three years. The first span without a defeat covered the three years of 1889-92-93, when the early South Bend gridders won six games and tied one. In 1903, the Irish won eight and played a scoreless tie with Northwestern, the team going through season without being scored on. Two more clean slates were returned in 1907 and 1909, the record for the two seasons combined being 13 victories and one tie. In 1911-12-13, with Rockne, Dorais and Eichenlaub starring as players, the varsity won 29 games, one tun in 1911. In 1919 and 1920, George Gipp's teams, on which Anderson, now coach, played guard, won 18 straight games without a tie or defeat in either year. The season of 1924 brought the Four Horsemen and the national championship. In 1929 and 1930 the team won 19 consecutive games and two more national titles. Notre Dame has lost only 48 games all told, an average of slightly more than one per season.

INJURIES HURT TECH; DUKES RESUME WORK

Coach Jack Sutherland has no changes in mind in his lineup for Saturday's game with Iowa at Iowa City, but he intends to give his squad two more intensive workouts before they pull out for Iowa City tomorrow night.

Despite the one-sided score of last week's game the Pitt coach was far from satisfied. The interference while it looked well on several occasions notably the long runs of Reider and Heller, fell down at other times. The kicking was bad, both Hogan's punting and Reider's placements being far below major college standards.

Bobby Hogan, sophomore quarterback again will be at the helm, his play being fairly pleasing.

The team leaves tomorrow evening and arrives in Chicago Thursday morning. Practice will be held on Stagg Field in the afternoon, and that night the team entrains for Davenport, Ia., where it will stay until a couple of hours before the game. Friday's practice will be held in the Municipal Stadium there.

DRESHAR MAY BE OUT

Carnegie Tech's football squad started work yesterday for Saturday's battle with W. & J. low in morale and weak in numbers. The scholastic defections of Croft, Burick and Reuter Saturday's penalty to Henry Dreshar, and the continued inability of Heller and Sayles to don uniforms mark the available numerical strength of the Tartans just 28 men.

There is only the barest possibility that Dreshar will be ready for service Saturday, for the freshman lineman's form which recovers is never rapid.

Heller and Sayles, the former 1930 Pierce who was recently made over into a back and the latter a substitute halfback and fullback, did not even don their uniforms in Buffalo, nor were they able to work out yesterday.

Coach Waddell to whom Judge Steffen committed the squad when he left for Chicago immediately following the Buffalo game, is in sore straights for actual manpower, what with only two experienced guards being available and the entire left side of his line still unsettled because of Croft's loss.

There is only one lineup that can be used next Saturday. That will have Ducanis at center, either Stewart or Ostrosky at left end, Lewis at right end, Kebe and Sample at guards, Fletcher and

GRIMES CARDS' KEY MAN

By BABE RUTH

Baseball's Highest Salaried Player

They tell me that Burleigh Grimes has not been as effective this season as he was a year ago, and the advance dope on the world series is that the veteran spitballer will not play so big a part in the coming games as he did a year ago. I have read that Hallahan and Derringer are counted on more than Burleigh to overthrow the As.

Babe Ruth

Until Gabby Street proves otherwise I will stick to the belief that Grimes again will be the key pitcher in the Cardinals staff. By that I mean that the pitching choices for the games will depend chiefly on the number of times he will be called to take his turn on the mound. I expect to see him pitted against Grove's opponent in the opening game and I expect to see Street send him back at the first opportunity.

Grimes is a money pitcher of the highest order and the best bet I believe that the Cardinals have for starting the series. He pitched great ball in both of his starts last year, holding the Mackmen to five hits in each game. The As never could organize anything like a batting rally against him. In his first game they got no more than one run in any inning against Grimes, and in his other game he shut out the As until the ninth when Jimmy Foxx slapped him for a homer which beat him. Home runs accounted for two runs in each of Grimes' games.

Grimes was none too effective in some of his recent appearances but that means nothing. Just before the 1930 series Earnshaw was having all sorts of trouble in his games, and then he turned out to be the hero of the series. As long as a pitcher is physically fit it makes no difference what happened the last time he pitched. I understand that Grimes' arm is all right and that is all that is necessary. He is a smart pitcher and not likely to get flustered by an error or two.

A's Slight Favorites To Grab World Series

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Philadelphia Athletics are and should be slight favorites in their World Series competition with the St. Louis Cardinals which begins Thursday afternoon in St. Louis. Several important phases of the titular play smile upon the revered Cornelius McGillicuddy, yet even Cornelius must realize the significance of the one big handicap that confronts him. The [illegible] barrier is of such moment it should be elaborated on at the outset. Here it is.

Since the Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Red Sox started the intersectional strife 28 years ago, no club has won the emblem three times in succession. Many have won twice in order, but the third title has evaded all. Naturally, Mack is eager to cap the performances of his present great collection with this record feat.

ATHLETICS FAVORED

The outstanding per cent angles that favor the Athletics, in this writer's opinion, are herewith reproduced.

Pitching is conceded to be at least 50 per cent welfare. The entries for the impending fights are blessed with fine slab corps, but the Athletics have the ideal setup for a short series. The Cardinals, with their better-balanced team and substantial pitchers, might be able to win consistently over any club in the sport in a long test, but world series titles are decided on short sets. One great pitcher has often swayed the series, and Mack has the greatest flinger in Lefthander Robert Grove; he has another great luminary in Righthander George Earnshaw.

The arrangement of the series playing schedule is such the casual observer might think it was suggested by the American League, yet the Cardinal owners are said to have asked for the plan in effect. If they did it shows their shortcomings so far as strategy is concerned. Under the schedule Grove and Earnshaw could work both games in St. Louis and then profit by the two days of idleness preceeding the resumption of hostilities in Philadelphia. This means that the two stars could come back in full strength after the customary three-day rest period.

The playing field angle gives the American League stars a fine edge, which, quite naturally, is not considered by the average fan outside of St. Louis. The Athletics will not be bothered by any strange scenery or shadows when they take on their National League foemen in St. Louis because the games there will be played at the American League Park. Years ago the National League had a better layout than the home of the Browns, but as usual, the league was asleep at the switch and the Redbirds lost their field. The Cards, on the other hand, have not even seen Shibe Park since their troubled two-day experience of last season.

BREAKS IN BIG ROLE

These considerations are not pointed out with the idea of furnishing excuses for the National League in the event of another victory by the junior circuit. Nearly any baseball man of long standing will contend that the breaks play a part in any crucial

MAUREEN TOPS MRS. RILEY

TORONTO, Sept. 29. (AP)—Maureen Orcutt, of Englewood, N. J., defending champion, today scored a 7-and-6 triumph over Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Pittsburgh, in a first round match of the 1931 Canadian women's golf championship.

Three other favored Americans kept pace with Miss Orcutt, Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, eliminating Mrs. Cecil Cowan, of Toronto, 7 and 6; Marion Hollins, of Santa Cruz, Cal., a former American champion, defeating Mrs. Ronald Holmes, of Toronto, Canadian closed champion, 7 and 6, and Mrs. Harley Higbee, of Detroit, putting out Mrs. Eric Phillips, of Toronto, 6 and 4.

By her victory today Mrs. Higbee won the doubtful honor of opposing Miss Orcutt in the second round tomorrow. Miss Orcutt appeared to be near the top of her game in the qualifying round yesterday and in her match today, She led the qualifying field yesterday with an 80.

In a duel between local players Mrs. E. W. Whittington defeated Mrs. Charles Eddis, 3 and 2, and will meet Miss Hollins tomorrow.

Kinney, Discoverer Of McGraw, Dies

AUBURN, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Albert F. Kinney, 70, recognized as the discoverer of John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, died here yesterday.

Kinney was said to be McGraw's closest friend. The famous manager always introduced Kinney by saying "Here is the man who put me in baseball."

When McGraw was playing sandlot baseball in Truxton, N. Y., Kinney singled him out as a star. He managed McGraw and farmed him out to various village teams until he landed his protege a contract with the Baltimore Orioles.

A'S HOLD EDGE IN FIELDING; HAINES LOST

NEW YORK, Sept. 29. (AP)—Measured by the caliber of pitching or the yardstick of fielding skill, the World Champion Athletics possess a margin of superiority over the Cardinals in defensive strength for the baseball championship battle which opens at St. Louis Thursday.

The National League champion have a faster infield, featuring the Frisch-Gelbert combination around second base. The A's otherwise have an advantage on the mound, behind the bat and in the outfield, especially if the serio-comical Gallivan Mule Haas is back in top form.

A'S GIVE FINE SUPPORT

Lefty Grove and George Earnshaw, the twin aces upon whom the hopes of another quick American League victory are based, always have had the benefit of sterling support from their teammates.

At times last October it appeared some of the Cardinal batsmen were not properly visualizing the smoke of Grove and Earnshaw, let alone penetrating it with any substantial success. Walberg and Hoyt will form the second line of pitching defense for the A's.

The Cardinal hurling defense will be distinctly a gamble, as Gabby Street is forced to rely on Paul Derringer and Bill Hallahan instead of Burleigh Grimes and Jess Haines, veterans of the Redbird flock. Derringer is a newcomer to series fire. With Hallahan, it's either a shutout or a knockout. He blanked the A's the first time he faced them last year and was routed in two innings the next time.

JESS HAINES LOST

Sparky Adams, Cards' third baseman, has a sprained ankle, Pepper Martin, center fielder, has a wrenched knee. Both players were ordered to rest by Dr. Robert Hyland, club doctor.

Jesse Haines, leading pitcher of the National League, appears definitely out of the series. He injured a shoulder muscle early in September and it has failed to respond to treatment, the club has announced officially.

Loss of the veteran righthander will rob Street of one of his best bets. Haines defeated Bob Grove last year, and in the last three World Series in which the Cards have appeared, scored three victories to one defeat.

Street says he will not an

MACK NAMES A'S LINEUP

By CONNIE MACK

Manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, Leading Winners of Nine Pennants

In the coming World Series, I am going to adhere to my old policy of not naming my pitchers in advance.

I have in mind to start only three pitchers, Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg.

If any other pitchers are used it will be because one of the starting pitchers has been hit or a situation came up where a pinch-hitter was essential.

I feel that I am better off for pitchers than I was last fall, when I had to depend solely on Grove and Earnshaw.

Connie Mack

This year I not only have this pair of aces available again, but, in addition, there is Walberg, who won more games for me in the pennant season than he ever captured before.

Besides this trio, I have Waite Hoyt, who has been through pennant fire before, and Lee Roy Mahaffey for emergency. Then don't forget that Eddie Rommel finished the season in exceptional form and is ready if I call on him.

LINEUP ALMOST INTACT

It has been pointed out that the two days' intermission between the games in St. Louis and Philadelphia will give me a pronounced advantage. I fail to see the point, for the Cardinal pitchers will be resting, too.

My past experience has proved to me that pitching is the biggest factor in a World Series and I feel that I have the flingers who will deliver.

Bar accidents, I will use Foxx at first, Bishop at second, Williams at short, Dykes at third with Simmons, Haas and Miller in the outfield and Cochrane behind the bat.

This is the same lineup that won two straight world series, with the exception that Williams has replaced Boley at short because of the wonderful manner he has covered that position in the last half of the pennant race.

I never make predictions before a world series, but I enter the coming series with every confidence in my team.

BETHANY PRODUCES TOUGH, IMPROVED TEAM

YOUNG, HEAVY SQUAD SHOWS REAL FIGHT

(This is the sixteenth of an annual series of special articles, written by Jess Carver, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph football writer, dealing with the prospects of tri-state district college elevens. The article on St. Vincent will appear in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph.)

By JESS CARVER
Staff Correspondent

BETHANY, W. Va., Sept. 29.—They are looking forward to an improvement in the football situation here at old Bethany this fall. The Bisons had rather a drab season in 1930, and all the boys will have to do this year to better their record of a year ago will be to score 13 points and hold the opposition to less than 336. They figure to do this, for they haven't booked any major college elevens, such as Wash-Jeff and Colgate, teams that walloped them last year by scores of 74-0 and 99-0 respectively.

Coach John Knight installed the Notre Dame system last fall. The team started miserably, but by the time the close of the season rolled around, was playing better ball, especially on the defense, and managed to score touchdowns against both Thiel and Waynesburg.

Knight and his new assistant, Ranny Randolph, himself a former Bethany great, when Bethany had some greats to brag of, are working with a squad of some 35 players, including an even dozen lettermen. The team is young, but is heavier than it was a year ago and has indicated better spirit. In fact, it shows symptoms of turning out to be a right tough ball club.

FAIRLY EASY SCHEDULE

The schedule isn't so tough either, which will help some. Marshall will be played this week in the opener, and then Waynesburg, Muskingum, Thiel, Fairmont, Morris-Harvey and Grove City are to be battled on successive Saturdays.

Six of the lettermen are backs and six linemen, giving Knight an opportunity to mix experience with green material, both in the formation of his forward wall and in the backfield. Capt. Dupke, Steele, Grenevicki, Bonar, Ferguson and Moffatt comprise the list of lettermen, with the first two named lettermen topping the list.

Don Buttermore, Tischler, a holdover, Peters, Wells and Nee are the most likely appearing tackles. Buttermore, a veteran, is sure to be in there. Dopko, who played at tackle a year ago, has been shifted to the backfield and is being tried at fullback. Tischler appears to be the most probable running mate for Buttermore at a starting position.

Lewis and McQuown, both letter winners of the past, will be used at the guards as long as they can stick. Rinehart, a promising freshman, who also kicks well, has the best chance of breaking in. Indeed, his booting ability may win him one of the jobs yet. Pruett, who also has shown to advantage. Heckman and Bates are other center of the line prospects.

THREE QUARTERBACKS

Fisher, a veteran, Mann and Mason are scrapping for the center job with Fisher out in front, mainly because of his ability on the offense.

The coaches are experimenting with a trio of quarterbacks, one of whom is a letterman. This chap, McVey, likely will start against Marshall Saturday. The other two, McDonald, a freshman of promise, and Thompson, an accurate passer, will see a lot of service.

The halfback jobs are being sought after by Pollard, Martin, Thomas, Worsencroft, Zingle, with Pollard the only letterman and the outstanding man in the backfield. He runs and passes well and has been consistently good on the defense.

Grescovich, a veteran, and Dopko, shifted from tackle, are battling neck and neck for the fullback job. Grescovich, with a year's experience as a back, will get the nod over Dopko, who'll make a fine reserve man. Grescovich is fast and hits hard enough to do a lot of damage.

Coach Knight is well pleased with the improved spirit of the squad and with the way in which the boys have grasped the intricacies of the system. He anticipates making a creditable showing.

Follow the World Series Through The Sun-Telegraph and Scoreboard

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph electric scoreboard for the world series is in place on the Grant street side of its building, at Strawberry way.

Every day during the series beginning Thursday in St. Louis the games will be flashed on the scoreboard as played. An announcer with a megaphone will furnish additional details. There is room for thousands to view this scoreboard and you are invited to be among them.

As soon as each game is over, a world series extra of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, with complete story of the game in detail and box score, will appear on the streets.

An all-star staff is covering the series for your favorite newspaper, headed by Charles J. Doyle, veteran staff baseball writer. Others include Connie Mack, manager of the World Champion Philadelphia Athletics; Babe Ruth, Mickey Cochrane, star catcher of the A's; Nick Altrock, the humorist, and staff writers of the International News Service and Associated Press.

You will have to read the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph up to and through the series to keep posted on the news and highlights, as well as to get the best photographs of the action and the notables.

PITT TO LEAVE FOR IOWA

Forsman at tackles, Dueger or Beretvas, and Armentrout, Pouncey and Kavel in the backfield.

Word from Wash-Jeff is that John Fife, sophomore guard, is out with torn ligaments and is unlikely to face the Plaid.

DUKES IMPROVE AIR GAME

The Benedict-to-Pratt forward passing combination may have departed from the Bluff forever, but nevertheless, the Duquesne University football team has a dangerous aerial attack for all foes. That interesting bit of information developed as the Night Riders battled Greasy Neal's Mountaineers last Saturday. The duet of DeVinney-to-DeLuca and DeLuca-to-DeVinney has all the polish of the old combination.

Bud DeVinney, the tiny quarterback tosser and Al DeLuca, the sophomore running back, doubtless will make the spectators rise from their seats in the Forbes Field stands many times this season. Duke alumni hope that will be the case Friday night when the Red and Blue tackles the invading Oglethorpe University team from Atlanta, Ga.

Coach Elmer Layden will work this week toward developing a second backfield to replace his first string combination of Al DeLuca and Val Trambley at the halves, Silvio Zaninelli, at fullback, and either DeVinney or Larry Sullivan, at quarterback. He is very well disposed toward his pony combination of Fred Cristina and George Chacko, as halfbacks, and Ben Pawlina, at the fullback post. Larry Sullivan or Frank DeCoster calling the signals.

IOWA DRILLS FOR PITT

IOWA CITY, Ia., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—With only five remaining practices before the Pittsburgh game, Coach Burt Ingwersen sent his University of Iowa squad through a long offensive scrimmage yesterday. On off-tackle plays and end runs the varsity backs broke away for long gains, but they were unable to punch the yearling line with success.

Four injured players—Merten and Swaney, ends, and Samuelson and Orvis, tackles—were in uniform, but were kept from scrimmage. It is doubtful whether any of the four lettermen will be in the Pittsburgh game.

Transfer of Army, Harvard Tilt Refused

WEST POINT, N. Y., Sept. 29.—(INS.)—Army will play Harvard on October 17 at Michie Stadium, West Point, despite the efforts of New York officials to have the game moved to one of the major league ball parks with a percentage of the gate receipts going to charity.

The game which would perhaps have attracted a capacity crowd of 70,000 in New York will have to be played at West Point, in the small Army stadium seating 23,000.

Allderdice Girl Wins Tennis Title

Miss Leah Goldstein, of Allderdice, won the Pittsburgh junior high school girls' tennis championship by defeating Miss Hilda Hyman, also of Allderdice, in the final round of the annual title competition. Miss Hyman was defeated by Miss Virginia Kunkle in the final of the same tournament last year.

PHILS BEATS MACKS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—With Chuck Klein, the National League's 1931 home run king, featuring his spectacular play, the Phillies pounded out a 5-to-0 decision over the Athletics in a game played for the benefit of the Philadelphia Chapter of the Salvation Army Relief Fund yesterday. Less than 4,000 fans paid $8,529.50 to see Klein drive in all the Phillies' runs with two homers off of Waite Hoyt.

CARDS HIT BY INJURIES

nounce until tomorrow what pitcher he will start.

"They just surmised that," Street said, when told of reports he would start Paul Derringer, sensational first year pitcher, in the first game, and follow with Wild Bill Hallahan.

FRISCH AILING

Street however, did not deny Derringer and Hallahan would pitch the first two games.

Yesterday's practice for the Cards was with the American League baseball. Watkins and Frisch slammed it for long blows. Frisch, although in uniform, is another ailing player. He had a tooth pulled, and complains of pains. Rumors he might be out of the series brought a laugh from the Fordham flash.

Connie Mack's famous scorecard must be ranked as a defensive weapon. The 68-year-old manager has studied the batting habits of every Cardinal personally or through his trusted agents, and will wave his men into position accordingly.

STREET OPTIMISTIC

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Except for Pitcher Jess Haines, who probably will see no action because of an arm injury, Manager Gabby Street expects the St. Louis Cardinals to be at their full strength for the World Series.

Gabby said today he believes both John "Pepper" Martin, centerfielder, and Sparky Adams, third baseman, will be ready for action in the first game against the Athletics, here Thursday.

Haines, Street said, probably will not pitch during the series. The big righthander pulled a muscle three weeks ago, and has not pitched since. Until he was injured, Haines was regarded as the probable Cardinal starting pitcher in the first game of the series.

It was regarded as likely today that Street would send Paul Derringer, giant righthander, against the Athletics in the opening game.

Street ordered another workout for this afternoon, after the players return to Sportsman's Park from a "Victory Parade" through the downtown streets. They will be joined in the polishing up maneuvers by Bill Walker, lefthander, of the Giants, who has volunteered his services.

A'S LEAVE TONIGHT

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Determined to set a new record by winning their third consecutive world baseball championship, the Philadelphia Athletics entrain tonight for St. Louis.

The Athletics will arrive in the Missouri metropolis shortly after 5 o'clock, eastern standard time, tomorrow afternoon, too late for a workout at Sportsman Park, where the first game of the series is scheduled to be played Thursday.

Aboard the A's special train besides the players will be their wives, Mayor Mackey, Thomas S. Shibe, president of the Athletics, Mrs. Thomas Shibe, Mrs. Connie Mack, Mrs. Earl Mack and several Philadelphia officials.

Jewel Ens Leaves For World Series

Jewel Ens, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, will leave tonight for St. Louis to see the opening battle of the world series with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Ens expects the National Leaguers to upset the dope against the Mackmen despite the fact that Haines will not be able to hurl.

His future as leader of the Pirates remains unsettled.

REFEREE SHEEHAN DIES

REVERE, Mass., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Jack Sheehan, 60, dean of New England boxing referees, died last night at his home after a short illness. He had acted as referee for 44 years, and on several occasions was the third man in the ring with such fighters as Dempsey, Jeffries, Corbett, and Sharkey.

NICK ALTROCK FINDS STREET GABBY GUY

By NICK ALTROCK
Baseball's Funny Man

In today's immense installment, Uncle Nicholas analyzes Gabby Street. Digging up the retroactive dirt of his career, I find he caught Walter Johnson's fast-ball pitching for years. That means he cannot wigwag signals to the Cardinal players with his fingers, as they would look like four pounds of pig's knuckles, and even the fans in the centerfield bleachers could catch on.

Nick Altrock

I don't know how Gabby semaphores to his players on the field. The only actual signaling I saw him do in last year's series was waving his pitchers out of the box.

However, signaling is not so important. If it was, the guy that hung the lanterns in the church tower would be more famous than Paul Revere.

For experience, Gabby has managed all kinds of teams. Only half a dozen years ago he was piloting the Muskogee (Okla.) club. That is one of those outfits that use second hand sofa pillows for bases and make all their road trips on bicycles.

HAS GIFT OF GAB

Gabby's first big league appearance was with the Cincinnati Reds. He didn't stay in Cincinnati long enough to find what places had the best beer. When the Reds decided to let him go, the National League gate so many waives they had to pour oil on them. That's how Gabby finally landed with our Washington club.

It was due to the congressional influence in Washington that Street developed into a talker. When he disagreed with an umpire, it sounded like a filibuster. Many an ump at the plate had to call for cloture to tell Gabby he was out of the game.

Gabby was simply 20 years ahead of the times with his gab. If he had waited for the radio to be invented, Floyd Gibbons still would be in Europe chasing pictures and Gabby now would be puncturing your eardrums with a microphone. He is 100 per cent talkie.

VETERAN OF TWO WARS

When it comes to war, Gabby's sleeve is just a mess of service stripes. He joined up in the Spanish War just to get three squares of pork and beans a day. When that didn't kill him, he decided to take a whirl at the World War, too. Gabby was in the poison gas division, which left him hungry cory for those St. Louis fans when the Cards get into a losing streak.

All in all, you can see he is quite a gent. The miracles he worked with the St. Louis team leave him the logical successor to Houdini. But the burden on Gabby's shoulders to beat the A's is heavier than a knapsack a rolled blanket and a trench shovel.

Unless the law of averages has been repealed, it's about time the National League won a world series. This puts it distinctly up to Gabby. I admit he has a well-balanced team. But even a well-balanced team can be pushed off a cliff, along with the horse.

TOUGH JOB AHEAD

However, he isn't going into the world series for the honor of the National League. Gabby will enter the series just to win one game at a time. His only job is to count four before Connie Mack.

FIVE SOCCER TILTS CARDED

The Pittsburgh Central Soccer League will stage four games again Saturday afternoon. Tarentum United, the new club, meets the green-clad Celtics in a night game at the Sanders Field. The Pittsburgh Rovers play Clan Douglas, at Westinghouse High School field. National Tube travels to the German Sport Club grounds, and Union Switch and Signal engages Westinghouse at Tuttle Creek.

The Union Switch aggregation came through with a record score Saturday, Angus McNair having a mess of goals to his credit. Dunn played extremely well at halfback, and his feeding of Nelson with shooting opportunities was a treat.

Manager Campbell received a shock when Eicher failed to appear for the game. Eicher has played all the pre-season games with the Switch. It is rumored he is going to alien himself with the Sport Club, which appears to be unfair to all of the clubs in the league.

JOE ZIVIC, NOTICE

The Boxer is requested to call Chuck Wagner and ask for Schenley card.

St. Louis Fan Gets in Line For Opener

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29.—(INS.)—To Horace L. Enspaugh, 29, goes the distinction of being the first fan to wait for the bleacher ticket window at Sportsman's Park to open for the beginning of the world series.

Enspaugh, an unemployed hotel clerk, took up his stand in front of the ticket window yesterday, determined not to budge from the spot until Thursday, when the series opens between the Cardinals and the Athletics.

HERRERA LACES GOODMAN AT GARDEN

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Billy Butler vs. George Fallis, 10 rounds, Stan Sahon vs. Leo Sullivan, Pete Baddick vs. Andy Angelo and Bull Young vs. Wild Bill Clemens, 6 rounds each, and Paul Niemeyer vs. Billy Sheridan, 4 rounds, Mt. Clemens, Mich.
K. O. Christner vs. Nate Brown, 10 rounds, Akron, O.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Joey Goodman, of Cleveland, fought another one of his bad fights last night, against Tony Herrera, of Chicago, in the 10-round main bout of the reopening show at Motor Square Garden, and, as a result, a near-capacity crowd almost passed out from ennui.

Here was a fight that was almost two years in the making and loomed up as a "natural," and Goodman came in a half-pound overweight at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and was bluntly told he would have to take it off or there would be no fight. He went to the East Liberty Y. M. C. A. and trained away the excess avoirdupois and then went into the ring to take a first-class shellacking in all but the first and last rounds.

Herrera merely felt out Goodman in a tame opening round, which was even, and in the last round Goodman traded blows and once caught Tony off balance and caused him to slip to the floor and got an even break in the session. All of the other rounds were one-sided in Tony's favor, with Goodman on a bicycle and absorbing a boxing lesson.

SALA BEATS MVEY

The fight fell so far short of expectations as a contest that it really was one of the easiest matches Herrera ever has had here, and this following a long layoff. Tony scaled 138 pounds, while Goodman finally peeled down to 139. The articles called for 138 give or take a pound.

Bruno Sala, of Donora, 171½, came from behind with a finely-fought battle to beat Sunny Jim McVey, Negro, of Braddock, 169½, in the eight-round semi-final. Bobby Vogel, of Erie, 138, punched out a good win over L. S. Carpenter, of New Kensington, 132, in the second six-rounder, and Don Asto, of Uniontown, 130½, making his professional debut, caught a tough starter in Kenny Davis, of East Liverpool, O., 131, whose experience and aggressiveness carried him to victory by a handy margin.

ALL DECISIONS UNANIMOUS

All of the decisions were unanimous with the judge and the referee. Al Grayber and Red Robinson alternated as the referees and Jimmy Beeson and Frank Ferris were the judges. A. C. Couch and Tommy Grant were the timers. Bill Schuster broke back in as announcer, and went over well, and Dr. H. R. Shanor was the commission physician.

No show was announced for next Monday night, but the club may engage Willie Davies and Mose Butch for the main bout in the event it is unable to land a good opponent for Frankie Bojarski, the Erie southpaw.

Between Rounds

Bulldog Drake, Duluth lightweight, is ready to step within a couple of weeks either at Detroit or Washington, Pa. He has been training more than a week, following his long layoff due to illness.

Steve Halaiko will box Rocky Brown and Leo Kolenda will box Ralph Lenzo in the first two bouts on the all-star card at the Arena in Philadelphia next Monday night as an added attraction to the opening game of the Philadelphia end of the world series that day. Leo Nassiff is in charge of the show, and Tom Herrera faces Young Firpo in the two feature numbers. All of the bouts are 10-rounders.

Ray Arcel, ex-manager of the ex-champion Benny Leonard, is looking for a fighter to meet Jack Delaney in the 10-round main bout at the Motor Square Garden on Monday night, in addition to giving Frankie Klick a good fight for seven rounds, as planned, is Ray Arcel. A Major Bowes Amateur Hour discovery, Big Bill Duffy, of Boston, is the boy Arcel has picked to meet Delaney. Duffy has been fighting in Canada and Kansas City, and has dropped decisions to George Godfrey and Jack Gross. Frankie Klick has to be in good condition to fight with the big boys.

L. S. Carpenter, of New Kensington, will box Louis Dessotte, of Cleveland, in a preliminary to the Johnny Dutch-Frankie Wallace bout in the Cleveland Public Auditorium next Monday night. Sammy Young and Rocco Fiorillo box the first half of a double windup, with Frank Moody and Gene Stanton on tap, at the Cleveland Equestrian, Friday night.

The amateur boxing show scheduled at the Duquesne Gardens, A. A. U. tourney for Eastern Pa., at McKees Rocks, has been ordered called off by the boxing commissioner because of the club's failure to stage bouts as advertised on two previous occasions.

The Motor Square Garden gymnasium has been reopened for the use of boxers, with Red Daugherty in charge. Daugherty, last season coached the Duquesne University boxers and likely will be back on the job there again when the Dukes resume the sport.

Phil Scott, England's ring marvel, is matched to box Jack Hood, Australian, 15 rounds, at Leeds, England, October 5. Hood has promised to be on hand for the session.

Jack Dempsey is mining ore at Midas, Nev., as part of the muscle hardening process for his comeback attempt.

Jackets Celebrate Victory Over State

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 29.—Waynesburg College last night celebrated its 7-0 victory over Penn State College at State College last Saturday with a parade and bonfire.

The victory marked the first one the Jackets have scored over a major opponent and the townsfolk assisted in celebrating the occasion in a fitting manner.

Athletic Director Jim Miller and Coach Frank Wolfe, both Penn State graduates, were in charge of the big bonfire.

Receiver Appointed For Toledo Club

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—A receiver was appointed for the Toledo Baseball Club of the American Association today. Bondholders who requested the appointment said the club was $115,131 in arrears, including a $50,000 rent bill, on which the club's franchise is posted as security.

Three Brothers At Quarter for Three Teams

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 29.—Three sons of Attorney and Mrs. Adam B. Shaffer at present are playing quarterback on three football teams in this district.

George Shaffer is quarterback on the Washington and Jefferson varsity eleven. John Shaffer is quarterback on the Red and Black freshman team, while Ben Shaffer is quarterback on the Greensburg High School squad.

CADDIEMASTERS NEAR FINALE

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Paul E. Erath, of Edgewood, the defending champion, and Bill Stocker, of Stanton Heights, in the upper bracket, and Joseph Connor, of Chartiers Heights, and Edmund Onoretta, of Schenley, are battling this morning in semi-final round matches for the right to engage in this afternoon's 18-hole finale for the caddiemasters' and assistant professionals' golf championship, at the Longue Vue Club.

Erath and Stocker were co-medalists with 76s in the qualifying round yesterday morning, and breezed through first round contests yesterday afternoon.

Erath disposed of Mike Swiadak, of his own club, 4 and 3. Stocker beat Joe Vargo, of Greensburg, 4 and 3. Connor put out Frank Bruno, of Nemacolin, 1 up, and Onoretta tripped Jimmy Bruno, of Aroma, 4 and 3.

Mrs. Theodore Zinsmeister, of Stanton Heights, herself a former public linker, won the high honors in the record-breaking women's invitation tourney of the Woodhenge Club, at Schenley Park, yesterday. She had low gross and low net with her card of 84-17—67. Mrs. R. M. Heath, of South Hills, with 98-24—74, and Mrs. T. H. Thorn, of Wildwood, with 91-15—76, also were high among the visitors.

Edith Clark led the home players with a low net of 89-15—74, while low gross went to the city municipal champion, Mrs. Margaret Curry, who registered 44-31—85.

Albert Aretta won the club championship prize, Harry Bailey won the president's prize and Edward Kimmich annexed the vice president's trophy in the Hotel Club and Restaurant Golf Association's final tournament of the season at the Wildwood Country Club yesterday. The first prize for the day was won by John J. Dillon, with Ray Glocker second. L. P. Tesh captured low gross honors.

series of short duration, but the powers have decreed that the big title be decided in this manner, and it is only in keeping with good sportsmanship that the victor be proclaimed as such.

National League partisans, including many players, will argue that the Cubs of 1929 passed up any number of chances to swat the top honors to the National League, they will point to the falldown of Hornsby at the plate through all of the game, the tremendous lead the Bruins lost through queer hops, misjudged fouls and what not, in the seventh inning of the fourth battle when the Athletics scored 10 runs to turn the victory to their dugout; they will show you how one pitch deprived the Cubs of a triumph in the ninth inning of the final game, there and other contentions are advanced from our side of the big league argument, but in the last analysis it boils, becomes the position to accept the verdict as rendered on the field.

Philly Convention Hall Sports Arena

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—(INS.)—Wrestling and boxing shows will be held in the city's new $5,000,000 Convention Hall during the coming indoor season, it was announced today. The hall was sub-leased to the firm of Taylor & Gunnis, promoters of boxing and wrestling shows in this city for the past 15 years. Their lease starts October 1 and runs until May 1, 1932.

The hall seats 15,000, being the largest in the city.

The bid of the firm headed by Herman Taylor and Robert Gunnis was accepted at a meeting of the Convention Hall athletic committee and Mayor Harry A. Mackey. The lease calls for the staging of shows every two weeks with the city to have an option of $2,000 a month or $1,000 and 10 per cent of the gross receipts.

RED CROSS SWIM PARTY

The first annual swimming party for members of the American Red Cross Life Saving Corps will be held in the Irwin Baughman natatorium, Duquesne University, at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

RANGERS QUIT LIGHTWEIGHT GRID LOOP

Toby Uansa, coach of the Rox Rangers, one of the best lightweight football teams in the district, this morning announced the withdrawal of his eleven as a member of Section I of the Pittsburgh Lightweight Conference.

The Rangers were displeased with the caliber of teams enrolled in Section I and decided to withdraw.

State Comish Calls College Ring Parley

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—(INS.)—Representatives of the colleges and universities in Eastern Pennsylvania have been summoned to meet with members of the State Athletic Commission here October 6 to discuss college boxing and wrestling.

Last spring the state body decided it had control of collegiate contests in both the mat and ring game and declared that forthwith all such contests would be supervised and the state's 5 per cent tax of receipts collected. The announcement created a furore in college circles and consequently the meeting here next week is expected to be far from a quiet affair. Fireworks are expected to be touched off by representatives of State College, Temple, Lehigh and Pennsylvania.

Stocks Decline

Local Market Lower

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES TO DECLINE

Important Industrials, Utilities Make Fresh Lows; Railroads Resist

NEW YORK, Sept 29 (AP) — Further flurries of selling kept the securities markets unsettled today.

In the share market prominent industrials and several utilities recorded new lows for the bear market, but rails showed notable resistance to the declining tendency. Selling was active at times. Bonds were again under pressure although declines were more moderate than yesterday's.

In stocks New York Central managed to advance to 2 points at one time but later lost its rise. A few specialties broke widely. Coca Cola tumbled 13 points then recovered partially. Wrigley slumped more than 6 points. Miscellaneous issues losing 2 to 3 points included United States Steel, American Can, American Telephone, North American, Borden, Eastman, Procter and Gamble, Allied Chemical, Woolworth and others. General Motors and General Electric declined more than a point to new lows and Kreuger & Toll lost as much, getting close to 5. International Match preferred dropped 4 points.

The market appeared to be still under the domination of uncertainties abroad. Steadiness of sterling exchange and recovery in the Holland florin were encouraging but news that the Stockholm stock exchange would be closed until further orders and that the principal industrial bank in Rheims, France, had closed its doors gave a measure of the widespread financial unsettlement in Europe.

The Paris Bourse closed with a distinctly heavy tone and the London market was partly paralyzed by the uncertainties over the possibility of an election and the apparent deadlock in the government over a protective tariff.

The local money market was a little easier with outside call loans at 1½ per cent against 1½ yesterday. The recent firmer tendency in medium to long term money rates however resulted in further pressure against the low-yield government securities. The question as to whether increased taxation will be sought at the next congress, or whether the government will continue to borrow by floating securities, injects an element of uncertainty from which Wall Street looks for little relief for several weeks.

Gold exports of roughly $20,000,000 today were the largest since June of 1928, but the outflow of metal should have little effect upon the money market, for a time at least. It is estimated that this country could lose several hundreds of millions in gold before experiencing any real stringency in money.

CAN DECLARES $1 EXTRA

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—American Can Company declared the usual extra dividend of $1 a share and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the common stock. The extra dividend has been paid annually in recent years.

U. S. Doesn't Need Europe's Pity; Gold Will Hold Its Place

By B. C. FORBES

EMINENT EUROPEANS talk almost privately of America. Britain they declare exultingly has stolen a march upon Uncle Sam by suspending interest-fed old pay methods. They picture "Uncle Shylock" sitting mournfully on a mountain of useless gold.

We don't need any of their pity.

IF GOLD is to be worse than useless why is it that there have been heavy withdrawals of American gold in the last few weeks than at any other time in the whole history?

IF A NATION'S currency is going to be measured in value by its value in gold what is it going to be measured by?

B. C. Forbes

Britain can, if she so chooses, follow the past example of Russia, Germany, France etc. she can print all the paper pounds she desires but the more excessive her output of paper currency, the less it will be worth in the markets of the world.

It is absurd to try to represent that a debased currency possesses greater merits than gold standard currency in the long run.

DEBASING A CURRENCY can be likened to giving dope to a sorely distraught patient. The patient's condition may demand that he give up solid food and that he abandon activities normal for the healthy person.

Britain strove heroically—very heroically—to retain her financial and currency robustness. She held out as long as she possibly could against submitting the necessity for succumbing to bitter currency medicine.

BUT IT IS UTTERLY ridiculous for any Briton or anyone else no matter how well known to pretend that a sick person is better off than a healthy person.

The United States is as a strong man able to get along without resorting to devitalizing nostrums.

It is Britain and also certain other countries that are sick and obliged to turn to medicines.

I AM REMINDED of a race-track incident. The owners of a horse instructed his jockey to give it a powerful shot of dope just before it was led out to the starting tape. He had learned from experience that dope greatly pepped up this animal.

Alas, a shanty near the track caught fire just as the race was about to start, and the horses were kept waiting for quite a long while. Before the starting signal was given, the effect of the dope had worn off and the horse gave a pitiable exhibition.

DEBASING A CURRENCY acts similarly. It incites inflation. It causes security prices, commodity prices and other prices to rise. Meanwhile wages usually lag behind. This gives manufacturers and other exporters a potent advantage in foreign markets.

The lowering of costs is effected mainly at the expense of the wage earners. The latter gradually find that their purchasing power has decreased and that they have suffered a decline in their standard of living.

ANOTHER ADVANTAGE of debasing a currency is that the government, the nation, sloughs off part of its debt by paying off its obligations in currency worth distinctly less than it was worth when the creditors handed over their savings. Britain, for example, will pay both interest and principal on all its sterling loans in debased paper currency in sterling—except in the case of such loans, usually foreign loans, which were specified as being repayable in gold.

Germany practically wiped out her governmental debt by allowing her currency to sink to almost nothing when measured by its value in gold.

BUT CURRENCY inflation, like all other inflation, carried with it only temporary advantages. Sooner or later the artificial stimulus applied by doping a currency subsides. Just as in the world things always find their normal level so wages and other costs sooner or later rise to their normal level under a debased currency.

MEANWHILE THE prestige and power and leadership of the nation which has been able to resist the temptation to debase its currency and has stoutly maintained it on a fixed gold standard become greatly enhanced.

Just so long as Britain from choice or dire need elects to operate on a currency of widely—not to say wildly—fluctuating value just so long will this country strengthen its financial world leadership.

Our disadvantage in world markets will be partly counteracted by our ability to buy from other countries for fewer dollars—in other words at lower cost. And the exporting advantages created by debasing a currency do not last—at least not in a land where the people rule and live rationally.

THE LONG AND SHORT of it is that the United States is more to be envied than pitied by nations compelled to confess their inability to continue to pay their debts in full, their inability to maintain their currency at its full gold value.

Gold never fear will continue to be the world's yardstick in measuring the international value of British and every other currency.

COTTON SHOWS DECLINES

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Cotton opened steady today, unchanged to a decline of 4 points under a moderate volume of southern selling combined with some selling here for continental account and liquidation which may have been promoted by relatively easy cables.

Traders, however, seemed to be paying less attention to Liverpool fluctuations which were attributed partly to changes in sterling rates and orders here were evidently quite evenly divided. Fluctuations after the call were correspondingly narrow with December selling around 6.09 cents and March 6.38 cents at the end of the first half hour or about 4 to 5 points net lower.

Trading was comparatively quiet and prices fluctuated within a relatively narrow range later in the morning. There was some selling on the action of the stock market which sent the price of December off to 6.06 and March to 6.36, making net losses of about 7 to 12 points, but part of this was recovered with the midday market quiet and steady at net declines of 5 to 6 points.

May Further Curtail East Texas Crude Oil Production

To keep the state's total oil production within the allotment of 902,000 barrels daily which was pledged by Gov. Sterling and the Railroad Commission to the oil states advisory committee, the East Texas field must be kept down to around 350,000 barrels daily. With the number of completed wells in the field, 3,072, and 168 drilling or staked in to drill, the commission may decide to make a further reduction in the allowable output per well to 150 barrels daily from the present 165 barrels. For the week ended last Wednesday, production in the field averaged 429,262 barrels daily. The figures of output for the week ended September 26 are likely to influence the commission's further action.

The number of stocks remaining at price levels about the 8100 figure in the active list can be very nearly counted on the fingers of two hands. On Saturday with approximately 500 individual stocks being traded in, it was disclosed that only 10 of these were quoted above the 8100 mark. High-priced shares, incidentally, seem to have lost their speculative favor and for weeks past have been the chief sufferers from liquidation and speculative selling which has been in order. The 10 issues remaining in the select class on Saturday were American Telephone, Atchison, Auburn, Coca Cola, Delaware and Hudson, Eastman Kodak, International Business Machine, Norfolk and Western, Peoples Gas and Union Pacific.

One of the interesting stories going the rounds as the new week got under way has it that quiet banking accumulation is going on in about a dozen selected stocks, chiefly among the utility and railroad issues. This story cites American Telephone and Consolidated Gas as the chief beneficiaries of such buying among the utilities, with Atchison and Northern Pacific favored among the rails. A few industrials are included such as Pullman and Kennecott Copper, but none of the old favorites like Steel common and American Can are reputedly in favor at the moment. Some people, however, doubted that real accumulation would be in order with the market in its present restricted state.

Railroad shares attracted considerable attention last week. These shares were the outstanding leaders in indicating the trend in the general list for nearly two years. They led the way into new low territory for the year a month or so ago, although at that time, many of the bulls insisted that industrials and utilities would not follow the lead given. Last Thursday, when industrials and utilities would not follow, the rails held above their previous closing low average. If the carrier group could continue to hold above the former bottom they would fail to confirm the bearish indication given by the two other groups. This would have considerable influence on sentiment in many circles.

Despite the condition of general business, there are some interests left in Wall Street who believe International Business Machines Company has a good chance of showing earnings this year at least equal to the showing in 1930, and there is a possibility that this will be exceeded, so that a new record of revenues would be shown. One of the factors which has helped the results is the rental basis of the major portion of the company's business.

General Theaters Equipment, Inc., has arranged a renewal of a $10,000,000 bank loan which matured Monday. Arrangements also have been made, it was understood, for payment of interest and sinking fund on the company's 10-year 6 per cent convertible debentures of 1930, due October 1. Official announcement on this point is expected today. The corporation's annual report showed a special loan of $10,000,000 obtained for payment for shares of class "A" common stock of the Fox Film Corporation. It was due last April 10 and was renewed then to September 27.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The bond market declined today with the losses distributed among all classes of issues. The declines, however, were not so wide as on several recent occasions. Trading was somewhat more active.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Transactions in the bond sections of the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, omitting sales of small amounts of bonds in dollars and their equivalents in foreign currencies:

THE ROAD BACK

-:- By Erich Maria Remarque

Kosole Gives Former Officer A Severe Thrashing

CHAPTER XVII.

Ferdinand swings around suddenly. Seelig retreats and Kosole makes after him. "Now, what about it?" he snarls. "Schroder! Schroder! Schroder! Do you remember him now, you dog, damn you? Take that one, from Schroder." His left goes home. "Greetings from the common grave!" He hits again. The inkeeper dodges, jumps behind the counter and grabs a hammer. It catches Kosole across the face and glances off his shoulder. But Kosole does not even wince, he is so enraged. He grasps hold of Seelig and bashes his head down on the counter—there is a clatter of glass. He turns on the beer taps. "There, drink, you rum keg! Suffocate, drown in your stinking pigs' wash."

The beer pours down Seelig's neck, it streams through his shirt into his breeches, making them swell out on his legs like balloons. Seelig bellows with rage. It is no easy thing to get such beer in these days. At last he manages to free himself and seizes a glass, with which he drives upward against Kosole's chin.

"Foul!" cries Willy from where he stands in the doorway, watching. He should have butted him in the stomach and then pulled his legs from under him!"

KOSOLE PLEASED

None of us interferes. This is Kosole's show. Even if he were to get a hiding, it would not be our business to help him. We stand by merely to see that no one tries to help Seelig. But Tjaden has already explained the matter in half a dozen words and nobody is now disposed to take his part.

Ferdinand's face is bleeding fast, he now gets properly mad and quickly makes short work of Seelig. With a hook to the jaw he brings him down, he stands over him and bashes his head on the floor a few times till he feels he has had enough.

Then we go. Lina, looking as pale as a cheese, is standing over her gasping master. "You'd better cart him away to the hospital," Willy shouts back. "Looks to me like a matter for two or three weeks. Not a very bad case, though."

Kosole is smiling as happy as a child. Schroder, so he feels, is avenged. "That was fine," says he, wiping the blood from his face. "Well, now I must be trotting back to my missus, or the neighbors will be thinking things, eh?"

At the marketplace we separate. Jupp and Valentin go off to the barracks and their boots clatter over the moonlit pavement.

"I wouldn't mind going along with them," says Albert suddenly.

I know," agrees Willy, thinking of his fowl, no doubt. "They're a bit pedantic, the people here, don't you find?"

I nod. "And we'll have to be starting school again soon, I suppose——"

We stand still and grin. Tjaden cannot contain himself for joy at the mere thought of it. Still laughing, he trots off after Valentin and Jupp.

Willy scratches his head. "Think they'll be very pleased to see us? We're not quite so docile as we used to be, you know."

"We were more to their liking as heroes," says Karl, "and a long way off for preference."

"I'm rather looking forward to the fun," explains Willy. "What with our present temper hardened in the bath of steel and all as they used to say—"

Synopsis

Ernst, who enlisted when a schoolboy, tells the postwar story of a group of trench comrades who march home when peace is made. The world is strange and puzzling to them. Everything is changed, themselves most of all. Only their companions and their war memories seem real. Ernst looks up his friends and a game of cards is started at the barracks, when word reaches them that Seelig, a former sergeant major whom they disliked, is a bartender in a local cafe. They set out forthwith for the place. Sight of Seelig brings back the time of Schroder's death, which they attributed to Seelig because he refused to approve the leave to which the dead man was entitled. Kosole, a special friend of Schroder's, has sworn to avenge his comrade.

Now Go On

When our company was disbanded we had to take our rifles along with us. The instructions were to give them up on arrival at our home town, so now we have come to the barracks and passed in our arms. At the same time we received our demobilization pay—50 marks discharge money per man and 15 as sustenance allowance. In addition to that we are entitled to one greatcoat, a pair of boots, a change of underclothes and a uniform.

We climb up to the top floor to take delivery of goods. The quartermaster makes a perfunctory gesture. "Look something out for yourselves."

Willy sets off on a hasty tour, nosing through all the things displayed. "Listen here, you," he then says in parental fashion, "you keep this for the recruits. This stuff came out of the ark along with Noah. Show us something new."

"Haven't got any," retorts the quartermaster in a surly tone.

"Is that so?" says Willy and considers a while. He brings out an aluminum cigar case. "Smoke?"

The other shakes his bald pate.

GETS NEW CLOTHING

"Chew, is it," Willy gropes in his tunic pocket.

"No——"

"Good, then you drink?" Willy has overlooked nothing; he feels toward a protuberance on his chest.

"Nor that, either," replies the quartermaster offhand.

"Well, there's nothing for it but to swipe you a couple on the snout," explains Willy amiably. "Anyway, we're not leaving here without a decent set of new togs, get me?"

Fortunately at this moment Jupp appears who, being a Soldiers' Councillor, now carries some weight. He tips the quartermaster a wink. "Pals of mine, Heinrich. Old foot-slogers. Show 'em into the salon, won't you?"

The quartermaster brightens up. "Why couldn't they say so at first?"

We accompany him to a room at the back and there the new things are hanging. We hastily discard our old gear and put on new. Willy submits that he needs two greatcoats, explaining that his blood has got very thin under the Prussians. The quartermaster hesitates. Jupp takes him by the arm into a corner and has a talk with him about sustenance allowance. When the two return the quartermaster is pacified. He casts an eye over Tjaden and Willy, who have grown noticeably stouter. "Very good," he growls. "It's all one to me. A lot of them don't even trouble to collect their stuff. Have enough brass of their own, I suppose. The main thing is, my invoice must be in order."

We sign that we have received everything. "Didn't you say something about smoking a while back?" says the quartermaster to Willy.

Willy is taken by surprise and produces his case with a grin.

"And chewing?" the other persists.

Willy turns out his tunic pocket. "But you don't drink, I believe," essays Willy.

GIVEN RAILWAY PASS

"On the contrary," says the quartermaster calmly, "that's the one thing the doctor has ordered me. I'm a bit anemic myself, as a matter of fact. Just leave the bottle here, will you?"

"Half a mo!" says Willy, and takes a long pull at the flask so that something at least may be reserved. Then he hands over a half-empty bottle to the astonished storeman. A moment ago it was full!

Jupp accompanies us to the barracks gate. "Guess who else is here?" says he. "Max Weil! On the Soldiers' Council!"

"That's where he belongs, too," says Kosole. "Nice soft job, I should say, eh?"

"Not so bad," answers Jupp. "Valentine and I are in the same line for the time being. If ever you want anything—railway passes or the like—I'm at the fountainhead, don't forget."

"Give me a pass, then," I say, "and I can go and see Adolf tomorrow."

He takes out a block and tears off a pass. "Fill it in yourself. You travel second, of course."

"Sure."

Outside Willy unbuttons his great-coat. "There is another beneath it. "It's better I should have it than that it should be sold off later by some swindler or other. And, anyway, the Prussians owe it to me for my half-dozen shell splinters."

ODD FACTS

The desire of being pitied or admired is commonly the reason of our confiding things to others.

According to one expert on the subject there are some 2,000,000 feeble-minded persons in the United States.

Only after the World War did European universities begin for the first time to establish courses in American history.

The year 1928 was the banner prosperity year.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Sort of a Vagabond

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Aunt of Actress Objects to Mountain Vacation

"I want to go off the beaten path," Rosalie declared.

Rosalie Markham, at this time, nearly always managed to have and to do what she wanted.

She had to work, as do all successful young actresses, but then, Rosalie expected to work hard when she decided that she would gain a good livelihood from the stage and thus support her mother in more comfort and luxury than if she went into commercial work, as her Aunt Theresa advised her to do.

The season had closed. Rosalie had been extremely successful and was to have another stellar role in a new production in the fall.

Rosalie Markham's name, in private life, was Rosalie Markham—something rather unusual in the theatrical world. Her adoring mother had implicit faith in Rosalie's judgment. If Rosalie had wanted her vacation on a volcano or in Greenland, Mrs. Markham would have agreed.

It was Aunt Theresa who was the family irritant. Aunt Theresa, Mrs. King, had some money. She had married it and was at this time a widow. She had been forever stepping into the Markham household, consisting only of Rosalie and her mother, and running things. This was before Rosalie was old enough to have any say about it.

TAKES ENGLISH COURSE

When Rosalie was ready to decide on what high school course she would take her Aunt Theresa said, "She will take the commercial course and get a nice position as a private secretary."

And for the first time Rosalie had disputed Aunt Theresa's authority.

"I am taking the English course," she announced.

"But I object," Aunt Theresa had cried.

Rosalie smiled—and took the English course.

Later, when Rosalie had her opportunity to take a small part in a drama it was Aunt Theresa who again said, "But I object."

Rosalie handled the minor role in the play with such success that in a few years she was doing important parts. At 21 she had her first stellar role.

When Rosalie said that she wished to go off the beaten path, she referred to her coming vacation.

"You don't want to do anything of the sort," Aunt Theresa said.

Aunt Theresa had never quite forgiven Rosalie for becoming an actress and making so much money.

AUNT OBJECTS

"You don't want to do anything of the sort," Aunt Theresa repeated, "you are not to bury yourself away off some place—it isn't good business. Go to popular and classy resorts, mingle with real people—it will advertise you and keep your name in the papers."

"I think," Rosalie said, "that Mr. Smith, the resort agent, has found just the place. It is the darlingest cottage, according to the photograph. It is up near the foot of Bald Mountain and 12 miles from the nearest village and nearest main highway."

"No," Aunt Theresa declared, "you don't want to bury yourself in any place like that."

Rosalie turned to the desk and telephoned Mr. Smith, telling him that she would take the cottage up to the first of September. She had to begin rehearsals after that.

Aunt Theresa tossed her head. "I don't know what makes you so stupid, Rosalie," she said, "you never take my advice any more. Up there, lost in the wilderness, you will see no one."

"Which is what I want."

"You'll get no publicity—"

"I shall when rehearsals begin."

"And what's more," Aunt Theresa finished, shaking a warning finger at her, "you will be in danger of vagabonds!"

"Vagabonds?" Rosalie's mother asked, showing just a hint of alarm.

"Do you mean vagabond lovers, auntie?" Rosalie asked.

"No! I mean real vagabonds, tramps, hoboes, bums—they will find that we have no men about and they will steal and terrorize us."

"We?" Rosalie asked, winking at her mother.

"Of course, I wouldn't let you go up there unprotected."

The little cottage at the foot of Bald Mountain was all that the photograph promised, and more. It was located on a corner of what had once been a vast estate. The warden who had protected the game and the fish from poachers had lived there.

Rosalie wore gloves and a flopping big hat because she could not afford to become tanned. It would be difficult to put on indoor makeup for the stage over a coat of tan.

Rosalie's mother was never happier. She was putting up the berries and fruit and singing all the day. Aunt Theresa stalked about a great deal and seemed to be constantly watching for the arrival of the vagabonds.

A man came walking down the road one day. He was dark and bearded and shabby. He turned in at the cottage.

"I told you—here's the first vagabond," Aunt Theresa hissed.

The man lifted his shapeless hat and spoke. He said:

"Madam, myself and some brother professors from the university would like to do some geological exploring on the mountain. Can you give us permission or tell me where to apply for permission?"

Aunt Theresa stammered. Rosalie came to the rescue.

"I am sure," she said, "that the owners of the mountain would never object to the removal of such specimens of minerals as you might be able to carry away."

BORROWS RAZOR

Another fortnight passed without incident and then another unkempt male suddenly appeared from around the corner of the cottage.

"Is the man of the place about?" he asked. His voice seemed to be pleasant enough.

Before Rosalie could answer Aunt Theresa spoke up sharply. "Both men are here, big men," she said.

"That is good," he replied, "may I speak to one of them? You see, I lost my razor blades and really—" he rubbed his fingers over his stubbly chin—"my need of razor blades must be quite apparent."

Rosalie looked straight at her Aunt Theresa and laughed.

Aunt Theresa turned quite red.

"My aunt," Rosalie said, "is now somewhat embarrassed. The truth is, there are no men here and, alas, no razor blades."

The young man laughed at this, in spite of himself.

"My aunt was under the impression," Rosalie continued, "that you were a vagabond."

"I am somewhat of a vagabond. I certainly need razor blades. I wonder if there isn't an old oilstone or hone in that tool shed there? I might sharpen up my knife well enough."

He displayed a small hunting knife in a sheath.

"Oh!" gasped Aunt Theresa. "We will go and look," Rosalie said.

They went to the toolshed together and searched. They not only found a hone, but an old-fashioned razor in a case. It was in good condition.

"If I may borrow this I will return it before I go," he promised.

Rosalie told him that so far as she cared he might keep it.

Rosalie went downstream fishing three days later. There had been no sign of the young vagabond.

About three miles below, where the stream emptied into a pond, Rosalie was carefully fishing in a pool, and a sizeable salmon trout struck. Rosalie wasn't used to salmon trout and was having much difficulty with this one. She had been catching ordinary brook trout and lifting them out.

"Slack your line, miss—slack it!"

Rosalie looked up and saw an attractive young man.

"Don't look at me—watch your line, slack it—more—now take in—keep the line taut, but not too—easy there—it's a three pounder!"

The fish broke water. Rosalie gasped with surprise and delight and began to thrill over this capture. Finally, the young man waded into the pool and helped to left out the three-pound salmon trout by using his Panama hat as a net.

Then Rosalie recognized him—the "vagabond."

He had the neatest little canvas camp on the shore of the pond that Rosalie had ever seen.

"I was going to call on you today—I was on my way," he said. He had produced the old-fashioned razor she had given him. "I was going to return this. My supplies came by express yesterday and I am all right now."

He offered her the razor.

"Get into some dry things and come back with me for dinner," Rosalie invited, "we will have this trout."

TO MARRY "VAGABOND"

And so Rosalie returned with her fish and the quite handsome young man, shaven, well dressed and smiling. The young man was Clifton Hartley, owner of a wide chain of sporting goods stores. He had recognized Rosalie the first time he saw her, but, guessing that she was there to rest and avoid publicity, had said nothing.

They were quite friendly during the weeks that he remained.

And it was late in October that Rosalie's mother told Aunt Theresa that Rosalie was to be married.

"I don't approve of marriage for her," Aunt Theresa said. She turned to Rosalie. "Who is he?" she demanded.

"Oh," Rosalie said, "he is a sort of a vagabond, his name is Hartley!"

The trouble is we'll never know who our criminals are until psychiatrists look over our juries.

An Outgrown System

The Paper Ballot Method of Voting Has Been Proved Unsatisfactory

The Senate Committee on Voting Machines will meet tomorrow to inquire why some of the Poole machines used here in the recent election failed to work.

It is a sorely needed inquiry. The County Commissioners should watch it carefully, and if the evidence discloses something inherently weak or defective in the machines they should cancel the contract with the Poole Company and arrange to get workable machines.

The need of doing away with the paper ballot system was never demonstrated more convincingly than in the last election. In election districts of the size we now have, and with candidates as numerous as they were in the primary, the system proved utterly unsatisfactory.

Unless Judge Macfarlane accedes to the request of the Citizens' Committee that enough clerks be appointed to complete the re-count quickly, we may not know who won the nominations until after the November election.

Government by the people is out of the question under such a system.

We would be spared this misfortune if we had workable machines.

As Senator Frank J. Harris says, voting machines have been in successful operation for more than a quarter of a century in New York and elsewhere.

There will be no excuse for the County Commissioners if they fail to supply Allegheny County, too, with machines that will work.

Another Bomb Challenge

East End Explosion Gives Detectives a New Chance to Show What They Can Do

The East End residence of a former liquor racketeer was bombed yesterday. He blames bootleggers.

Here is another opportunity for the city detectives to show what they can do. The case is a challenge.

There have been many bombings in Pittsburgh in recent months. We cannot recall any case in which the miscreants have been convicted.

The home of the Italian vice consul in Pittsburgh, Dr. Giovanni Giurato, was partly wrecked by a bomb last month. Prodded by the federal authorities, our city detectives worked hard on the case and finally announced that they had learned the identity of the criminal. But there have been no arrests, and the latest word on the matter was Public Safety Director Clark's mysterious statement, shortly before his departure for Europe, that his information in regard to the affair was of so confidential a nature that he did not even date transmit it in a letter, but would have to convey it by word of mouth to Mussolini himself, or someone appointed by Mussolini to receive it.

Respect for the police would increase if they would convict at least one bomber.

The Radio Show

New Wonders of Wireless Communication Are Entertainingly Presented.

Everyone who aspires to be abreast of the times should visit the Radio Show now being held at Duquesne Garden.

New wonders of wireless electric communication are to be seen.

There is an abundance of entertainment, too, contributed by well-known radio performers.

The adage "Wonders never cease" applies with full force to radio. Every year has brought amazing developments since the world's first radio program was broadcast from KDKA, the pioneer station, and this year is no exception.

But prospective purchasers of radio sets should not anticipate too much and delay buying in the expectation that extraordinary improvements will be announced in a few weeks.

To be more specific, do not put off buying one of the wonderful new radio receivers now to be had at so little expense in the hope that if you postpone your purchase for a short while you will be able to get a set equipped for television.

The authorities state that television is still in its infancy and that any television apparatus that might be placed on the market now would become obsolete in three months.

Seeing Is Believing

Pittsburgh Gets a Demonstration of the Possibilities of Gliding

At a height of more than half a mile Martin Schempp soared like a great bird over the Golden Triangle yesterday afternoon.

The craft that he navigated was a glider made by a Pittsburgh youth, Augustine Haller. It consisted, apparently, of little else but two wings and a tail.

The daring aeronaut had complete control of this simple contrivance. He dipped and rose and circled practically at will.

Young Mr. Haller has told us that the terrain and wind conditions in the Pittsburgh district make this an ideal place for gliding. Seeing is believing.

Gliding is obviously exhilarating sport. It is good training for persons who aspire to navigate airplanes.

We hope and believe that yesterday's demonstration will go far to promote gliding in this district.

The Polk Trade Survey

The Report to Be Presented Thursday Will Be of Interest to Businessmen.

Two months ago Emerson B. Knight, director of the consumer research division of R. L. Polk & Co., publishers of city directories, made public the results of a house-to-house canvass conducted in a section of the city inhabited by people in modest circumstances.

It was disclosed that 93 per cent of the families had from one to six wage earners employed and earning money, and that 58 per cent of the families were free from obligation to make payments on installment purchases.

Mr. Knight is to present more comprehensive figures to members of the Retail Merchants Association and the Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon in the William Penn Hotel on Thursday.

The report will undoubtedly be of great interest to business men, and for that matter to everybody who earns a living in Pittsburgh.

It will be of considerable practical importance, too, as indicating the buying power of the people.

There You Are, Sir!

Empty promises will never fill an empty plate.

ACTION is needed—and the G. O. P. can take that action. Let the Republican President call Congress into special session, so that CONGRESS CAN AUTHORIZE A $5,000,000,000 PROSPERITY LOAN.

That sum of money, put to work at public enterprises, will revive industry and trade, and industry and trade will take care of the unemployed.

Congress Should Lift Hobbles From Exporting

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

APART from academic considerations, the Hawley-Smoot tariff act is OBJECTIONABLE because it has proved UNSUCCESSFUL.

It has failed to achieve the objectives even of its lobbyist sponsors.

Obviously, its drastic provisions, which have discouraged foreign business interests, have fallen short of their promise to increase the profits of home industry.

Moreover, recent events have disclosed how lamentably the act has failed to fulfill its alleged purpose to maintain American wage standards.

The beneficial results of the ill conceived tariff measure, if there are any, are difficult to find.

On the other hand, the evil effects have been far reaching and plain.

IN the first place, the flaunting of still higher rates into the faces of foreign customers created ILL WILL. The act caused customers to look elsewhere for substitutes for American manufactured goods and raw materials.

Furthermore, it resulted in tariff reprisals in Canada, in Europe and elsewhere.

Mistakenly, Congress set the fashion for competition in erecting barriers which interfere with international trade and world prosperity.

The alleged advantages of an extremely high protective tariff are minimized when ALL COUNTRIES PLAY THE SAME GAME.

The way out of the dilemma is in a common sense scientific tariff policy, which will seek to reconcile the motive of protection of home industry with the desire to encourage exports.

SPECIFICALLY, Congress at its next session should set in motion machinery for REVISING DOWNWARD the outrageously high schedules in the present tariff act. Instead of continuing the confidence disturbing scheme of determining rates by logrolling, it should set up a mechanism for scientifically determining schedules by means of economic research and expert study.

Then side by side with an economic tariff should go the policy of RECIPROCITY, which has been aptly defined as the frank admission that foreign trade is NOT always a game in which each country should try to get the better of the other, but is, sometimes at least, an exchange from which both may profit.

Congress should institute a new spirit of good will in foreign trade by authorizing the chief executive to remit or reduce duties on specified raw materials or merchandise from foreign countries, which make reciprocal concessions to the United States.

AS the chief creditor nation in the world, the United States is in position to end the period of latent economic warfare, which is curtailing international trade to the detriment of all.

International trade must proceed along a two way thoroughfare. Unless Americans buy overseas, they cannot expect to sell.

Moreover, by shipment of goods and commodities to us, foreign countries attain the means of repaying their debts.

A wise, scientific tariff policy is a sensible alternative to the unsound proposal to pauperize our foreign debtors and to cancel their debts.

The Rhyming Optimist

Sunflower's Song

The sunflower owes allegiance
To nothing save the sun.
But ah! how can she meet the hours
When day is done?

Her fealty is splendid
Her very heart she bares.
But as dusk deepens she must know
What bleak despairs!

I know how she must shudder
Through the black abyss of night
In all the whirling universe
No golden light!

I know how she must ache for
The signal-lights of dawn
Her fear-filled vigils I can share
Since you are gone!

Yet eastward I am looking
Morn's gates are almost won.
I lift my petals up in hope.
Come back, my sun!

ATLANTIC CITY DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 29.—This coast resort has become a sort of Broadway peninsula. One may whisk through the Holland Tunnel, like a greased pig through a Child's, and on a straightaway road arrive from Times Square in a little more than three hours.

It has been the especial playground of theatrical folk whose engagements kept them in New York this season. They leave after the Saturday night performance and return late Monday. Consequently hotels are well filled over the weekend.

But generally speaking, Atlantic City like pleasure haunts the world over, has had usual slim pickings. Broadway was represented on the Boardwalk today by such figures as George S. Kaufman, Irving Ceasar, George M. Cohan, Joe Frisco and Sam Harris. The Ritz is their open forum.

The most astonishing figure in a promenade along the fantastic hotel crags was a burnt black lady in decollete bathing suit with a snow-white fur flung like a serape across her shoulder. On a leash she had a Persian cat whose fluffy coat was dyed a light pink.

The board walk is a several mile narrowly planked strip of free window display. On one side its defiant hotels; pert shops, catch-penny amusement trivia and on the other the oyster white beach, ocean and projecting piers. The community like the unceasing tide lurches forward and back in rolling chairs.

Chairs are a dollar an hour and a fraction thereof thereafter. Its pushers form a profession distinctly apart from any other I know. Walking indeterminable miles daily in the stabbing sun shoving their human loads, they are reminaful of drudges of the water mills in ancient serfdom.

Many are colored but the majority are white, some with one arm, crippled feet and otherwise malformed. Yet now and then in the flotsam is one whose niceties of speech and manner proclaim the genetleman stained by the pathos of life. As a chair pusher with head bowed he may hide from the world.

For instance, my pusher seemed utterly miscast for his role. He had more the appearance of one of those wandering scholars with knapsacks so frequently seen along the Rhine or in the German forests. Drawing up momentarily for a rest and a view of the ocean front, he pulled out a tattered volume. It was printed in French. Questioning developed he was a private language tutor shunted. I hope only temporarily, to this depressing obscurity.

Visitors to Atlantic City are about the only folk to wear clothes. The natives especially women and children go through the season in bathing togs. Shortly before sundown when the sea is veined with Lucifer entire families drift to the beach for their swim. Later housewives may be seen in the kitchen in swimming attire cooking the evening meal. Husbands and children, so dressed, wait on front porches for the call to dinner.

* * *

The beach is radiantly grained with surprising handiwork of the sand artist. In bas relief are sculptured pictures of Lincoln, lions, tigers, Hoover, a nobly breasted Venus, Gibson girls and forest scenes. Some are colored in fetching tints. The artist depends on pitched coins of passers-by for his livelihood.

* * *

Sunburn lotions cost Atlantic City hotels staggering sums in ruined linens and towels. The stains cannot be removed and bathrooms and bedrooms are hung with warnings in red that patrons must pay for such damage—costs range from $3 a bedsheet to a dollar for a towel.

* * *

A beach fad for the seasonal flapper is a brown frock and floppy linen hat to match the autumnal shade of her tanned skin. One such monochrome, suggesting the carved, serene beauty of the Indian, with hair the light pulled taffy of Lyda Roberti's turns heads everywhere.

* * *

Atlantic City is a mecca for swamis and other Oriental seers. One today, suggesting a charcoal edition of Ben Ali Haggin, prophesied: "You are about to receive an unexpected business offer of great magnitude." And between leaping to the ring of the telephone and haunting the hotel telegraph office I'm fit to be tied.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Vacation's over!

And thousands of Miserable Mammas and Pestered Papas are heaving great glad sighs of relief. While, on the other hand, an equal number of Tormented Teachers are groaning with dismay.

For little Willie is back at school after 12 long, lovely weeks of idleness—and is not little Willie a better and a brighter child for this lengthy relaxation?

Yes, he is NOT!

To the contrary, little Willie is a mess. His morale is shot to pieces, his manners are haywire and his health is way off standard. Why?

Vacation is why, says Dr. Willis A. Sutton. Who is he? You'll be surprised. He is the retiring president of the National Educational Association and superintendent of schools in Atlanta, Ga.

"That's funny," you say. "School teachers are usually crazy about vacations."

Dr. Sutton is crazy, too, but not with enthusiasm. According to him, vacations are one of the major menaces.

They're a relic of the past ages, says he. All very well when children were needed to work during the summer, assisting their parents with the harvest. And there's still need of rest and change for both parents and teachers. But listen—

"The waste and frivolity of our present system of three months cessation of mental activities is a blot on our educational escutcheon which must be removed. I cannot conceive of a more foolish thing than the idea of giving the youth of the land supervised care for six or eight hours every day and supervised study for a prolonged period of from nine to ten months and then, again, on the click of the clock . . . dismiss every child to the tender mercies of the street and the playground without supervision and without care for a period of three months.

"For the . . . majority of children it is a waste and an extravagance and a type of relaxation that destroys the mental discipline and organization which has gone on for the past month. The children of virtually every city return to school in September exhausted in body, lowered in vitality, and thoroughly unorganized socially, intellectually, and to some extent morally."

Not to mention the wear and tear on "exhausted mothers and fathers who are exasperated over the problem of what to do with their children after the first flush of vacation is over."

And if you've just seen little Willie through a long, hard summer, you'll burst into big, wet tears of recollection as you read those understanding remarks. Oh, the agonizing hours when you were POSITIVE that the absent William had been run over by an automobile and lay, unclaimed in the morgue! Oh, the bills for busted windows, backyard bonfires—not to mention the high cost of shoe leather and bandages. And that daily battle when you tried to refuse movie money or to insist on a 9 o'clock bed hour! Yet they say it's a Noble Joy to be a parent! Try n' tell YOU!

But what to do about it? Supervised play and vacation activities with credits given to the youngster for work done, that's Dr. Sutton's remedy. Funds? Extra teachers? Not needed, says he. Without extra funds and with no supervision, except that given by the Parent-Teacher Association and the home itself, the Atlanta schools have carried on a summer activities program for the last three years.

A good idea? Why not try it in the home town? Even if it only keeps Willie off the streets, that's plenty . . . considering our streets!

MAN IN THE MOON

By Archibald Henderson

The moon is one of the most interesting of the celestial objects as a subject for study, since it is the nearest of them to the earth. Many curious things are known about the moon, but the chiefest is that the moon is a dead planet. Recent researches seem to indicate that there may be some very hardy and stubbly vegetation on the moon, although this is doubtful. The moon is generally believed by astronomers to be without life.

Among the most interesting features of the moon's surface are the great craters which are seen in photographs with remarkable distinctness and detail. One of them, named Copernicus in honor of the famous astronomer, has a mountain wall two miles high—its diameter being 56 miles. There are estimated to be some 30,000 of these craters on the hemisphere which is always facing the earth. Some of them have diameters of as much as 100 miles, and depths of 10,000 feet.

One of the most singular and puzzling of astronomical questions is Why do we always see the "Man in the Moon"—that is, why does the Moon always turn the same face to us? While the earth makes one revolution on its axis every 24 hours, the Moon takes about 30 days to make one revolution. In consequence, the Sun shines on the Moon nearly 15 of our days while the Moon is making one revolution. The surface rocks of the Moon, on the side facing the Sun, are heated almost to the boiling point of water. Within two hours after darkness falls on the Moon, the freezing point is reached on the dark side of the Moon; and during the course of the 15 days the temperature on the dark side has fallen to between 200 and 300 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit.

Of course scientists long ago recognized that while the Moon makes one revolution around the earth, it is rotating exactly once on its axis. But what is the reason for this? Surely there must be some stabilizing influence at work, to maintain this very peculiar relation.

Three principles are at work: Gravity, a heavier and a lighter end—the heavier end responding more strongly to the gravitational pull; and a resisting medium sufficient to give the heavier end an advantage and cause it to assume and maintain a position nearer the earth than the lighter end. It was the late Thomas Chrowder Chamberlain, joint author with Forest Ray Moulton of the planetesimal hypothesis, who suggested that, by the accretion of matter, the vast ba[illegible] areas of the moon, the side turned toward us, is the heavier.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Isn't it true that you think too much about yourself?

There are important subjects that need your personal attention.

If your mind is occupied in consideration of personal matters to the exclusion of everything else, you, as a subject, must be worn threadbare.

It is so easy to drift right on to self-pity.

Self-sympathy robs you of stamina and the confidence you should possess and leads you to think that you are not appreciated and the world is against you.

It lessens your efforts to go forward and destroys the initiative that every person needs to be successful.

It causes you to seek sympathy when sympathy should be scorned.

There are few instances where a person should be willing to listen to terms of commiseration.

If you are not held in esteem as you would like, perhaps you have never done anything to make yourself stand out above the ordinary man.

This being true, why should you expect greater recognition than you get?

Doubtless you are a fair average, perhaps you are a mediocrity.

Understanding the terms, snap out of it and learn to do something well.

Do not think so much about yourself; you are but an atom when compared to the universe and its important matters.
